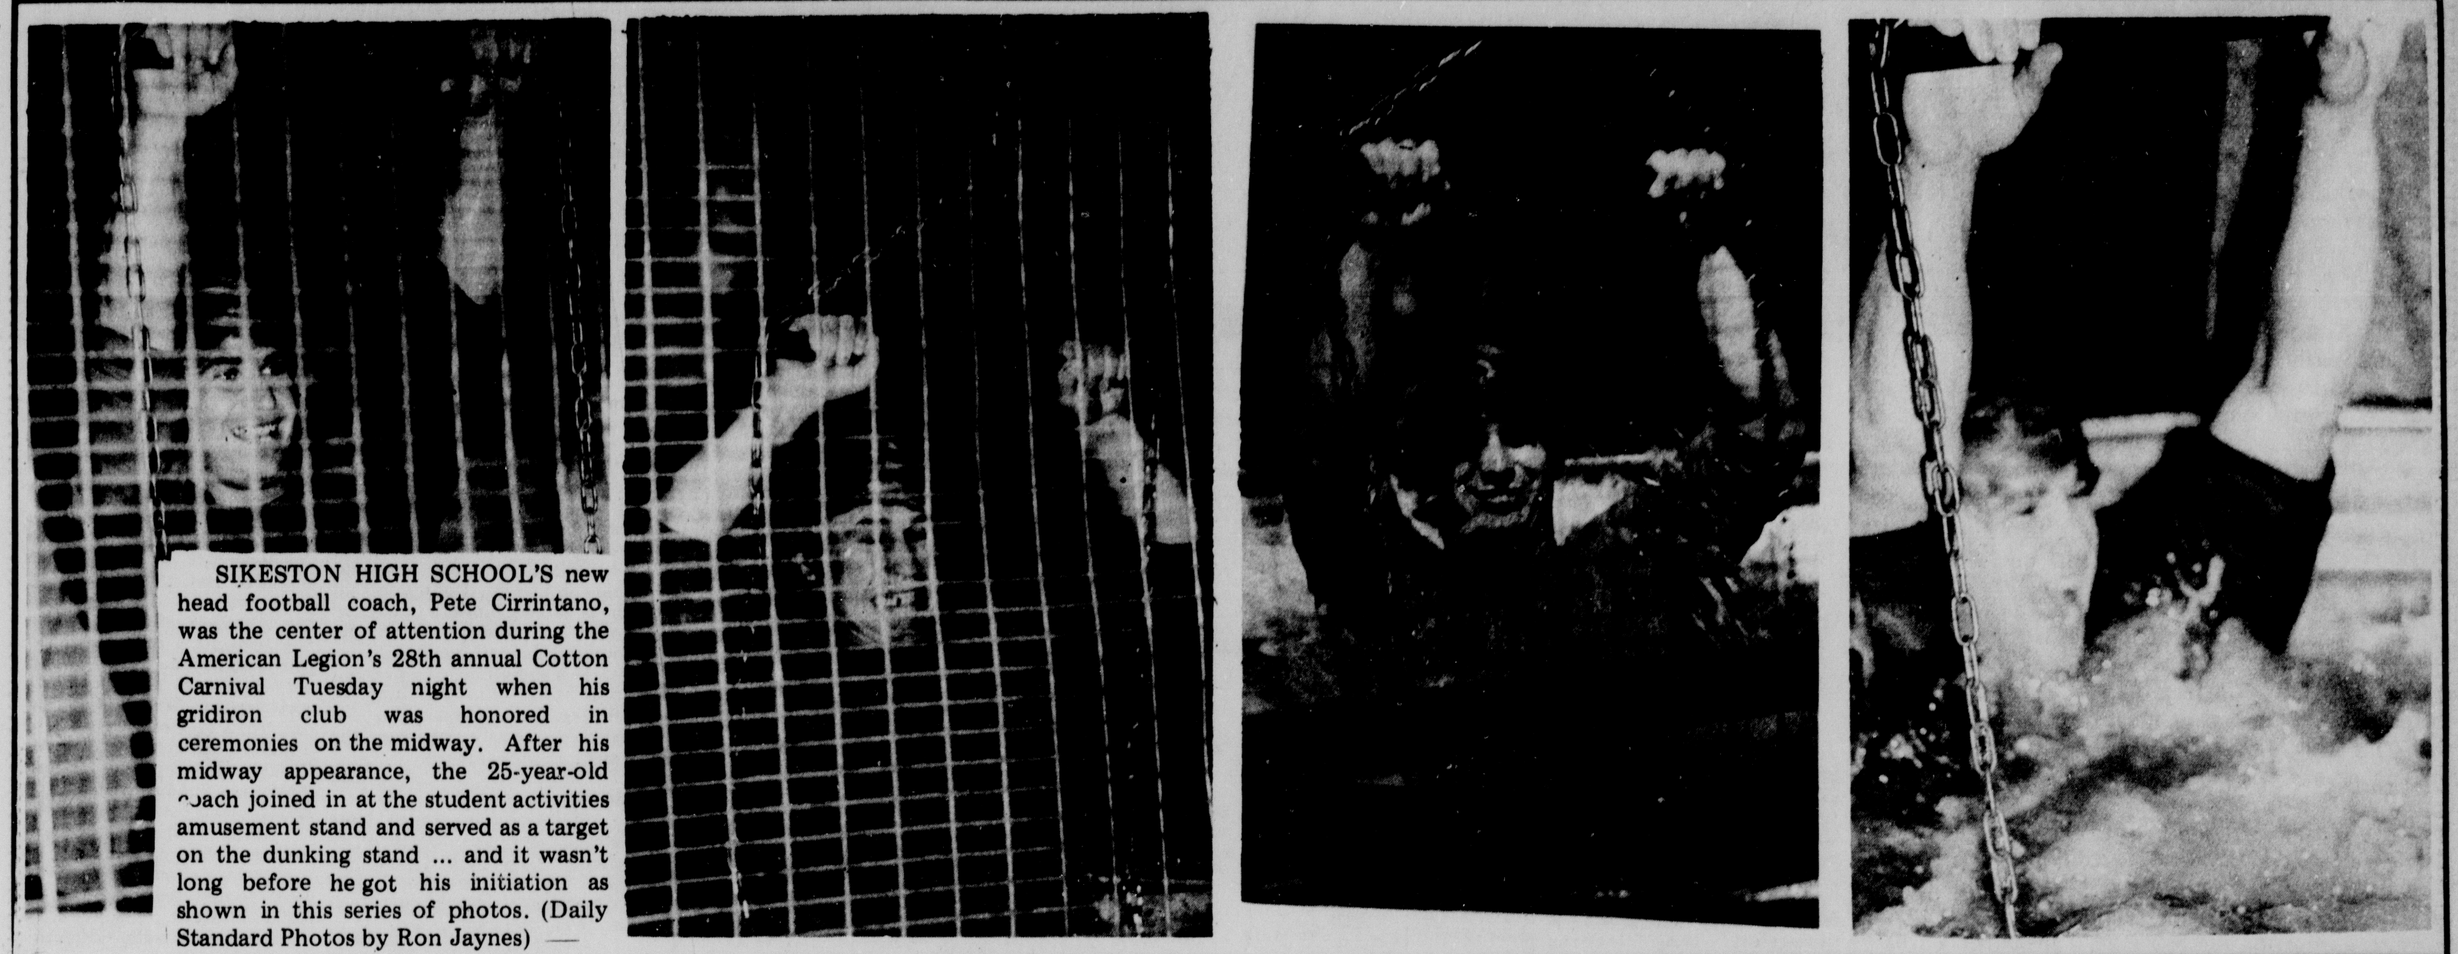
JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
LBJ Fears Death Is Near, Puts His Estate In Order

10¢ PER COPY | OUR 61st YEAR | SIKESTON, SCOTT COUNTY, MISSOURI, | WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 27, 1972 | 26 PAGES | NUMBER 181



SIKESTON HIGH SCHOOL'S new head football coach, Pete Cirrintano, was the center of attention during the American Legion's 28th annual Cotton Carnival Tuesday night when his gridiron club was honored in ceremonies on the midway. After his midway appearance, the 25-year-old coach joined in at the student activities amusement stand and served as a target on the dunking stand ... and it wasn't long before he got his initiation as shown in this series of photos. Conferees Fail To Agree On Money Bill

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Rep. E. J. "Lucky" Cantrell leaned back in his chair and said resignedly, "I wish there were an adjetive to describe the senators' position — that you could print."

That was after a SenateHouse conference committee failed Tuesday night after a three-hour closed meeting to reach agreement on a $10.8 million appropriation bill.

The House had passed a $21.5 million bill before the Senate got hold of it and sliced it in half. The House rejected the Senate version and five members of each house were trying to reach a compromise.

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes requested $23.5 million when he called a special legislative session Sept. 6. So far, the special session has cost the taxpayers about $150,000, by unofficial estimate.

The legislature can meet up to 60 days in special session. After adjournment, the governor could call lawmakers back into session as long as he is governor, which will be until January.

Both houses were to meet this afternoon. No more conference committee meetings were scheduled, but the Senate Appropriations Committee chairman, Donald Manford, D-Kansas City, called a morning news conference to announce what he would recommend to the Senate.

"I'm going to recommend we adjourn sine die," Cantrell said. "We're just wasting our time."

Asked what the senators would agree to restore to the bill, Cantrell said, "nothing."

Instead of listening to suggestions for compromise, Cantrell said, "They just wouldn't cooperate."

There were votes on 24 items, he said.

The vote on each item, it was learned, was 5-5 on nearly each item, with the House members voting one way and senators voting another.

At the end, the vote was 7-3 to not report the $10.8 million bill out without any changes.

All the House members — Cantrell, R. J. "Bus" King, rClayton, William F. Casey, DPotosi, James Russell, R-Florissant, and Charles H. Dickey, R-Mexico — voted against reporting the bill out.

They were joined by Sens. Richard M. Webster, R-Carthage, and Manford, it was learned. Voting to report the bill out without change were Sens. Nelson B. Tinnin, D-Hornersville, Norman L. Merrell, D-Monticello, and Omer H. Avery, D-Troy, House members said.

"The House members were fairly flexible," Cantrell said. "On some items, we're fooling with human lives."

He called the senators' position "unreasonable."

House members were bitter about the Senate's elimination of several items that members of the House Appropriations Committee thought were true emergencies, and the Senate's addition of nearly $1 million in judges' pay increases to come from tax money.

The House had directed that all salary and retirement benefit boosts for judges and clerks come from the court judicial fund, which is being strengthened by increased court costs.

A big hangup was the Senate's deletion of $178,000 for licensed boarding homes caring for the mentally retarded. The senators agreed with the licensing provision, but wanted to eliminate $40,000 for a St. Louis center for the developmentally disabled.

Cab Driver Robbed Here At Knifepoint

Thomas Flippo, a driver for Jolly Cab Co., told police Tuesday night that he was robbed by two men who forced him to drive out of the city to the intersection of Brown Spur Road and Compress Road.

Flippo said one of the men held him at knife point; while the other took $29.80 from his changer and pockets.

Flippo told police the two men flagged him down at 9:50 p.m. at the corner of Scott and Front Streets and climbed into the back of the cab. One pulled a knife and held it to his throat, Flippo claimed, and told him to drive to Brown Spur Road, while the other searched for money.

Once at the intersection of Brown Spur and Compress roads, the men climbed out and told Flippo to drive south. They climbed into a waiting car and followed him part of the way south to Highway 60, before turning around, and heading north.

Theft Suspect Is Arrested

HAYWOOD CITY — The Scott County sheriff's department has arrested Albert Ray, 27, for burglary and stealing.

Grievance Board To Meet Monday

The Police Advisory and Grievance Board has scheduled a meeting at 7 p.m. on Monday, Oct. 9, to hear a report on the City Court from Lt. Leonard Campbell.

Campbell refused today to discuss the report. However, police have been complaining of lengthy court dockets, which take up much of the officers' time, and the large number of dismissed cases.

City Court Judge James Sickal said he had no comments on the police complaints. He said he was unaware of them.

111 Enrolled In Foreign Languages

The 111 students enrolled in foreign language courses at Sikeston High School this year represent the success the school has had in rebuilding its language study program.

Foreign language study took a nose dive at the high school when Latin was dropped from the curriculum about 1950. No foreign language was taught again until the program was resumed in the fall of 1959. Spanish and French have been taught in the high school — since then and the enrollment in both languages has been fairly stablized for the past few years.

Nationally, the trend is for students to stay away from foreign languages altogether. Statistics show, however, that students in Sikeston are still drawn to foreign language courses in good numbers.

The chart below shows the number of students in these courses for the past five years.

	Spanish	French
1968-69	98	37
1969-70	104	27
1970-71	100	27
1971-72	56	34
1972-73	73	38

A closer look at the national figures show that 90 per cent of all Spanish students are in either first or second-year courses. Third and fourth-year students make up the other 10 per cent. In French, 75 per cent of the students are in first or second -year courses while only 25 per cent go on to a third or fourth year of study.

Jon Wright, Spanish teacher at the high school, said one reason foreign language study may be declining is because of easing of requirments for entering college.

"Many college-bound students won't take it unless they have to," said Wright.

Paula Hudspeth, French instructor, said more first-year students are staying on and taking two or more years of French than have done so in the past. Mrs. Hudspeth has the same number of students in second-year French this year as she had in first-year French last year. She called it an encouraging sign.

Tony Statler, administrative assistant in the public schools, gave other reasons for the sharp drop in the number of students in foreign language courses.

The board curriculum at the high school provides a large variety of classes, and many students will not use the three or four electives of foreign language study because they are allowed only about seven electives in four years, Statler said.

Also, many students find that courses they wish to take are taught at the same hour. Scheduling prevents them from taking all of the classes they would like to have.

To Take Bayou Bids

NEW MADRID — St. John's Bayou Basin Drainage District will receive bids from contractors for improvements to its main ditch adjacent to New Madrid until 10 a.m. Monday, according to Jesse H. Wilkins, secretary of the district.

Proposed improvements start northeast of Farrenburg where the main ditch is crossed by St. Louis Southwestern Railroad (Cotton Belt), then southerly for approximately five and one- half miles to the fork of the ditches, which is about a mile and a half south of the Charleston bridge or about a mile and one- fourth north of the present flood gates.

This stretch of the ditch is not as wide as that portion north of the railroad and causes a bottleneck.

Improvements include clearing both sides of the ditch, estimated to be about 150 acres of clearing, and widening of the ditch by removal of approximately 611,000 cubic yards of earth.

Interest in the project has been indicated by 13 proposed bidders from Missouri, Illinois, Kentucky, Tennessee and Arkansas who have requested plans and specifications.

Estimated costs have not been made available. However, Wilkins indicated $150,000 may be expected.

Wilkins said no bond issue is anticipated for the proposed improvements.

Members of the board of supervisors are Everett B. Gee, president, John H. Edwards, Tom F. Hunter, Thomas B. Allen and Bill Huffstutler.

TANAKA TO PEKING

The improvement in Sino-Japanese relations is occurring at a much faster rate than American officials believed possible. Japan will move one step closer to establishing formal diplomatic ties with China when Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka visits the mainland at the end of September at the invitation of Premier Chou En-lai. For many years, Japanese leaders resisted pressure from the intellectual community, the left- wing parties, and other groups to normalize relations with China. But President Nixon's failure to consult Tokyo before he announced his visit to Peking was interpreted as a green light for the Japanese to proceed on an independent course of action.

What is behind the recent Chinese - Japanese courtship? Chou is reported to feel that any normalization of relations must come before death of Mao Tse-tung, the leading wartime symbol of anti-Japanese resistance. Furthermore, the Chinese urgently need foreign technology to carry out their new Five -Year Plan.

The main obstacle to improved relations is Taiwan. Peking insists that Tokyo must break diplomatic ties with the Chiang Kai-shek regime, but it no longer demands abrogation of the Japan- Taiwan peace treaty as a precondition for negotiations. Japan appears ready to accept the Chinese position. At a news conference on Aug. 7, Tanaka said that, "No country in the world has been able to retain recognition of Taiwan while recognizing China, and Japan cannot expect to be an exception." In spite of their extensive investments on Taiwan, the Japanese view China as a source of needed raw materials.

It will not be easy for China to forget the past. From the Sino-Japanese War of 1894 through the Second World War, China suffered one humiliating defeat after another at the hands of Japan. George Ball, writing in the New York Times Magazine (June 25, 1972), estimates that between the invasion of Manchuria in 1931 and the end of World War II, Japan was responsible for as many as 15 million Chinese deaths. The Chinese still fear a revival of Japanese militarism, and they believe that Japan will attempt to fill the vacuum left by the reduction of American military forces in Southeast Asia. "The inherent contradictions in the relations of a backward China and an industrially striving Japan," writes Ball, "are almost certain to lead to rivalry for hegemonic primacy in the Far East -- a rivalry that will pit the magnetic pull of China's vast population against Japan's increasing economic leverage over the whole of Asia."

CONGRESS WRESTLES WITH FARM LABOR PROBLEM

While reports vary on the effect Cesar Chavez' lettuce boycott is having on the growers, one thing is certain — the issue is nearing the boiling point.

There is already great pressure on the Congress to settle the heady question of whether the nation does or does not need a national farm labor law. As Chavez makes more noise, and is listened to by more people the pressure on Congress increases.

The Democratic party, in its national platform, pledges support to the United Farm Workers boycott. And several days ago 31 Congressmen added their stamp of approval by signing a letter to the Secretaries of the 11 Federal Departments, asking them to ban "non- United Farm Workers" lettuce from governmental eating spots.

The problem for boycott promoters, however, is that the issue is not over union- picked lettuce versus non- union - picked lettuce, but over Chavez' objection to the fact that lettuce growers now compel their workers to pay money to the Teamsters union instead of compelling them to pay money to the UFW.

What Chavez wants, of course, is complete control of the U.S. farm labor force. He's not content that they simply be union members, as most of the lettuce workers are (Teamsters); he insists that they be members of the United Farm Workers Union and work under Chavez style terms — including the seven-day compulsory union shop (which gives the workers seven days to join the UFW or lose their jobs); the exclusive hiring hall (which gives Chavez henchmen the authority to refer whomever they please for jobs, wherever and whenever they please), and blacklisting privileges (which enable Chavez to kick any worker out of the union who he doesn't like).

More than a dozen national farm labor proposals already have been introduced in the present Congress. While differing in individual features, they are similar in that they are modeled after the basically bad National Labor Relations Act, and would damage farm employees and employers both by placing the authority of the Federal government behind the practice of firing workers who decline to pay money to a labor organization they neither want nor feel they need.

Also along the lines of the NLRA, the proposals all would extend to agriculture the very controversial provision of the NLRA which requires employers to bargain with union officials over the issue of compulsory unionism.

While it is doubtful that the controversy will heat up enough during the present Congress to tighen a legal noose around farm industry employees, there can be little doubt that farm labor legislation will be a major issue by the time the new Congress is seated next January. Chavez will see to that. He will also try to see that any legislative solution is to his liking.

Whether or not a national law is needed is something the Congress will have to wrestle with.

One thing they might keep in mind, and we will do our best to remind them now and again, is that the lettuce boycott (and before that the grape boycott) is feasible only because growers are in a position to force their employees into joining a union.

Where compulsory unionism, including the compulsory hiring hall, is not forbidden, Chavez can use his boycotts to force the growers to do his organizing for him. In other words, he can force the growers to sign contracts that force workers to join the union.

Any legislative solution must consider the employees as well as the UFW and the growers, because it's their rights that are violated by compulsory unionism.

If the workers were legally guaranteed the Right to Work in California, Chavez today would be elsewhere.

AN IMAGINARY INTERVIEW

Mr. Gerry Pratt, a West Coast newspaper columnist, reports an imaginary interview with an imaginary old man of the kind who ran businesses in the days when there was far less government interference with the individual and far more respect for government leaders. The old man reminded columnist Gerry Pratt that, "There was time before you were old enough to lick a stamp when I could mail a letter to New York for 2 - cents and it cost me $10 to telephone there. Today, he said, the postage is eight cents and the telephone call is down to $1 after six p.m. They are both utilities, the post office and the telephone company. One is run by the government and the rate has gone up 400 percent. The other is private and the cost has gone down about 900 per cent." The old man points out, "... the most inflationary cost in this country today is the cost of government."

Mr. Pratt's mythical old man also held strong views on the inconsistency of government: "... government sells the oil industry a billion dollars worth of oil leases in Alaska ... then comes along and stalls for two years before it decides you can build a pipeline to get out the oil they sold you. They put $800 million into an SST then because it was going to make as much noise as a 747 they paid another $300 million not to finish the job." There is no end to examples such as these, and Mr. Pratt touches on only a few. But they explain why respect for government andconfidence in government is disappearing as rapidly as the gold at Fort Knox.

There is little doubt that we are becoming highly specialized in almost every field of human endeavor. It is one of our strengths. Unfortunately, it's also one of our weaknesses.

The man who devotes his entire time and effort to one particular kind of problem develops special skills and knowledge which make him an expert in that particular area. Without exposure to other concerns, however, he may also develop "tunnel vision." Tunnel vision, says the Wall Street Journal, prevents executives from seeing beyond the special problems of their own departments. It results in a "narrow, one-sided inflexible view."

It's a common ailment — even among otherwise competent leaders. Most managers or supervisors get their start, of necessity, in one specialty or another. The tendency — at the bottom of the ladder — is for people to know more and more about less and less. Unfortunately, the more knowledgeable some individuals become in their own work, the more all-important it becomes, in their way of thinking, and less sensitive they are to the viewpoints of people in other departments.

How does a manager widen his own viewpoint and that of the people under him? The best way is by recognizing the dangers of "tunnel vision" and fighting against it from the very start. He uses every possible contact to boarden his point of view and to understand the problems of the other departments and the business as a whole.

He doesn't build a fence around his department. He makes an effort to understand the jobs of other executives and what their departments are trying to accomplish.

He doesn't automatically take issue with everything they say, and act as if their work is in competition with his own. Nor does he respond in kind when the other fellow does something shortsighted.

He also makes a real effort to see where his activity fits in the overall picture. He knows that many problems cut across organization lines — what's best for his section or department may not always be what's best for the company as a whole. He appreciates the difference between a department and company point of view.

You'll seldom find him mistaking his corner of the office for the whole building.

THE HARP LESSON

I listened attentively while the salesman told his story. I liked what he was saying. He knew his products thoroughly. He knew how and why they fit into our marketing plans. His arguments were objective and his timing was good.

Suddenly I knew that he had made a sale ... that he need do no more than ask for the order and my signature.

But he kept on talking.

Couldn't he see, I asked myself, that he had sold me? Didn't my mood, my manner, tell him that I was ready to buy?

Talk, talk, talk ...

I realized then that I was no longer listening. His voice had become a rasping distraction ... noise instead of words. My fingers, I noticed, were drumming the desk. I'd had it. My one aim now was to end this interminable monologue.

I stood up. "I'm sorry," I said. "I' can't give you any more time. I'm not interested, really."

"But I thought," he began. "I ...".

"You thought I was interested," I said. "Perhaps I was, but not now. I've changed my mind.

Before he left, I should have told him, I suppose that he'd talked himself out of an order. I didn't. I simply couldn't be bothered.

It is something of a paradox that talk, the medium of success in salesmanship, can also so easily become the medium of its failure.

Oliver Wendell Holmes put it well:

"Talking is much like playing the harp. There is as much in laying the hands on the strings to stop their vibrations as in twanging them to bring out their music."

Good salesmen know this. They tell their story and listen. They say what they have to say and shut up.

DAMAGE FROMDAY CARE

Although legislation to set up Federal "child development" centers was vetoed last year, many Congressmen are still pushing for these institutions. The "anti-poverty" bill contains a provision for day care centers very similar to the vetoed bill, and Senator Walter Mondale, one of its supporters, has been holding hearings before the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Subcommittee on children and youth.

Those who favor placing young children in these institutions should pay careful heed to the testimony of Dr. Dale Meers, a child psychoanalyst with Children's Hospital in Washington, D. C. Dr. Meers has done extensive research into the effects of institutional day care on young children and his findings are very revealing.

Testifying before Senator Mondale's subcommittee, Dr. Meers said: "Eight years ago I would have been unreservedly supportive of day care for the very young," but because of his research "became increasingly concerned that the use of early day care was fraught with psychiatric dangers that are as severe as those of the latch- key child of the streets."

"I know of few researchers," Dr. Meers continued, "who dispute the probability that mild to severe developmental failures derive from 'institutionalization.' "

While studying day care in Eastern Europe, Dr. Meers "was singularly depressed by what I saw... room after room, center after center, of passive and despondent youngsters... it seemed to me that one could visually discern direct relationship between the passivity and length of time the children had been enrolled." Dr. Meers' testimony should serve as a warning to all those who think children are better off in institutions than in homes. HLH.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON —Those who have talked to Lyndon Johnson lately say he is calmly getting his affairs in order for an early demise.

When he's depressed, he sometimes muses aloud about the low life expectancy of the Johnson menfolk. He recalls that his father died of a heart attack in his early sixties. A similar fate, suggests LBJ, now 64, probably awaits him.

As evidence that he believes his own dire speculation, he is quietly setting his estate in order. He sold the family TV interests, subject to government approval, for about $9 million. He is also withdrawing from business interests that require his active supervision and looking for investments that won't create problems for his heirs.

"He looks five moves down the chessboard," an intimate told us. "He doesn't want his wife and children to be left with any hard decisions."

The former President has withdrawn almost completely from the spotlight since he left the White House. He won't talk to the press, won't respond to attacks, won't permit even his friends to draw him into a discussion of national affairs.

This is so uncharacteristic of the Lyndon Johnson who dominated Washington for five years that he has become, in retirement, a mystery man. For an insight into this strange, new Johnston, we spoke to half a dozen of his closest friends who have kept in touch with him. We agreed to withhold their identities in return for their frank answers.

--LBJ'S PAINS --

They generally agree that Johnson went through severe withdrawal pains as the presidential power slowly slipped from his fingers four years ago. He departed Washington feeling he was a maligned and misunderstood man.

The angry antiwar protestors didn't seem to understand, in his view, that he really cared. They were never told how he stayed awake nights to check on American casualties. When soldiers in Vietnam wrote to him, he personally answered their letters. "He would spend as much time on them as he did on a document to the secretary of state," recalls a former aide.

Nor had any previous President sponsored so much social legislation. Dwight Eisenhower left 45 social programs on the books, costing just under $10 billion (B) a year. When Johnson departed, there were 435 programs with a yearly price tag of more than $25 billion(B).

He pushed through John Kennedy's voting rights law, which enfranchised millions of blacks in the South. Johnson began the war on poverty, aimed at ending hunger and ignorance. There was a model cities program to cure urban ills, medicare for the elderly and medicaid for the needy.

He felt his critics overlooked these giant achievements and emphasized instead his Texas mannerisms and his wheeler -dealer politics. He was disappointed when the poor and the downtrodden didn't hail him as their savior.

After he left the White House, recall friends, he alternately brooded and plunged into work on the LBJ library.

The criticism of his war policies, meanwhile, reached new crescendos. Not only did he start reflecting on the low Johnson life expectancy, but he began chain -smoking the cigarettes he had given up after his 1955 heart attack. He also ate his way up to 235 pounds.

-- CALORIES AND CIGARILLOS

Inevitably, he was struck earlier this year with another seizure. Now he must keep an inhalor handy for occasional quick breaths of oxygen. A house servant with an eye on the clock also brings him a pill and a glass of water at regular intervals.

He negotiated with his doctor and finally agreed to give up cigarettes for less frequent cigarillos. And he has brought his weight down to 209 pounds.

His attitude, meanwhile, has become almost serene. He no longer betrays the least concern over criticism nor bitterness over the nation's seeming ingratitude.

One friend describes LBJ's attitude toward his critics as "turning the other cheek."

"He's not mad at anybody," shrugs another.

Agrees still another: Johnson "feels that his record is there, that his deeds will remain after the criticism has faded, that history will vindicate him."

All the intimates who talked to us about Johnson remarked on his amazing new magnanimity. But one suggested that "all the hate —Johnson stories must hurt the old man inside."

Those who visit him down on the Pedernales say, except for his occasional morbid moods, he seems to be enjoying retirement. He stays on the ranch, takes off when he pleases to look at the deer or inspect the grass. "This is the first time in 3 years I am making my own schedule," he says happily.

Friends have been unable to get much out of him on the presidential election, except that he had a good visit with George McGovern and that McGovern treated him "with affection and respect."

His own term in the White House, he has said, was a "sobering experience." He seems quite satisfied, meanwhile, to let history be his judge.

Questions Fly Over Retirement Lease

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The state Board of Public Buildings played a little game of "button, button, who gets the lease" Tuesday.

It wound up in a continuation of a long political feud and with the taxpayers stuck with additional costs.

At stake is the question of where the public school retirement system is going to have its headquarters. Currently they are in a building owned by Thomas T. "Ted" Stewart of Jefferson City. They will stay there at an increased monthly rental until a lease contract is finally approved.

Here's what happened:

Last week Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth, the Republican member of the Board of Public Buildings, refused to sign the proposed lease. He charged political favoritism since Stewart is the Cole County campaign chairman of Edward L. Dowd, the Democratic nominee for governor.

Tuesday Gov. Warren E. Hearnes and Lt. Gov. William S. Morris, the two Democratic members of the board, said Danforth's charges were ridiculous and far-fetched.

Morris said if there were any politics involved, the contract wouldn't go to a friend of Dowd, who beat Morris for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in the primary.

Morris said he's sign the lease.

Hearnes said Dowd had not one iota of anything to do with the lease contract.

But he said he would join Danforth in refusing to sign the lease in order to clear the names of John D. Paulus, state director of public buildings, and of Stewart.

Danforth first asked 24 hours to think things over but he didn't wait that long. Soon after the meeting was over he sent the governor a letter saying he thought the lease was improper on two grounds.

"If a rebidding of the lease causes additional expense to the state," he said, "that is the fault of Mr. Paulus. If Mr. Paulus violated the rule of the Board of Public Builfings. I did not."

Hearnes fired back a quick reply saying the lease would be rebid.

"Because of the cloud caused by your unwarranted statements and accusations," Hearnes said, "I am joining you in refusing to sign the lease. There will be an additional cost to the state, but the responsibility will not be the faule of Mr. Paulus. The blame must and will be shared equally by you and me."

The governor said he would join Morris in signing the lease "if you would lay aside politics and allow savings to the taxpayers to be the sole objective....

"I am deeply sorry that your political instincts have caused you to take such action."

It takes two of three signatures to certify the lease.

Stewart had the low bid of $15,800 or a rate of $3.29 a square foot.

He sat in on Tuesday's board meeting and said his next bid would be considerably higher.

Paulus said earlier that if the next lowest acceptable bidder's property is leased, it would cost the state $6,160 more a year.

The property in question is on U. S. 50 West. Danforth said originally that it was too far out but the retirement system said the location was acceptable.

In his letter to the governor, Danforth said the lease was improper because the retirement system occupied the building Sept. 1 without a formal lease being approved.

The Standard Endorses

EDWARD L. DOWD, Candidate for Governor of Missouri.

This is the first of a series of short endorsements, with pictures, of the candidates for state office on the Democratic ticket.

Basically Ed Dowd is a lawyer. But that title barely scratches the surface of his achievements in the interest of law and order.

After attending St. Louis University, Washington University School of Law and St. Louis University School of Law, Mr. Dowd served as special agent for the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

He was elected Circuit Attorney of St. Louis in 1952. And, in 1964 was appointed president of the St. Louis Board of Police Commissioners.

Meanwhile, he practiced law in his Boatmen's Bank Building offices, lectured at the St. Louis Police Academy and served on the faculty of the St. Louis University School of Law.

Ed Dowd's efforts earned him many honors: Man of the Year Award of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce. Reader's Digest Distinguished Service Award. National Police Hall of Fame Award. St. Louis Argus Distinguished Public Service Award.

Ed and his wife Carol live in St. Louis and have eight children. He is a native Missourian who has spent most of his 54 years living in and working in behalf of the state.

He is honest, mature and capable to serve as our State leader.

Two Nevada Men In New Madrid Jail

NEW MADRID — Two Las Vegas, Nev. men, Travis Lee Webb, 36, and Orbry Eugene Marshall, 21, are serving 30- day county jail sentences after pleading guilty to charges of defrauding an innkeeper before Magistrate Leo Hedgepeth.

Judge Hedgepeth also levied $50 fines against each of the men charged with eating at the Pure Oil Truck Plaza cafe along Interstate 55 and then leaving without paying. The men reportedly told officers they knew they couldn't pay when they entered the cafe.

Roy Marshall was given 30- day suspended jail sentence and fined $50 on peace disturbance charge.

Charged with nonsupport, Roy Evans was ordered to pay $25 court costs and $35 monthly, beginning in October, for child support.

Fined on careless and imprudent driving charges were William Granville Gowan, $16; Martin Anthony Weaver, failure to yield right- of - way, $20; Darrell Glen Schuerenberg, $16; Harold Ray Miller, failure to exercise highest degree of care, $25; and George Levon Salter, also charged with having no operator license, $40.

Six paying fines of $20 each on charges of operating a vehicle without operator licenses were Joseph Vernon Edwards, Robert Louis Parr, Clarence Junior Parks, Eara Oscar Pierce, W. D. Simmon and Jess Robert Watters. Johnny Edwards was fined $16 on similar charge.

Raymond Carl Carpenter paid $35 fine on charge of following too closely while operating a vehicle. Berry D. Murphy was fined $28 on speeding charge.

Richard Dial was assessed $25 fine on charges of failure to have a trailer inspected and operating a vehicle without trailer license. John Douglas Dial paid$20 fine on charge of operating a vehicle with no vehicle license.

For failure to transfer license, Henry Howard Holt was fined $20. Ellis Dunn was fined $16 on a charge of operating vehicle with defective brakes. Amos Michael French was fined $20 for operating a vehicle with improper muffler system.

Judgment of $408.44 was awarded the curators of University of Missouri in a civil suit against William Frank and Tessie Taylor.

Pair Granted Probation

NEW MADRID — Two charged with felonies were granted probation after being sentenced Tuesday in Circuit Court before Judge William L. Ragland.

James McHaney, alias Mahany, of Lilbourn received consecutive sentences of two years for burglary and two years for larceny. He pleaded guilty to breaking into the home of L. B. Milton of New Madrid Route Two on Sept. 2 when a rifle and portable radio valued at $75 were allegedly stolen. He was granted probation without supervision.

Henry Johnson of Baderville, charged with felonious assault July 23 on Charles Johnson with a five-inch hunting knife, was granted probation without supervision after he received a two-year sentence on his guilty plea.

Glenda Jean Abner of East Prairie Star Route was divorced from Charles David Abner and restored to her maiden name of Figley.

Custody of three children, $200 monthly child support and a divorce was granted Alice Elaine Malcolm of Sikeston in her suit against Allen K. Malcolm.

Irene Crumley Penrod of Portageville was divorced from Robert Louis Penrod. She received custody of two children and $25 per week for each child for support.

Custody of seven children and a divorce were awarded Lucille Perkins in her suit against David Robert Perkins.

Blades Motor Sales Inc. was granted $2,065.21 judgment against Edward Schaffer of Lilbourn.

Five Treated

NAACP Convention Scheduled Here

The Sikeston and Charleston branches will co-host the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People state convention Oct. 20-22 at Ramada Inn.

Activities for the convention will include progress reports of various branches throughout the state and workshop sessions. Local NAACP president John Scott estimates 500 to 700 people will attend.

Dr. John A Morsell of New York City, assistant executive director of the national branch, will be guest speaker at the freedom fund banquet on Saturday, Oct. 21, at 2:30 p.m.

Dr. Morsell joined the NAACP staff in 1956, and, since 1965, has been responsible for general administrative supervision of the NAACP Special Contribution Fund.

He is presently a member of the New York City Board of Higher Education.

State Old Age Assistance To Be Adjusted

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — State old age assistance grants will be adjusted to allow welfare recipients to keep a 20 per cent increase in Social Security benefits, the governor's office and the state Welfare Division announced today.

Federal legislation providing the 20 per cent Social Security increase did not require states to pass on the increase to welfare recipients. Normally, the old age assistance grants — a form of welfare — would have been reduced, but the state obtained permission to increase the over-all level of combined grants by $20 a month.

Regardless of the changes, all Social Security recipients who also are on welfare will get more money, said state Welfare Director Proctor N. Carter.

Persons receiving the maximum in old age assistance of $85 a month mya hve that reduced, depending on their Social Security increase.

But the old age assistance reduction will not be more than $5 a month, Carter said.

Increases in old age assistance will go to persons under the $85 Maximum, depending on the amount of their Social Security increase.

Carter cited this example:

If a person is receiving the old age assistance maximum of $85 a month and his Social Security payment is increased by $22 a month, his old age assistance payment will be reduced to $85 a month.

The minimum federal social security payments are $84.50 A month and the maximum is $267.80.

Of the 93,444 old age assistance recipients in Missouri, about 65,000 also receive Social Security benefits.

About 33,000 of those receiving both grants will get the full 20 per cent increase with no change in their old age assistance payments. Another 19,000 will receive the Social Security increase and also an increase in their old agreassistance grant. About 13,000 will have their old age assistance reduced.

Of the 29,000 old age assistance recipients not receiving Social Security benefits, most will have no change old age payments since they are receiving the maximum.

Frankly Speaking

By Thomas F. Eagleton

Most Americans probably think that earthquakes occur only in the western states of California, Nevada and Alaska, but Southeast Missouri is also a major quake area.

A great deal of research into the nature and causes of earthquakes has been conducted in recent years, but most of it has been concerned with West Coast quakes. Not enough research has been done on the unique characteristics of Missouri earthquakes.

Many Missourians have heard or read about the devastating New Madrid earthquake of 1811 —an upheaval that shook the earth violently, uprooted great trees, blackened the skies for hundreds of miles, and caused the formation of Tennessee's Reelfoot Lake.

Fortunately, a quake of that size has not occurred in Missouri since, and the southeastern part of the state was so sparsely populated in 1811 that loss of life and property damage were minimized.

But since then the area surrounding the Bootheel has often been shaken by minor quakes and tremors, lending a distinct air of uncertainty to the lives of those who reside in Southeast Missouri.

Worldwide research on earthquakes —much of it financed with government money at leading West Coast universities —leads scientists to believe that within the next decade it may be possible to predict earthquakes before they happen and that someday we may be able to prevent them.

Most U.S. earthquake research has been concerned with the geological conditions that exist in the West, and too little attention has been paid to the unique geology of Southeast Missouri.

However, this situation should soon change. My bill to increase funding for earthquake research —just passed by Congress —will provide $8 -10 million for research by the National Science Foundation during the 1973 fiscal year. I have received assurances from NSF officials that at least some of this money will go for studies on Missouri quakes.

While some fine research on Missouri earthquakes is already being done locally —by Missouri educational institutions -it is hoped that a boost from the National Science Foundation will make it possible to mount an expanded program to discover the causes of the quake situation in Southeast Missouri.

As this work progresses, we will draw closer to the time when we can provide greater protection of the safety and well -being of many Missouri citizens who now live with the possibility of a terrifying and devastating quake hanging over their heads.

Top Girl Watcher Tells How Its Done

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In a square crowded with beautiful women, debonair Joe Beagin, balding head of the International Society of Girl Watchers, is showing how it's done.

It's all right, he explains learnedly, to turn the head toward the receding figure of a passing woman, but it's a no-no to make a U-turn and start to follow.

To demonstrate, Beagin walks arm in arm with a model as three attractive women stroll past. The Beagin technique is to push his companion ahead of him as he steps back and turns his head to observe with slightly bulging eyes.

This gambit is intended for use by husband or boyfriend in that riskiest of all situations for a girl watcher — diverting his attention from his female companion to another attraction.

The idea is not to get caught, he advises the 17, members of his organization, ranging from a 13-year-old rookie to an 85-year-old seasoned vet. Annaul dues are $6.

This week Beagin, who devotes full time to the organization and its pursuits, is advising the annual "Girl Watchers Week" at Century City, a skyscraper business complex in West Los Angeles containing an extimated 4, short- skirted secretaries.

Sensitive to charges of "male chauvinism," watcher sponsors hired Beagin and recruited a corps of local secretaries and models to establis decorum and hand out tickets to offenders.

"We abhor improper watching," inists Beagin, who has a 24-year-old son. "Being obvious and ungentlemanly about it spoils the pasttime for everyone."

On the other hand, some members of the ticket corps suggest that Beagin's tongue- in - cheek techniques may be too direct.

"I don't think the head should be turned," insists Cricket Goldenbee, whose blonde hair contrasts with purple hotpants.

Adds another blonde ticket -giver, Jerry Gorney, "I can tell when somebody turns around to look at me. You know, it's like you can tell when someone's staring at you."

As for women's lib, they've noticed too. Wrote President Virginia Carter of the Los Angeles chapter of the National Organization for Women:

"We protest Girl Watching Week because it invades the privacy of women who must work or shop in Century City ... forcing them either to remain indoors for a week, or to submit meekly to the unwanted, leering scrutiny of girl watchers."

Scotsman Rules Own Islands; Has South Pacific Kingdom

SYDNEY (AP) — The King of the Cocos walks through his island kingdom in bare feet, a dagger at his waist.

He is John Clunies-Ross, a Scotsman about 45, whose coral domain in the Indian Ocean is about to be shaken by the Australian government. An official report tells of his neofeudal role as overlord of the 483 Malays who work his big copra plantations.

The uncrowned king is a descendant of a Scottish adventurer who in 1827 was the first permanent settler of the Cocos, a cluster of 27 coral islands 1,720 miles northwest of Perth. In 1886 Queen Victoria granted the islands, which have a land area of 5.5 square miles, to the clan in perpetuity.

According to the official report, attitudes have changed little since then. G.M. Kerr, an assistant secretary in Australia's External Territories Department, reported there is no written law, and the only court is made up of Clunies-Ross, his plantation manager, James Dixon, and six headmen. If there is an appeal, Clunies-Ross sits as the sole judge.

The average weekly wage is about $2.40, paid in tokens which can only be redeemed at a Clunie's-Ross store, despite an Australian agreement with Clunies-Ross in 1956 — when Britain handed over administration of the Cocos to Australia — that he would introduce Australian currency.

Australians who have lived on Cocos say the natives are well cared for.

And Clunies-Ross reportedly has brought one facet of modern life to his people. He is said to have achieved zero population growth by distributing birth control pills free.

Under the 1956 agreement, Clunies-Ross sold or leased 364 acres of West Island to the Australian government for use as an air base and communications center.

The remainder is under his direct rule, and the official report said villagers are forbidden to leave without his permission. If they do, they are not permitted to return.

Clunies-Ross also maintains a Howard Hughes-like secrecy by deciding who can and cannot visit his kingdom.

His wife and six children live in England and he is believed to spend six months every other year with them there.

John Peacock, Australia's minister of external territories, told Parliament Wednesday that he plans to visit the islands in the next few weeks to check conditions. He said "a fundamental reappraisal" of relationships between ClunesRoss and the inhabitants is needed.

BIGGEST BALLET SEASON

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) — The New York City Ballet had its biggest audience for a single performance this summer on July 6, at its summer home in the Saratoga Performing Arts Center.

Attendance was ahead of previous years each week and therefore, the company had its biggest Saratoga season ever, with an over-all increase of 19.5 per cent over last year, or approximately 13,000 more people. Total for the season was more than 80,000.

The company, which did a "Salute to Stravinsky" week at Lincoln Center in early summer, did many of those works at Saratoga, bringing more than 20 new ballets this year, which generated much interest.

Ann Landers

Snippy Niece Should Be Put In Place

Dear Ann Landers: I am a woman in my 50's so this letter is not the complaint of a sensitive young girl. I have a niece who is 30 years of age--and she just oves to latch on to me at family parties, especially when others are within hearing distance, and tell me how her mother (my younger sister) always used me as the example of the "bad girl" in the family during her growing-up years. Her favorite quote is, "Mom would always say to us, 'You don't want to grow up to be like your Aunt Betty, do you?. "

I have been deeply hurt by these references to the past and cannot for the life of me figure out why her mother would do this to me. I was not the perfect girl, but then I was no tramp and I see no justification for such vilification. I would never permit a child of mine to treat any of my sisters in this manner.

Another family is coming up and I dread it. Can you think of a tactful way to head off my niece's inevitable comments? ---Deeply Hurt

Dear D. H.: There is no tactful way to head off a bubblehead with a mouth that runs on a trolley. Your best approach is to stop her dead on her tracks. The minute she starts to spin the broken record, let her have it. Tell her you are bored with that piece of history and if she can't think of anything else to say to you, silence would be a welcome improvement.

Dear Ann Landers: You said in a column not long ago that it is in poor taste to make reference to gifts on a printed invitation. What is your opinion of an invitation that suggests to guests that they bring their own liquor to a 25th wedding anniversary party? Thank you. ---MGB

Dear MGB: "Bring Your Own Bottle" parties aren't my cup of tea, although they serve a purpose for some people and some occasions. A 25th anniversary with written invitations is a special event, however, and tradition says the host should furnish the refreshments----whatever they are.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 16 years old and tired of people telling me that my generation is the worst ever. Why don't they understand that every generation of parents and grandparents were horrified by "the younger generation" and believed they were going straight to the dogs! Will you please do teen-agers everywhere a favor and print the following paragraph?

"Childern of today love luxury. They have bad manners, contempt for authority, and they show disrespect for their elders. They no longer rise when elders enter the room. They contradict their parents, chatter in company, gobble up the dainties on the table, cross their legs and tyrannize their teachers."

Those lines sound as if they were written by someone who had forgotten his youth. Actually they are a paraphrase of what was written by Socrates, somewhere between 469 and 399 B. C. So you see Ann, we are not so different after all. ---Hellcat 1972 Model

Dear Cat: I've said it before and I'll say it again. A generation that is against war, interested in social justice, deplores hypocrisy and racism and is determined to save the environment can't be all bad. I see a great deal to admire in this present generation of young people. Moreover, I predict many of the 1972 Hellcats will be the ultra-conservative pussycats by the time they have children of their own.

Rodery-Lancaster

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Rodery

DEXTER ——The wedding of Miss Sheila Lancaster and Kenneth Rodery was solemnized Saturday at South Pleasant Valley General Baptist Church.

The Rev. Marion Gipson, pastor of New Bethel Baptist church, officiated. The program of nuptial music was played by Leann Cryts. Darrell Rodery, a brother of the groom sang, "Whither Thou Goest."

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Lancaster of Dexter. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Rodery of Bernie.

The couple repeated double -ring vows at 7:30 in the evening as they stood before an altar setting of arched candelabras with white tapers. Seven gold -branched candelabras holding white tapers were on each side. The candelabras were strung with boxwood greenery.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor -length gown of white peau de soie with long, tapered sleeves. The bodice featured a shaped neckline and a gathered skirt which formed a train and fell in a fan shape to the floor.

White lace flowers in staggered rows decorated the hem and train of the skirt. These same flowers ringed the shaped neckline.

The bridal veil was a three tiered finger tip veil of illusion, attached to a double net dior bow. The bridal bouquet of white miniture carnations, pom -poms and margarita daisys with blue baby' breath were tied with blue ribbon and love knots.

Mrs. Lancaster, mother of the bride, wore a mint -green, double -knit dress with lowered neckline, black accessories and a corsage of white pompoms with gold ribbon.

Mrs. Rodery, mother of the bridegroom, selected a hunter -green, double -knit dress, enhanced by matching accessories and a corsage of white pom -poms with gold ribbon.

The maid of honor and sister to the bride, Miss Sandy Lancaster, created her dress, a floor -length, blue and white dotted swiss with scopped neckline, gathered skirt and short, puffed sleeves. A white ribbon sash adorned the high -waisted skirt. Her headdress was a double bow of the same material. Her flowers were two blue margarita daisies with greenery and a white ribbon tied in lover's knots.

Bridesmaid was Lisa Lancaster, younger sister of the bride, and her dress was identical to that of the maid of honor. Her dress was designed and made by the bride, who also designed her own wedding dress.

Darrell Rodery, brother of the bridegroom served as best man. Timmy Rodery, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsmen. Ushers were Mitchell Allen and Terry Brasher, cousins of the bride, also served as candelighters.

After the ceremony, a reception was held in Dexter Community Center. The couple entered through large doors into a hall decorated with a best -wishes sign over the guest book which graced a small table covered with a white lace cloth. The guest book was attended by Miss Brenda Rodery, the groom's sister.

The reception room was decorated with accents of blue and white, the bride's chosen colors.

Mrs. Larry Thompson and Mrs. Kenneth Ledbetter were hostesses for the reception. Miss Emma Davis, Mrs. Marvin Ross, Mrs. Larry Richardson, and Miss Sharon Blunt served the guests.

After the reception, the couple was showered with blue and white rice while departing for a honeymoon in the Ozarks.

The bride is a 1972 graduate of Dexter High School and the groom is a 1971 graduate of Bernie High School. He is employed at Dexter Memorial Hospital. The couple will returned to its new home in Bernie Tuesday.

Out -of -town guests were Linda Sullenger and Mrs. Cline Allen of Lilbourn; Mrs. Jerry Brasher and Robin and Tony, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brasher and Mr. and Mrs. A.B. Ward, Gary Ward, of Portageville; Mr. and Mrs. Edsel Edwards and Mrs. Thelbert Coleman of Bloomfield; Mr. and Mrs. Larry Richardson of Jonesboro, Ark.; Mr. and Mrs. J.B. Lancaster, Mr. and Mrs. James Lancaster and Mr. and Mrs. Don Lancaster and daughters of Risco; Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Hicks and Mr. and Mrs. C.N. Triplett of Essex; Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Wheeler of Powe; Lloyd Lancaster of Malden; N.F. Mobley of Poplar Bluff; Randall Fowler of New Madrid; Miss Debra Huffman, Mrs. H.C. Huffman of Malden; Mrs. Fredia Blevins of Bernie; and Carolyn Warren of Clarkton.

Professor's Wife Becomes Cook For McGovern Family

WASHINGTON (AP) — For months, Eleanor McGovern wrestled with a problem that plagues most politicians' wives: how to keep the home fires burning from the campaign trail.

Her answer: Libby Strauss, a good-natured Florida woman who once volunteered to cook breakfast for Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern and his family during the Democratic convention at Miami Beach. Now she's the resident McGovern housemother whose favorite pastime is turning out gourmet specialities while Mrs. McGovern campaigns for her husband.

"I went to the hotel to cook breakfast for them and came out five days later," Mrs. Strauss said in an interview at her new headquarters, the McGovern's Japanese-style house in Washington.

"I suppose you could say I'm Eleanor's assistant," she said, "kind of a surrogate mother. Right now I act as everything: secretary, shopper, cook. They gave me carte blanche."

Mrs. Straus arrived at the McGovern household two weeks ago, bringing along two folders of her own recipes. "Oh heavens, there must be at least 1,500 of them," she said. "I brought everything: hor d'oeuvres, souffles, mousses, everything."

Ever since, she's been turning out dishes like chicken tetrazzini and aubergines farcies (stuffed eggplant) for the McGovern entourage of children, grandchildren, in-laws and friends.

Steven, 20, and Mary 17, live at home; so do Susan, 26, her husband James Rowen and their 8-month-old son, Matthew. Ann McGovern Mead, 27, lives nearby with her two children, Timothy, 2, and Kevin, 3 months. Ann's husband, Wilber Mead, is a student at Augustana College in South Dakota. Another daughter, Terry, 23, lives in Charlottesville, Va. but often comes home on weekends.

"I never know who's going to be here for dinner, and I never say no when they ask if friends can come for dinner," said Mrs. Strauss. "I never say no in my own home."

Home for the 47-year old Mrs. Strauss is a Miami suburb where she has lived for 18 years with her husband, Dr. Harold Strauss, a professor at the University of Miami, and their three children, ages 19, 16 and 8.

Her biggest worry, she said is the family she's left behind, but she added: "When I call home, they just say 'Don't worry, mother.'"

Mrs. Strauss said she shops for the McGoverns "on a limited budget, even for entertaining. I don't buy costly foods, and we eat a lot of chicken and fish." She volunteers her own time and services "because I believe everyone should donate his best efforts to the campaign. By a quirk, I fit in here."

POLLY'S POINTERS

Lemon Aid to Cleaning Stains from Dishwasher

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—I am answering Mrs. L. A. S. who wants to remove fruit stains from the wood top of her dishwasher. The booklet that came with mine says in part not to let water stand on such a top and if it becomes stained or dirty to sand with No. 000 or No. 0000 sandpaper and then wipe area with a cloth soaked with nontoxic mineral oil. Soda water is good for cleaning the top, too.—MRS. J. C.

DEAR POLLY—I would like to tell Mrs. L. A. S. that my sister bleaches the wood top of her dishwasher with lemon juice. When stains are removed it is rinsed with clear water and let dry. After a few hours of drying it is wiped with mineral oil but be careful to remove all the excess oil.—MRS. F. M.

DEAR GIRLS—If you do not have sandpaper or mineral oil on hand steel wool (without soap) and vegetable oil work just great, too. Let oil soak in for about one-half hour and then wipe off.—POLLY

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—Can anyone tell me if anything can be done with stainless steel tableware that was cleaned with silver polish that left a cloudy look and stains that I have not been able to remove.—MRS. E. J. W.

DEAR POLLY—My Pet Peeve is with florists who surely could be more original in their funeral arrangement designs. After all these years of arranging they surely could do something more original and artistic than gladiola sprays in a wicker basket. Many of these flowers are later sent to hospitals and it must be depressing to get what is obviously a funeral arrangement put in one's room.—MRS. G. D. C.

DEAR POLLY—Our newlywed budget did not allow for buying a plastic picnic tablecloth. I took four plastic trash can liners, slit them open down one side and across the bottom and sewed them together on the sewing machine. Instant picnic cloth! The size of the cloth wanted will determine the number of bags required.

When traveling put all your cosmetics in your shower cap and save or shorten many a clean-up job.

If it starts to rain and you do not have any plastic to throw over clothes being taken to the laundromat put them in your traveling clothes bag. Hanging items can be carried in the regular way and folded things slip in easily.—MRS. L. L.

RANGE WAS A MILE

DOVER, England (AP) — A 1,700-year-old tower that carried a catapult capable of hurling blocks nearly a mile has been uncovered by archeologists working in the center of this English Channel port.

The tower, probably once 25 feet high, dominated the wall of a Roman shore fort.

Carter To Discuss Changes

POPLAR BLUFF — Proctor N. Carter, Missouri division of Welfare director, will discuss recent federal legislation, changes taking place in the state welfare program and the implications of recent federal requirements Thursday at the annual meeting of Missouri Association for Social Welfare.

The meeting at Aledco's Copper Kettle Restaurant on Highway 67 North will open with a dinner at 6:30 p.m.

Carter has held the position of Division of Welfare director since 1945 and is considered to be one of the most experienced welfare administrators in the nation.

The sponsoring organization, Missouri Association for Social Welfare, draws its membership from both professional and private citizens. Its meetings are open to the public and participants are invited to attend from a 15-county area: Bollinger, Butler, Cape Girardeau, Dunklin, Iron, Madison, Mississippi, New Madrid, Pemiscot, Perry, Scott, Ste. Genevieve, St. Francois, Stoddard and Wayne counties.

Edward Battaglino is chairman of the Southeast Division of Missouri Association for Social Welfare.

Reservations for the dinner may be made through Mrs. Violet Shipton, County Welfare Office, Poplar Bluff 785-6458 or Mrs. Frances Lewis, Regional Diagnostic Clinic, Poplar Bluff 785-0101.

Dandelion greens make a tasty salad when blanched, chilled and served with dressing.

Deaths

ROSETTA FORTNER

DEXTER — Mrs. Rosetta Fortner, 85, died Tuesday at 10:20 p.m. in a Poplar Bluff hospital.

She was born April 23, 1887 in Hillsboro, Ill., and moved to Bloomfield in 1895 where she lived until moving to Dexter 17 years ago. She was the daughter of the late Ike and Alice Melinda Gleen.

On May 14, 1906, she married Charles Henry Fortner of Bloomfield, who preceded her in death along with two children.

Surviving are four daughters, Mrs. Ina Eaker of Morehouse, Mrs. Aline Moss of Detroit, Mich., Azula Davis of Poplar Bluff and Milistean Dwiggens of St. Louis ; two brothers, Clayton Glenn of Bloomfield and Clarence Glenn of Bell City; three sisters, Mrs. Murtle Hoosier and Carrie Hopkins of Bloomfield and Pearl Sheppard of Bell City; and 16 grandchildren and 41 great- grandchildren.

Services will be held Friday at 2 p.m. in Watkins and Sons Funeral Home in Dexter with the Rev. John Tucker of Essex officiating.

Burial will be in Bloomfield Cemetery.

Visitation will begin at 10:30 a.m. Thursday.

LBJ INTERNS

AUSTIN (AP) — Thirty-one students from the Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs are getting a different perspective on their government studies this summer — they're serving as interns in government offices throughout Texas and across the country.

Summer internships are required between first and second year studies for every student at the LBJ School, a graduate program of the University of Texas at Austin.

The Missouri State Park Board is the first state agency to participate in a new federal work program called "Green Thumb". Projects such as the construction of new nature trails and scenic overlooks are being done by workers in this program all of whom are at least 55 years old.

Judge Sets Trial Dates

BENTON — Trial dates were set for two cases Friday in Circuit Court before Judge Marshall Craig.

Trial was set for Oct. 30 for Jermone Lawarence Eftink of Chaffee Route One, on charges of hotrodding and squealing tires on public roads. On March 24 the Municipal Court of Oran found him guilty and fined him $50 plus $10 court cost. Eftink entered a plea of not guilty and appealed the case to Circuit Court.

Trial also was set for Dec. 11 on a suit brought against State Farm Mutural Insurance Co. by Ray Merrick Jr., who seeks $8,500 for injuries he received Sept. 27, 1971, when he was struck by a pickup truck driven by Ray A. Gramlisch. His parents, Ray Merrick Sr. and Barbara J. Merrick, are also seeking $1,200 for hospital, drug and medical expenses.

In a case removed from the trial docket and passed until further order, Richard Gourley and his wife, Schree Gourley, are seeking $15,000 in a damage suit against Coca- Cola Bottling Co. of Sikeston.

NEW YORK (AP) — Is Texas Tech for real or is this the real Texas?

The answer will come in Lubbock Saturday night when the Texas Longhorns, unimpressive in their opening game, begin their quest for a fifth consecutive Southwest Conference championship against the Red Raiders of Texas Tech, who were most impressive in whomping Utah 45-3 and New Mexico 41-16.

"We didn't play a poised, polished game," said Darrell Royal after Texas' 23-10 triumph over Miami, Fla. "I was pleased with the effort and I'm delighted with the win, but I'm really concerned about the kind of football team we have."

So is Tech's Jim Carlen.

"Texas," he said, "is a solid club in virtually every area and I think their offensive line is the strongest we've seen since we've been here. But we're a relaxed team and we're looking forward to playing Texas. We know most of their team because we tried to recruit them."

The longshot is tempting, but the Longhorns are the champs until someone proves otherwise. Texas.

Tulane at Michigan—Can Tulane do to Michigan what it did to Georgia? Green Wave turns blue. Michigan.

West Virginia at Stanford—In the immortal words of Satchel Paige, "Don't look back; someone may be gaining on you." Sometimes, it's worse to look ahead, which Stanford might be doing to next week's clash with Southern Cal. Ergo ... West Virginia.

Purdue at Notre Dame—"You can't assess a team on one game," says Northwestern's Alex Agase, a 37-0 loser to Notre Dame, "but Notre Dame is always good and it's a question if they are going to be great." Purdue will be out for blood following last year's fourth-quarter 8-7 loss and two tough losses this season to Bowling Green and Washington. Do Boilermakers have blood? Notre Dame.

Tennessee vs. Auburn at Birmingham—Bill Battle has lost three games in two years at Tennessee, two of them to Auburn. Time for revenge. Tennessee.

Wisconsin at Louisiana State—Wisconsin has won both starts by 31-7 scores and that could be the score of this one, too ... in reverse. Louisiana State.

Florida State at Kansas—Battle of the bomb between David Jaynes of Kansas and Gary Huff of ... Florida State.

Michigan State at Southern California—"Michigan State has as many fast backs as there are in the world," says USC's John McKay. "We'll have to play much better to prevent them from getting outside." Oh! Southern Cal.

Colorado at Oklahoma State— Buffs are thinking national championship. Colorado.

North Carolina at Ohio State—Woody Hayes says last week's layoff will put the Buckeyes at a disadvantage. "At least we didn't lose over the weekend," he said. Nor this weekend, either. Ohio State.

Iowa at Penn State—Hawkeyes are rebuilding and could surprise. Lions' defense, though, is too tough. Pen State.

Oregon at UCLA—UCLA's Wishbone won't score 68, like Oklahoma's did against Oregon, but it'll score enough. UCLA.

North Carolina State at Georgia—Bulldogs bounce back. Georgia.

Illinois at Washington—Illini have just played Michigan State and Southern Cal with Penn State, Ohio State and Michigan just around the Washington corner. Six killer games. This is a Sixkiller game ... and the Upset Special of the Week. Illinois.

Rutgers at Princeton—They started the whole thing back in 1869 and Rutgers won 6-4. This is 1972. Princeton.

ONE BY LAND

The University of Texas has covered more ground by rushing than any other major college football team during the last five seasons. The Longhorns averaged 312.5 yards per game rushing from 1967 through 1971, while second place Oklahoma ran for 297.3. Houston, Arizona State, Ohio State, Notre Dame, Penn State, Michigan, Colorado and Dartmouth rounded out the top 10 teams during the period

Scott Helping Sox Out

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

George Scott helped the Boston Red Sox win a pennant in 1967 and could help them lose one in 1972.

The former Boston slugger, dealt to the Milwaukee Brewers last winter, returned to haunt the Red Sox Tuesday night in the midst of their tension-filled American League East baseball race.

"If I say I'm not fired up playing here, I'd be telling a lie," Scott said after hitting a two-run homer at Fenway Park that led the Brewers to a significant 6-4 triumph over Boston. "After all, I played here for six years and I have a lot of friends here."

The defeat cut Boston's lead in the East to a mere half game over the Detroit Tigers and kept the four-team race in an extremely nervous state.

The Tigers and New York Yankees, both idle Tuesday night, gained ground on the Red Sox. The Yankees moved within 2½ games of Boston and are tied with the Baltimore Orioles, who lost 3-2 to the Cleveland Indians.

In the other American League games, the Kansas City Royals stopped the Chicago White Sox 2-1 and the California Angels nipped the Texas Rangers 2-1. Rain washed out a twi-night doubleheader between the Minnesota Twins and Oakland A's.

National League scores: Pittsburgh 5, Philadelphia 1; Chicago 6, Montreal 0; Atlanta 10, Cincinnati 9; San Francisco 5, Houston 2; New York 3, St. Louis 1 and Los Angeles 7, San Diego 3.

The Red Sox were unable to hold a 4-0 lead built on early two-run homers by Carl Yastrzemski and pitcher Marty Pattin. The Brewers finally caught up in the eighth after getting a run in the fifth on Johnny Briggs' homer and one in the sixth on Ellie Rodriguez' runscoring hit.

Brock Davis touched off Milwaukee's winning rally with a bunt single and eventually came around with the first run on Rodriguez' sacrifice fly. Joe Lahoud then reached base on Yastrzemski's error at first base and Scott promptly put Pattin's pitch into the seats.

Chris Chambliss and Ray Fosse hit consecutive home runs in the fourth inning to lead Cleveland over Baltimore, dealing the Orioles their 32nd onerun defeat of the year.

Chambliss also singled home a Cleveland run in the sixth.

The Orioles scored a run in the fifth on singles by Johnny Oates and Don Buford and a sacrifice fly by Bobby Grich, then scored their second run on Oates' ninth-inning homer.

Steve Busby pitched a fivehitter and Ed Kirkpatrick slammed a home run as Kansas City beat Chicago and dropped the White Sox four games behind the A's. The defeat lowered Oakland's pennant-winning magic number to four in the West.

Rookie Billy Parker hit a home run and Andy Messersmith fired a three-hitter to lead California over Texas. Parker's homer came off Mike Paul in the second inning. The Angels added the eventual winning run in the sixth when Lee Stanton scored on third baseman Jim Mason's throwing error.

Blass Nears 20

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Roberto Clemente would dearly love to get his 3,000th major league hit in Pittsburgh. But the Pirates' Steve Blass isn't too concerned where he gets his 20th victory—or, for that matter, whether he gets it at all.

"Either I do or I don't," Blass said Tuesday night after winning his 19th of the baseball season, scattering eight Philadelphia hits as the Pirates beat the Phillies 5-1.

"I certainly want 20," added Blass, who would become the first Pittsburgh hurler to reach that plateau since Vernon Law did it in 1960, "but I'm not going to worry about it."

Blass will have one more regular-season start, then he'll rest until the start of the National League playoffs against Cincinnati.

It's likely that the 30-year-old right-hander will open the bestof-five playoff Oct. 7 against the Reds' Don Gullett.

But unlike Blass, Gullett had his problems Tuesday night. The Atlanta Braves ripped him for seven runs in six innings and handed him his 10th loss in 18 decisions en route to a 10-9 victory over Cincinnati.

In other National League games, the New York Mets downed St. Louis 3-1, the Chicago Cubs blanked Montreal 60, San Francisco defeated Houston 5-2 and Los Angeles beat San Diego 7-3.

In the American League, Milwaukee topped Boston 6-4, Cleveland edged Baltimore 3-2, California clipped Texas 2-1, and Kansas City nipped the Chicago White Sox 2-1. Minnesota's twinight doubleheader at Oakland was rained out.

Clemente picked up a pair of singles against the Phillies to raise his major league hit total to 2,996, putting him just four short of a lofty mark reached by only eight other players in the history of the game.

Pittsburgh has two more games in Philadelphia before returning home to face New York and Pirates Manager Bill Virdon announced right after that game that, if Clemente reached 2,999, he'd be benched until the start of the series with the Mets.

"We'd like him to get 3,000 at home," Virdon said—and Clemente echoed the sentiment.

"That's what I want," Roberto said. "I play all my life in Pittsburgh. I'd like to get my big hit there."

The Bucs bunched all their runs against the Phils in the sixth inning. Al Oliver doubled in two, Manny Sanguillen singled for two more and Blass singled for the final run.

Ralph Garr, Dusty Baker and Earl Williams drove in two runs apiece for the Braves, who battered Gullett and two relievers for 13 hits. The decisive run, however, came in the top of the ninth inning on Larvell Blanks' sacrifice fly.

Koosman Masters Cardinals , 3-1

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Lefthander Jerry Koosman of the New York Mets had a nohitter on his mind Tuesday night against the St. Louis Cardinals but settled for a 3-1 victory with relief help.

"I had it on my mind after the third inning," said Koosman, who pitched perfectly through five innings and held the Cards hitless through 6 1-3 innings. "Before that I was overjoyed with my control."

Koosman, boosting his record to 10-12 during a struggling season, walked Jorge Roque to start the sixth after the Mets had staked him to a 3-0 lead.

In the seventh he retired Cards rookie Mike Tyson but surrendered a walk to Luis Melendez before Joe Torre, a mean hitter against the Mets, rifled a high, inside fast ball to leftfield to break the speel.

"It was a strike all right," said the 6-foot-2 Koosman, who by then had firm visions of fashioning the first no-hitter in the Mets 11 seasons.

"I might have had bad positioning on the pitch," he said, "because I'd thrown him inside two times before and gotten him out. Maybe I should have gone outside."

Koosman got through the seventh by retiring Ted Simmons and Skip Jutze following the Torre hit and also survived Roque's leadoff triple in the eighth before yielding to a twoout Simmons homer, his 15th in the ninth.

Tug McGraw, recording his 25th save, came on to retire Roque on a strikeout after Jutze followed the Simmons blast with a single, the fourth Cards hit.

"I've had trouble in the strike zone primarily," said Koosman, who also called time spent in the bullpen a bugaboo to his inconsistent season.

"I've had the kind of a season where I'm a start, then I'm in the bullpen, then I'm a starter, then I'm in the bullpen, then I'm in a starter again.

"I haven't had my chance to start every fifth day like I'd like to in order to stay sharp," he added.

Koosman, who struck out 10 and walked three, had one previous brush with a no-hitter, that while pitching a 2-1 victory over the Baltimore Orioles in the second game of the 1969 World Series.

Paul Blair broke that one up, singling leading off the seventh inning after the 28-year-old pitcher had worked six hitless frames.

Home Opener Sunday

ST. LOUIS — The rugged opening - season schedule for the St. Louis Football Cardinals continues Sunday when they take on the improved Pittsburgh Steelers in the Big Red's home-opener at Busch Memorial Stadium.

Kickoff for the inter-conference battle will be at 1:05 p.m.

Both teams will take 1-1 records into the game -- with both losing last week. The Cardinals, opening the season with a 10-3 upset victory over the Baltimore Colts, fell victim to their own mistakes and a rugged Washington defense last week, losing 24-10. The Steelers, after opening with a 34-28 upset win over Oakland, were edged last week by the Cincinnati Bengals, 15-10.

The Big Red is in the middle of a demanding opening - season schedule. Following the Steeler game, the Cardinals will travel to Minnesota to face the Vikings next Sunday and then return for a rematch with the Redskins on Oct. 15 in St. Louis.

The Cardinals and Steelers have not met since 1969, when the Big Red won both games, a 27-14 verdict at Pittsburgh and a 47-10 romp in St. Louis. Over the years, however, the Steelers have built up a 27-20-3 series lead. Since the Cardinals moved to St. Louis in 1960, the series stands 12-6-2 in favor of the Big Red.

"The Steelers will be another tough test for us, "Cardinal head coach Bob Hollway said. "They are picked as a favorite in their division. Their offense is explosive, expecially with the improvement Terry Bradshaw has shown at quarterback, and their defense is very solid."

During the pre-season, the Steelers posted a 4-1-1 record, outscoring their opposition, 160-63. Included was a 56-7 triumph over New Orleans and a 10-10 tie with the Redskins. Pittsburgh's only pre-season loss was to Baltimore, 16-13.

Bradshaw completed the pre-season with 639 passing yards and six touchdowns, and ranked as Pittsburgh's sixth-leading rusher with 66 yards in 10 carries. In the season -opener against the Raiders, he passed for 124 yards and ran for 49 more, second best on the team.

Last week against the Bengals, he scored the only touchdown of the game on a 12-yard run.

Cardinal offensive tackle Ernie McMillan will set a team record for consecutive games Sunday when he plays in the 149th straight, breaking the mark previously held by Bobby Joe Conrad. Third on the consecutive game list is placekicker Jim Bakken, who will be playing in his 137th straight game as a Cardinal. Bakken is the NFL's eight-leading all-time scorer with 852 points.

Tickets for the Pittsburgh and all other Big Red home games are on sale at the Cardinal ticket office, 200 Stadium Plaza, St. Louis, Missouri 63102. Single tickets only remain for the Chicago Bear game on Oct. 29.

Wilt May Switch

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Superstar Wilt Chamberlain is considering leaving the NBA champion Los Angeles Lakers to sign with the new San Diego Conquistadors of the American Basketball Association, a newspaper reported here today.

Leonard Bloom, owner of the Conquistadors, has visited the 7-foot-1 center and discussed the move with him, the San Diego Union said. Neither Bloom nor general manager Alex Groza would deny that negotiations are under way, the paper said.

Chamberlain has not yet signed to play for the Lakers this year and the Union said his attorney "is trying to find a loophole in his contract."

The newspaper quoted a source as saying Chamberlain may sit out the coming season and do radio commentary and public relations for the Conquistadors if he and Bloom can reach agreement.

The Conquistadors are the newest ABA franchise and this will be their first season.

grid quiz

by Dave Nelson, executive secretary, NCAA Football Rules Committee

With seconds left in the half, on first down the clock is stopped because the Kansas quarterback immediately after receiving the snap throws the ball forward into the legs of an ineligible lineman.

The official should:

1. Declare an incomplete pass.

2. Penalize Kansas for intentional grounding of a pass.

3. Penalize for illegal touching and start the clock on the ready for play signal.

Answer: Number 3. Penalize for illegal touching and start the clock on the ready for play signal.

Rule: (7-3-2-d) A pass is grounded if intentionally thrown to the ground or out of bounds to save loss of yardage or to conserve time.

Rule: (7-3-10) No originally ineligible player while inbounds shall touch a forward pass until it has touched an opponent.

Interpretations Book, Page 20, Item (d): With seconds remaining in a half, the clock is stopped because "T" quarterback receiving snap immediately throws the ball forward into legs of ineligible lineman Al. Ruling: The incompletion does not qualify as intentional grounding (7-3-2-d). It is illegal touching and could be 5 or 15 yards penalty, according to position of Al (7-3-10). The clock will start on the ready (3-4-3).

Strengthen Running

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Veterans Tom Woodeshick and Jim "Cannonball" Butler were added Tuesday to the St. Louis Cardinals running attack in moves designed to improve the National Football League club's punch.

Coach Bob Hollway said he expected to announce today which player on the squad he will trim from the roster to make room for Woodeshick, who was signed as a free agent.

Butler, the Atlanta Falcons' leading rusher the past four years, was acquired from that club in exchange for nine-season defensive lineman Chuck Walker, who played both end and tackle.

Woodeshick, a 30-year-old veteran of nine NFL seasons, was dropped two weeks ago by the Philadelphia Eagles, for whom he gained 3,563 as the league's fifth-leading active rusher.

A 6-foot-215-pound product of West Virginia, Woodeshick gained 947 yards in 1968 and rushed for 831 yards the next season.

Butler, only 5-foot-9 and 185 pounds, gained 655 and 636 yards for Atlanta in 1968 and '69 and totaled 594 yards last season.

The Cardinals gained only 46 yards on the ground in a season-opening 10-3 victory over the Baltimore Colts and netted only 79 yards in a 24-10 loss to the Washington Redskins a week later.

"We needed to strengthen our running attack," Hollway said.

Sports Briefs

FORREST'S FORTITUDE

Former Green Bay Packer tackle Forrest Gregg holds the National Football League's all-time record for most consecutive games played, 188. His ex-teammate, Jim Ringo, is second at 183. Jim Otto and George Blanda had the best streaks among active players, each having appeared in 168 straight games going into this season.

NATIONAL NABOBS

The National Football Conference held a substantial edge over the American Conference in regular season play entering the current season, the NFC having won 50, lost 27 and tied one.

BUSY FOOT

Bobby Joe Green of the inoffensive Chicago Bears has punted more times than any player in National Football League history. Green's 821 punts over 12 seasons going into 1972 allowed him to break the NFL record previously held by Paul Maguire of San Diego and Buffalo. Green also leads active National Football Conference kickers in punting average, with 42.9 yards per boot.

ALLEN AHEAD

The Washington Redskins' George Allen had the best record among National Football League coaches going into the 1972 season. His teams had compiled a 58-21-5 record for a .734 winning percentage. Bud Grant of the Minnesota Vikings was second on a .687 mark, 46-21-3. Dallas' Tom Landry had the most wins, 88, but his teams had also lost 72 games.

It's most important how we spend our time and where we spend our money.

Be sure to keep picnic food cool (50 degrees F or below) to avoid ptomaine poisoning, typhoid, etc. Germs in food multiply alarmingly in 50 to 130 degree temperatures, as in a hot auto trunk or in sunshine. Hamburger, potato salad, creamy pastries and ham are most vulnerable.

Firms Believe Stocks On Bullish Trend

By CROCKETT SCOTT

"The Mighty Hopes that Make Us Men." ... Alfred Lord Tenyson

While day to day events in the news can make for erratic thrusts downward and upward in the averages, there are a number of basically bullish undertones for the stock market in the opinion of investment banking firms of the Middle Mississippi Valley.

One of the least publicized is the increase in dividends. Some dividend increases, in fact, are running 18 to 20 per cent, despite a four per cent limit established by the Nixon administration last year.

Another major plus for the market is capital from abroad ... from Europe and Japan.

A St. Louis investment banker suggests that with an expanding European Common Market there will be more opportunity for a stable and prosperous Europe --- and, conceivably, more wealth for investment in American industry.

Kansas City investment people point out that the Japanese are infatuated with investment in American industry, and that the lifting of some restrictions against foreign investing by Japan should bring more money to the American market.

The Japanese like the American stock market because of its diversity and size, and for its liquidity; and the Europeans for the same reason, your correspondent was told.

Favorable for the market, too, is the lessening in the deficit in payments on international trade.

Stock market analysts concede that we have a long way to go in solving our unfavorable payments balance in international trade, but they are encouraged by what they believe to be some progress.

A Little Rock professional reminds that continuing expansion abroad by American industry also contributes to the stability of American equities. Such activity not only opens up new markets for American-made goods, but it helps to circumvent the higher cost of operation(including higher wages) of domestic plants.

Another positive factor for the market which analysts come back to is the relative quietude thus far among the many cyclical laggards still selling near their recession lows.

An indication that the price Commission is not the deterrent to stock prices advancing, despite the furor over refusal thus far to let the automakers advance prices that some investors seem to fear, is the comment of Dr. Albert H. Cox, Jr., head economist for Lionel D. Edie & Co., New York.

"By the second half of next year," commented Dr. Cox, "profits could turn down under present profit restrictions, but we don't think it will get to that."

Reports in the financial pages indicate that one area of more concern for industry and business by the Price Commission is that of categories of production or sales which have been discontinued. They no longer, in many instances, are required for consideration in base period computation.

And on this subject, Dr. Cox observes: "Earlier, the Price Commission was turning these arguments down," he noted, "but lately they have been more lenient, or rational is the word."

First Midwest Investment Corp., 1112 N. Jackson, Milwaukee, Wis. 53202, has a study about Farm House Foods.

Eppler, Guerin & Turner, Inc., First National Bank Bldg., Dallas, Texas, offers a report on Zale Corp.

No Accidents

No area highway accidents were reported Tuesday by the highway patrol, but an accident which occurred at 3:15 a.m. Sept. 10 on Highway 51 in Perry County has resulted in the death of Gary Lee Schrimp, 18, of Perryville.

The accident occurred when Schrimp lost control of his car on a curve, ran into a ditch and overturned.

He died Tuesday in Barnes Hospital in St. Louis.

Two Write Book On Hybrids

CARUTHERSVILLE -- Jim Southern, son of Mr. and Mrs. Baxter Southern of Caruthersville, has been commissioned to write a book on his three- year study and one year of experimentation with 42 hybrids, involving more than 30 different tests on growing sunflowers.

Southern hopes to plant 800 acres next year. More than 30 hybrids are being tested this year, along with standard varieties. More than 20 different production techniques are being used and evaluated, he said.

City Needs $293,000 Budget Per Year

The City of Sikeston will need approximately $293,000 per year, exclusive of capital improvements, for an operating budget under a proposed new development program, City Manager Jim Huff told members of the Exchange Club at a meeting held Thursday.

Fund sources available are a municipal sales tax, an increased utility tax and federal revenue sharing funds, Huff said. The revenue sharing program, which is apparently assured for a five- year period, will furnish an estimated $170,000 annually in revenue and should eliminate the need for development of other revenue sources for the present.

Huff told the club that operating budget items are divided into four categories, public safety, roadways and sanitation, recreation and miscellaneous.

Sikeston Planning and Zoning Commission is currently conducting an intensive review of the Sikeston expenditure- revenue study and will recommend program priorities to the City Council. The City Council will then be in a position to outline revenue sources available to provide funding for essential programs.

In the public safety area which includes the fire and police departments, emphasis will be placed on training, compensation for extra duty, inspection of existing buildings, design review of proposed buildings and subdivisions and the addition of more sophisticated equipment, Huff said.

Under the roadways and sanitation area, the most important and most expensive program under consideration is an annual seal coating to preserve and protect street surfaces throughout the city.

Other street programs include the preparation of a street inventory, improvement of street signing and pavement marking, and intersection safety survey and a sidewalk inspection program.

A storm drain master plan will be developed to guide future improvements and sufficient funding for minor modifications to the storm drain system.

Refuse disposal problems will center around effective trench covers, fire control in the sanitary landfill and study of recycling potential of the Sikeston area. Huff also said that decisions on refuse disposal will be delayed to take advantage of the findings of Bootheel Regional Planning Commission.

The recreation area involves park maintenance, recreation programming and facilities operation. Park maintenance activity will double or triple with the addition of 140 acres of park facilities in the new recreational complex to the existing 70 acres.

Huff said that the recreation program which is now limited to a baseball program could be expanded to include arts, crafts, music, aquatics or other recreational activities.

The miscellaneous area includes the airport, general administration and development. Huff said that effective maintenance of the airport is essential to give visitors a satisfactory first impression of the community.

The primary factor considered in general administration is the need to provide adequate compensation for city employes. The development program anticipates establishing an industrial development specialist to devote full time to the task of attracting industry to Sikeston in cooperation with Sikeston Industrial Development Corporation.

Huff closed his speech by saying that the city needs to know if citizens support or oppose the services proposed.

Spitz Didn't Hurt Self In TV Contract, Either

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Bob Hope: "Are you a painless dentist?"

Mark Spitz: "I haven't hurt myself yet."

This was part of the dialogue of a television skit that will mark the show business debut of Mark Spitz, winner of seven gold medals at the 1972 Olympic Games.

The 22-year-old swimmer broke into the bigtime Monday night by taping a Bob Hope special for airing Oct. 5.

Spitz came to Hollywood last weekend under the auspices of his new agents, the prestigious William Morris Office. His first appearance was for Hope, who called Spitz at his Carmichael, Calif., home to assure the date.

The fee for the Hope show was estimated at $10,000. All this for working a day and a half.

At rehearsal, Spitz handled the gag lines well, with some coaching from the master, Hope.

"Mark went home and did his homework after the runthrough last night," the comedian remarked between rehearsals. "He knows the lines, but he reads them too fast. He's gotta learn to wait for the laughs."

Hope said Spitz had been offered his choice of three skits from the comedian's gag writing factory: a Western, a movie saga with Hope as an aging Tarzan being replaced by the younger Spitz and a spoof with Spitz as a fledgling dentist.

Spitz, a dental student at Indiana University, chose the last. The skit included three kisses by Julie Bennett, a busty redhead who portrayed his nurse.

At a news conference earlier, Spitz left no doubt that his swimming career was over.

"I haven't even been in the water since I finished the last race," he said.

Spitz's agents said he had received, but not yet accepted, film offers from MGM, Warner Brothers, director Vittorio de Sica and others.

Hope remarked, "I think he's got a real future in our business. He's a real inspiration to the youth of our nation. And what an athlete! He makes Superman seem like Truman Capote. I call him Fort Knox with fins."

The Prayer from the Upper Room

"Treat other people exactly as you would like to be treated by them--this is the essence of all true religion." (Matthew 7:12, Phillips translation)

PRAYER: Heavenly Father, in the midst of plenty help us to remember and feel charitable toward those who have little. Forgive us when, like children at play, we forget our responsibilities toward others. Amen.

An old-timer can recall when jam sessions were held at county fairs.

A skeptic is a fellow who says he doesn't believe ANYTHING he reads, and only half of what he says.

Can't Get Rid Of Chickens

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Swallows leave Capistrano. Geese leave Canada. But they can't persuade the chickens to leave Coral Gables.

Residents along San Marco Avenue said about 18 months ago two chickens were moved into the exclusive neighborhood despite a ban on keeping them.

Some people, thinking the birds were cute, fed them and protected them from dogs and cats.

The two chickens grew to a flock of 20 which holds an a capella chorus about 4:30 each morning to the dismay of people trying to get some sleep.

Asst. City Manager Hank Potterfield at one point filed suit against the man who was believed to have brought the first two chickens to the area.

The court ordered the man to get rid of them.

He showed up with a shotgun bright and early one morning and started blasting away. The chickens flew to safety and have since become much more wary of humankind.

"I've seen the chickens. You can't possibly get near them," Potterfield said. "Those things will fly a half mile to pasture."

Violence, Thievery Characterize Return Fall TV Series

NEW YORK (AP) — Two television series that emphasize violence are back with us this fall. Viewers may protest, but the shows also appear to emphasize deceit, aerial thievery and the thrill of the chase.

Both arrived here Sunday afternoon for what the announcers called the start of the 1972 regular season. On NBC, the show was "The Jets vs. the Bills." At CBS, it was "The Giants vs. the Lions." Similar shows were seen elsewhere in the nation.

The CBS show, broadcast live from Detroit, began with a brisk rendition of "The Star Spangled Banner," performed in 57 seconds by a 180-piece marching band. Then it got down to business. The plot went this way:

A man in a blue jersey, flanked by 10 identically dressed men, ran up to a ball that resembled a big leather egg with stitches. He kicked it and this caught the attention of 11 other men in white.

They ran at each other and formed a big pile on something one of the narrators, Ray Scott, called the 31. Then they got up and talked to each other and decided to form a big pile again. A few scenes later, as they took sides, Scott said: "Let's see if the Lions decide to blitz Snead in what looks like a passing situation." He referred to Norm Snead, a star in Sunday's show.

Blitz must mean hurl to the ground and jump upon, because that's what the Lions did to Snead. A few minutes later, the Giants did the same to Greg Landry, a Lion star.

As the drama unfolded, somsone in a striped shirt threw down his handkerchief as if in anger and Scott said: "We have our first marker of the game. Holding . . . it's against the Giants."

After this, other men in striped shirts showed no reluctance to hurl down their handkerchiefs, too. Scott explained this was because of things like illegal motion and offensive interference among the players.

The show's strong point wasn't dialogue. Landry and Snead spent most of the day in a courch, muttering "hut-huthut" and silently fleeing for their lives when given the ball.

On the positive side, the action was fast and furious. Viewers who adjourned for a beer during the better parts didn't lose out; CBS replayed the dramatic highpoints 37 times and in slow motion at that.

And at the end, it gave the ratings for each cast. The Lions got a 30 rating and the Giants a 16.

The entire show lasted about three hours — five for those who switched over to the NBC drama in which the New York Jets got a 41 rating to the Buffalo Bills 24.

All things considered, both shows are fun and will do well again. A few scenes later, as they took sides, Scott said: "Let's see if the Lions decide to blitz Snead in what looks like a passing situation." He referred to Norm Snead, a star in Sunday's show.

Blitz must mean hurl to the ground and jump upon, because that's what the Lions did to Snead. A few minutes later, the Giants did the same to Greg Landry, a Lion star.

The Case Of The Thwarted Investigation

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

When officer O'Reilly arrived at the scene of a reported donnybrook, the alleged battlefield had been cleared. Sitting in a nearby automobile, however, was Clarence and one of his cohorts. Deciding that Clarence's companion, from his appearance, might have been involved in the melee, officer O'Reilly began questioning him. And while the questions weren't incriminating, Clarence decided that the answers might be and repeatedly advised his buddy not to answer them.

The result? Officer O'Reilly's investigation never got off the ground and he was left up in the air. Totally frustrated, he arrested Clarence for obstructing a police officer in the discharge of his duty.

"Before I could hardly finish a question," officer O'Reilly complained in court, "Clarence was telling his pal that he didn't have to answer it."

"Every question was two-sided with no bottom," was Clarence's answer. "I couldn't just stand there and let a pal get trapped. So, I advised him of his constitutional rights. Certainly, there can't be any law against that."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you convict frustrating Clarence of obstructing a police officer in the discharge of his duty?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that, as a general rule, protesting to an officer in behalf of another, or criticizing or questioning him while he is performing his duty, when done is an orderly manner, does not amount to obstructing him in the performance of his duty. Futhermore, noted the judge, a citizen may advise another of his constitutional rights in a peaceable manner without necessarily interferring in the performance with that office of his duty. (Based upon a 1971 North Carolina Superme Court Decision).

Accuse U.S. Of Spying By Mail

PEKING (AP) — The North Vietnamese have accused the United States of sending espionage equipment in packages mailed to prisoners of war, American antiwar activists reported here today.

The charges were made by the Americans accompanying three American pilots on their way home after being released in Hanoi.

In Washington, the Department of Defense issued a denial of the accusations.

Maj. Gen. Daniel James, a Pentagon spokesman, said:

"The charges are too ridiculous to dignify by trying to address them in detail. I know of no instance of such actions taking place and I think it is just another of the propaganda web that Hanoi is spinning to obscure the real facts concerning her intransigent position in refusing to negotiate meaningfully for all our prisoners of war."

This correspondent, who had accompanied the delegation and the freed pilots throughout the week, was not shown any of the materials. I was not told in advance about the display and was elsewhere in Hanoi when it took place.

The antiwar delegation said that representatives of the North Vietnamese government, in meetings during the past week in Hanoi, charged that sophisticated equipment capable of revealing camp locations and other information was sent to the prisoners from the United States.

They claimed that materials for receiving messages were sent in hollowed-out peanuts, bars of toilet soap, toothpaste tubes, pieces of candy, packages of chewing gum and instant coffee. They also said special paper for sending undetectable messages in letters to families was included.

The Americans said that items the North Vietnamese alleged were in the packages were displayed for them on a table at the Hoa Binh Hotel on Monday afternoon.

I was given photographs which the North Vietnamese told the Americans showed packages and contents sent to prisoners.

Study Supports Income Tax

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — A statewide study supports higher state income and sales taxes and less reliance on property taxes to finance public schools.

Delmar Cobble, cochairman of the study, told the Missouri Association of Secondary Principals conference Monday the property tax may be ruled unconstitutional by the Supreme Court because every child cannot be supported equally by it.

If property taxes were eliminated, the state would have to do7ble income and sales taxes, he said. The study suggests retaining the property tax but reducing the percentage of support it provides schools.

Four committees of Missouri citizens studied four areas— revenue sources, distribution of funds, educational programs and school district structure— Cobble said.

He said the study also recommends reducing the number and upgrading the quality of school districts, with more emphasis on vocational, adult and preschool education.

Asia Drug Traffic Has No Cure, Yet

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA)

The Southeast Asian drug traffic may be impossible to stop.

The gloomy preditcion is made regardless of how thoroughly friendly governments cooperate in Thailand, South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia; No matter how many U.S. agents operate in the area and how much leeway they're given to search baggage and wipe out drug factories; And despite tough new American-inspired regulations in several of these nations and very harsh treatment meted out for some violators.

These thoughts are not my own. They come from information given by one friend who was for years a colonel in the opium detail of one major Southeast Asian country, by another whose political connections spread through two of these nations and by other Asian, French, Chinese and American contacts with some considerable experience in the rural areas of these nations.

There are two basic reasons that control of the drug traffic will almost certainly not succeed now and for a very long time to come.

First—The pay of the rural police, local officials and of the ordinary military is so low that few officials, police and even military unit commanders can make ends meet, even on a bare existence level without being on the take from smugglers and anyone else able to make pay-offs regularly.

In all too many cases, these officials do not get the backup from higher authorities to enable them to crack down on anyone for opium or heroin running.

In several of these countries, local officials do not have any appreciable power of force or of accepted authority to enforce any law against even relatively small groups or individuals.

In wide areas of the countryside of the four nations above and Burma as well the government does not exercise any appreciable power or control.

This holds for non-Communist areas as well as for regions occupied by troops from Hanoi and agents from Peking. Actual control is in the hands of bandits, gangs or secret organizations.

The second basic reason for the continued drug traffic is the people in the opium growing areas are so poor and alternate sources of income so meager they cannot be persuaded to give up this cash crop.

There has been talk for years, investigating commissions, government and international reports, programs and exhortations for the introduction of substitute crops. Nothing has come of this.

Substitute crops haven't worked; No one has discovered practical substitutes. Most alternate crops require water, fertilizer, nearness to markets, roads, suitable climate and customers. One or all of these factors is lacking in most opium areas.

Just as the police power frequently does not extend effectively to the opium growing areas, the agricultural, civic and educational influence of the governments does not effectively extend there either.

What is needed is technical aid to these nations to give them more effective government—if any nations know how to give such assistance.

Haiti Moves To Build Up Low Economy

By HAROLD J. LIDIN
Associated Press Writer

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — This black republic is just across the narrow Windward Passage from Cuba, but Haiti seems to shun the Castro message of economic salvation through socialism.

For years Havana radio has been broadcasting to Haiti's Creole-speaking and 90 per cent illiterate masses. But the U.S. Embassy says the broadcasts have little impact. Haitian government censorship keeps out of print any accounts from Havana of Cuban achievements.

The talk here is not of nationalization but of tax concessions and cheap labor — the legal minimum is $1 a day — and the need for outside capital to develop the country.

In Haiti, as one foreign economic observer phrased it, "people take the view that foreign capital must be their primary engine of development."

Foreign investors' interest had dwindled during the ultranationalistic regime of the late dictator Francois "Papa Doc" Duvalier. His son and successor, 21-year-old Jean Claude Duvalier, along with a group of Cabinet ministers, woo the foreign investor as vital to fulfilling their promise of economic growth.

"My father made the political revolution, I will make the social revolution," the young ruler promises.

Duvalier and his group have banished the Ton-Ton Macoute. This ragtag militia, under "Papa Doc," had been used by the physician-president to offset the political ambitions of the professional military. At times the Ton-Ton Macoute shook down and terrorized civilians.

Most of the new action centers around this steamy capital city — the cash flow has not yet quickened enough in the small towns to lift the estimated annual per capita income for the country as a whole to over $100 a year.

Even in Port au Prince, taxi drivers still cut off the ignition in their cars to save gasoline on the downgrades, and cigarettes can be bought one by one from curbside vendors.

Still financial indicators point to an economic upsruge. Exports increased 19 per cent last year. Plans exist to open three more banks this year; one U.S., one Canadian, and the third institution to be financed by Haitian and Dominican interests.

State Supreme Court Rules On Negligence

(AP) — The Missouri Supreme Court once again has held that political subdivisions in the state cannot be sued for regligence.

In a unanimous decision Monday, the court upheld Circuit Judge Richard K. Koenigsdorf's ruling to dismiss a suit brought by a Jackson County Couple, Ralph E. and Wanetta Payne.

The Paynes sued the county and two drivers for the wrongful death of their son, a passenger in one of two cars that collided at an intersection.

The drivers were dropped as defendants but the county was negligent, the Paynes said, for not having a stop sign at the intersection.

"The Missouri Constitution and statutes are silent on the matter of sovereign immunity but the judicial decision of this court have declared in no uncertain terms that this doctrince is the public policy in this state," wrote special Judge William H. Billings of the circuit court for Dunklin and Stoddard counties.

"We regard the rule in Missouri as one of fixed public policy, and any abandonment of it, either as to political subdivisions or the state itself, should come through the legislative process," he wrote.

The court also overturned a St. Louis Circuit Court decision that gave a $5,000 judgment to a part-owner of a horse which was photographed by the Ralston Purina Co. without the part-owner's consent.

A St. Louis murder conviction was reversed because the jury was not properly instructed on self-defense. But two other murder convictions were affirmed.

Ralston Purina appealed after Agnes Bayer received a $5,000 judgment. Testimony revealed that another part-owner had given his consent for the photography, which was used in advertisements.

The woman's priacy was not invaded because she was not identified with the horse in the advertisements, the court ruled.

A new trial was ordered for Ronald Claude Minnis of St. Louis, who was sentenced to 20 years for second-degree murder in the July 16, 1969, knifing death of Robert Grab.

Minnis testified that Grab followed him into his house and lunged at him.

The burden of proof was placed on the defendant and not on the state because of wording in Circuit Judge J. Casey Walsh's instructions to the jury, the Supreme Court found.

"Instead of leaving it to the jury to determine... whether the defendant's guilt is established beyond a reasonable doubt, it authorizes them to convict unless they find he has proved his innocence beyond a reasonable doubt," the majority opinion by special Judge Charles Shangler of the Kansas City Court of Appeals said.

The court upheld the first-degree murder conviction in Buchanan County of Billy Taylor Strong. He was sentenced to life for the Sept. 23, 1969, shooting of Robert Cordonier during a car theft attempt in St. Joseph.

Strong contended that the 11month lapse between his arrest and trial deprived him of due process. The high court noted that many of the seven continuances were at the request of Strong.

A second-degree murder conviction for Theodore Jackson of St. Louis was upheld.

He was sentenced to 15 years for the shooting death of Annie Dale Oct. 13, 1969. The court denied Jackson's contention that the jury should have been allowed to reduce the charge to manslaughter.

Scouts Get Eagle Award

Stan McMikle, 15, and Gaither Daugherty III, 15, both of Sikeston, were among 11 Boy Scouts from the Southeast Missouri district who passed a Board of Review and received Eagle Scout badges at First United Methodist Church Tuesday night.

The scouts were guests of board members later for a dinner at El Capri Restaurant. Judge Marshall Craig conducted the review ceremonies.

Filing for re- election were Oma Lewis, Pinnell Capehart and Robert Whitener. Also filing were Mary Helen Smith and Luther Inman.

Work Toward Water Supply In Stoddard

DEXTER — Work toward formation of a new rural water supply district in Stoddard County is under way, and residents of the area will vote on the proposal Oct. 3.

The proposed area is located east of the St. Francis River and west of Highway 25 and extends northward to a point one mile north of the Powe community, according to John William Ringer, Dexter attorney, who is working with citizens in the area on the project. Waters and Associates of Sikeston is engineering the project.

It is anticipated that there will be approximately 200 hookups in the area, all of which are now without a modern water system.

Specifically excluded from the district is the City of Bernie, which has its own public water system.

Thy Oct. 3 election will ask voters of the area to formally approve establishment of the water district and decide which district would have the power to provide the tax base necessary for the operation of the district.

The new district, known as Public Water Supply District No. 6, Stoddard County, was incorporated by the Circuit Court on Sept. 18, and approval of the voters on Oct. 3 would make such incorporation final.

NEW MADRID — American Legion Fall Festival parade has been rescheduled from 8 p.m. Thursday to 8 p.m. Wednesday next week, according to John Langley, post commander.

Chicken Lovers Unite!

Chicken lovers unite! Celebrate National Bake-A-Chicken Week, October 1-7.

Chicken, delicious and tender, is always a family favorite. And it's good for everybody. The National Broiler Council reminds us that chicken has the highest complete protein of all popular meats. Luckily, the price isn't high at all. It's a remarkable fact, and a great comfort to meal-palnners, that the cost of chicken today is almost 17c less per pound than it was twenty years ago!

National Bake-A-Chicken Week can actually mean that you take it easy while you're cooking. Chicken lends itself to so many simple methods of preparation that it saves you time and trouble with your meals.

Call on convenience products to make your chicken as easy to cook as it is to vary. Shake 'n Bake Seasoned Coating Mix, for example, not only turns out delicious, crispy chicken to bake without attention from you in thyoven, but it's also convenient for varying the flavor of the chicken with one or two simple, added ingredients. You may add the extra flavor to the seasoned coating mixed itself, or choose a different - flavored dipping ingredient, or use both together.

A tempting chicken dish that carries out these suggestions is Tarragon Chicken. That delectable dried herb, tarragon, is added to the seasoned coating mix, and for further flavor variation, the chicken is dipped in sherry or lemon juice. The combination is superb, and the oven does the work of blending the flavors together within the seasoned coating mix. If you like, serve Tarragon Chicken with linguine and a mixed green salad.

Quick as a wink, you can change from Tarragon Chicken to Neapolitan Chicken, and the way you make it is really clever. To the seasoned coating mix, you add an envelope of tomato soup mix and that glorious Italian herb, oregano. You put a little zip in the dip by adding Worcestershire sauce. Dip, coat, bake, and Neapolitan Chicken is ready to eat!

Don't let this easy experimenting with international chicken dishes end with an Italian version. Try adding seasonings characteristic of other cuisines to the coating mix and see what delicious things happen. National Bake- A -Chicken Week is a perfect opportunity to expand your collection of easy chicken dishes.

TARRAGON CHICKEN

1 envelope seasoned coating mix for chicken -- original, mild, or Italian flavor

1/2 teaspoon crumbled tarragon leaves

2 1/2 pounds chicken pieces

1/4 cup dry sherry wine or lemon juice

Empty seasoned coating mix into the plastic shaker bag, add tarragon. Moisten chicken pieces with wine. Shake off excess liquid. Shake 2 or 3 pieces at a time in the bag until evenly coated. Arrange chicken in single layer in ungreased shallow baking pan. Bake at 400 degrees F. for 40 to 50 minutes or until tender. Makes about 4 servings.

Pair Ribs With Rice

RICE 'N RIBS -
THE PERFECT PARTNERS

With a rack of ribs in the oven, crisping to perfection, you're on your way to some mighty good eating. Pair the ribs up with a tasty rice dish, such as Chinese Fried Rice, and you're on your way to a great family meal.

Chinese Fried Rice, made with packaged enriched pre-cooked rice, makes dinner carefree from the cook's viewpoint. Preparation takes but a few minutes. It's also a deliciously interesting dish flavored with egg strips, onions, and soy sauce. To complete the meal, just add a green vegetable or salad.

It's an interesting and fun way to bring an Oriental flair to your dinner table. You may also want to try Chinese Fried Rice with other meat entrees. It's simple to prepare, versatile, and economical.

For glazed appearance, put spareribs under broiler for 5 minutes. Make 4 to 5 servings.

Sonny & Cher Set For Mid- South Fair

MEMPHIS —Forget the superlatives, they've all been used for Sonny & Cher.

The celebrated husband -wife comedy -singing team will bring their considerable talents to the Mid -South Fair for two shows on closing Saturday, Sept. 30. Tickets for the 4:30 and 8:30 p.m. performances are on sale at Mid -South Coliseum.

Every branch of the entertainment world has felt the impact of Sonny & Cher. They have made it big in records, concerts, feature films, night clubs and capped them all with a meteoric rise in television with their own network series.

The marriage of Sonny (Salvatore Bono) and Cher (Cherilyn Sarkisian) is in its eighth year and their horizons of accomplishment continue to expand. An astute songwriter, Sonny penned, "I Got You Babe", in 1965 and it catapulted to the top of the charts --selling more than three million copies.

Then Sonny recorded Cher as a single with "All I Really Want To Do", which also hit the top within weeks of its release. Riding the success train, Sonny recorded himself with "Laugh At Me" and soon they had no less than five records in the Top 100, a feat accomplished only in the past by Elvis Presley. In quick succession came a grand entry into the concert field with sellout success.

The biggest jewel in their crown came in the summer of 1971 when they did six television shows for CBS as a summer replacement. The instantaneous acceptance by all segments of the TV public brought them their own series in January 1971 and the Sonny & Cher Comedy Hour is all set for the 1972 season.

Sonny & Cher have moved into the fair circuit and sellouts are automatic wherever they go, including Illinois State Fair at Springfield, DuQuoin (Ill.) State Fair, Minnesota State Fair, Indiana State Fair, the Canadian National Exposition in Toronto and the Iowa State Fair.

Secretary of Housing and Urban Development deeded to Thomas James and Shirley Jean Cantrell, by warranty deed, lot 82 in Sikeston East Addition.

Virginia Sims deeded to John Applewhite, by warranty deed, lots 6, 11 and 12 in blocks 4 and 6 in Sunset Third Addition in Sikeston.

Scott City Development Corporation deeded to Richard A. H. and Nola L. Shaw, by warranty deed, lot 8 in block 2 in Cloverdale Terrace Second Subdivision.

Dale H. and Bobbie J. White deeded to Alfred J. and Sarah D. Proffer, by warranty deed, lot 3 in block 30 in McCoy and Tanner's Sixth Addition in Sikeston.

Feeling sorry for yourself is at least one person's assurance of consolation.

Spain Calls Charge By Danforth Laughable

UNION —James Spain, Democratic candidate for attorney general, has responded to a statement by Republican Attorney General John Danforth.

Spain spoke to a gathering of Franklin County Democrats.

His statement follows:

"Atty. Gen. John Danforth has officially entered the gutter campaign of unfounded charges and smear tactics against Democratic gubernatorial candidate Edward L. Dowd. The accusations by Danforth that political favoritism influenced the awarding of a $16,542 annual lease for state office space to Thomas T. Stewart of Jefferson City is so patently absurd as to be laughable.

John D. Paulus Jr., state director of planning and construction, has correctly pointed out that the lease in question was awarded to the low bid in July of this year, some two months before the primary election.

It would seem apparent to anyone with an ounce of sense that if, indeed, it is assumed that favoritism was involved in the awarding of this lease in June 1972, such favoritism would have been directed toward the candidate who enjoyed the support of the governor in the primary, not to Ed Dowd or his supporters.

It is obvious that no political favoritism of any kind was involved in the awarding of this lease but only such appropriate factors as price, building location and size. Danforth is well aware of the specifications presented to the bidders and knows full well that his charges are blatant, unredeemable political smears directed at Dowd.

It would appear that Danforth is being used by Christopher Bond as a political hatchet man —a role that does not become this state's chief law enforcement officer. Danforth would better spend his time prosecuting violators of our Missouri income tax laws, like Christopher Bond, than in refusing to approve state leases that are properly awarded on a fair bid system."

Our wife says she wishes she could change her favorite phrase from "Why ain't it?" to "who-dunit?"

Blame Crash On Mechanical Failure

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The owners of the F86 jet which crashed into a crowded ice cream parlor Sunday, killing 22 persons, attribute the crash to "apparent mechanical failure."

"The F86 aircraft was fully licensed and had been restored and tested to rigorous FAA standards and its apparent mechnical failure is now under investigation," Harold A. Lipska, president of Spectrum Air, Inc., of Novato, said in a statement.

The pilot, Richard Bingham, 36, of Novato, was in serious, but not critical condition at Sacramento Medical Center, in satisfactory condition with a broken arm and other injuries. Hospital Administrator Thomas P. Engel said Bingham had asked to have no visitors.

"He has given a police statement," Engel added.

Police officials could not be reached for information about the statement. A police department spokesman said Bingham was under no police hold and was not charged with anything.

Bingham was quoted by rescuers as crying, "I'm sorry! I'm sorry!" as he was pulled from the wreckage of the Korean War - vintage craft.

Twelve of the dead were children, some of them who had gone to Farrell's Ice Cream Parlor for birthday parties.

The accident claimed more lives on the ground than any other in U.S. aviation history.

Nine members of one family were killed - three children of Anthony Martin, their parents, two of their grandparents and two cousins.

The craft faltered on an attempted takeoff at the conclusion of an air show. It plowed through an old levee, burst into flames, then hurtled into several parked autos and through the big front window of Farrell's.

A team from the National Transportation Safety Board and the Federal Aviation Administration is conducting the official investigation.

Coffee Corner by Cherie

I don't want to write this coffee corner tonight. I want to go away by myself where there are no children to put grey hairs in your heads, where there are no dogs to take to the doctor, and where there are no dishes to be cleaned up after feeding fat husbands! Brother, have I ever had a rough day today — I deserve the bed even if it is only seven thirty in the evening and I still have a column to write plus two fellas to be browbeaten into getting their homework, taking their baths and finally (thank heavens) climbing into bed. I guess I need vitamins or something — a vacation by myself would be real nice for starters. I think what finally topped my day off and sank me into the depths and gloom of frustration was dragging my oldest into every store in town to try and find him a pair of school shoes that would meet his approval as well as mine. Now I realize this is hard to do as Lee and I haven't seen eye to eye on anything in the clothing line in many a year, but still one does go on hoping year after year after year ... All these creepy kids want to wear to school (who am I kidding, all they want to wear anywhere), are these nasty looking bluejeans, which if that's all they had to wear they'd die of shame just before appearing in them in public. Still, we're dressing a bunch of affluent nuts so they think looking like trash is great — and they think we're dumb. Anyway, all the boys new shoes have higher heels than the womens, plus looking like they belong on a bunch of homosexuals instead of on the feet of young American boys. Oh dear, whatever happened to the red blooded male animal — now we just seem to be raising a bunch of pink pantalooned freaks and what a low blow this is to a mother who thinks boys should be boys, and not only act like them, but just as important look like them. Well, now that I've taken my frustrations out on you, I think I'll take an aspirin and go to bed even if it is too early — by the way, we got a pair of suede saddle oxfords - chalk one up for mom, and now you know why my head hurts so badly!!!

Young GOP To Bumper Brand This Weekend

Active participation in a presidential campaign is something many citizens feel they have little time for, though they strongly support a candidate. Young Voters for the President in Scott County will be asking those who support Richard M. Nixon to do something this weekend that is important in the campaign and yet will take little time -and no money.

"These young people will be working in various parts of the county to carry out a 'bumper -branding' project," David Ziegenhorn, project chairman, said today.

They will simple seek permission to vehicle owners to put a Nixon bumper sticker on their car or truck as a sign of support for the President. The strips are made of vinyl and will come off in one piece without leaving a mess on the bumper after the campaign ends.

"Bumper strips are rolling billboard advertising, an impressive means of promoting voter interest," the county chairman explained, "and it is not a great deal to ask of a citizen truly interested in seeing President Nixon re -elected."

A strict rule in this project is that no bumper strip be placed on a vehicle without the expressed permission of the vehicle owner. This out of respect to the rights of the property owner. In the same respect, the young people will put the strips o' the vehicles at the spot on the car where the owner wants it.

Dowd Favors State Educational Leadership

UNION —"The state must assume a greater financial role in education," Edward L. Dowd, Democratic candidate for governor, said here in an address to the Moose Lodge. "The state must also provide imaginative leadership in administrative and instructional areas.

"Educational opportunities must be equalized throughout Missouri, "Dowd continued, calling for "attaining the goal of state financing of 50 per cent of the educational costs and an active effort to increase federal support to at least 20 per cent from the present seven per cent national average."

Dowd stated he would consider a variety of alternatives to the local property tax. In the interim, Dowd said, "I believe the state should develop an increased foundation program which will assure a sufficient minimum guarantee for each student without requiring a local tax levy increase."

Dowd noted the success of the junior college system, and stated, "I favor expansion of the junior college program."

BRUCE BIOSSAT

Blue-Collars Are Target of Agnew

By BRUCE BIOSSAT

WASHINGTON (NEA)

Vice President Spiro Agnew has a specific major assignment in this campaign: to keep disenchanted blue-collar workers, mostly Catholics of ethnic background, from drifting back to their old home in the Democratic party.

Most polls show these voters have been leaning strongly to President Nixon. But he and his advisers are not complacent about them, and are well aware that Sen. George McGovern's managers have made recapturing the blue-collar people a main target project.

In light of the importance attached to this vote, it is interesting that both parties are asking their vice-presidential nominees to make the appeals. Sargent Shriver is, of course, carrying that burden for McGovern.

Whatever McGovern's reasons, Mr. Nixon's are simple. He isn't going to do all that much campaigning until fairly late in the game, if his plan holds. And Agnew is both popular and effective with labor audiences. As the impeccably attired Shriver seems earthier than McGovern, so the natty Agnew is better than Mr. Nixon at getting down to the gut level.

So the prospect now is that Agnew will be visiting a lot of places where top Republican nominees don't ordinarily go—blue-collar areas in the big cities that used to be largely conceded to the Democrats.

In these forays, Agnew will in effect be telling the workers that they have no present Democratic home to go to, charging that McGovern is some kind of radical sport who has unsound ideas about welfare and taxes, favors amnesty for draft evaders, would go begging to Hanoi, and can't be trusted to stick with the programs he offers.

The vice president really will be drumming home reminders, since all polls suggest these issues already are paramount in the minds of the disaffected blue-collar people. And head-count polls presently show an almost unbelievable movement in these voting areas away from McGovern.

The Nixon forces, still pretty new at approaching labor, are endeavoring to fashion their campaign with some sophistication. For instance, they are not treating the ethnic bloc as monolithic, but as a thing of many parts.

In this regard, they are convinced that Mr. Nixon might make something like a sweep of the Italian Catholic vote if he can just establish a big bridgehead for a starter. Republican polls in Rhode Island, Connecticut and parts of the New York City area encourage this hope.

The President's advisers insist that if these Italian enclaves hold for him, it means he will get a good vote wherever Italo-Americans cluster in sizable numbers. It is felt they vote as an "ethnic community."

Agnew will be touching these spots, but also plunging into Polish and other Slavic bastions in such cities as Chicago, Milwaukee, Detroit, Cleveland.

His 1972 campaign role clearly is a far cry from 1968. Then he was put under tight wraps and kept to an absurdly limited schedule. Ironically, this happened to him after he committed several gaffes, the worst of which involved alleged racial or nationalistic slurs.

Time, however, changes many things. This year, Spiro Agnew is being sent forth to be a big man on the ethnic front.

State Nominees To Appear At MU

COLUMBIA — For the first time in the hectic 1972 campaign, all opposing nominees for state office in Missouri are going to be at the same place and at the same time.

The place will be the University of Missouri-Columbia and the time will actually be over a two- day period, Oct. 9 and 10, in a program called "Men and Ideas - '72," sponsored by the Missouri Students Association.

The political hopefuls will meet each evening at 7:30 p.m. in Jesse Auditorium on the UMC campus. Each candidate will give brief opening remarks, followed by an open question-answer session with the audience.

On Oct. 11, after the two-day forum, MSA will conduct a straw vote among UMC students, using voting machines to be provided by the county clerk's office. This vote is expected to be the first formal indication of how the student vote will go in Missouri.

Meeting almost exactly one month before the election, gubernatorial candidates Kit Bond and Ed Dowd will appear at the Oct. 9 session. Also speaking that evening will be James Spainhower and George Parker, nominees for state treasurer.

The Oct. 10 forum will feature Jack Schramm and Bill Phelps, nominees for lieutenant governor; nominees for state attorney general, James Spain and John Danforth; and James Kirkpatrick and Harold Kuehle, nominees for secretary of state.

Students will be given first priority on seating in Jesse Auditorium for the sessions, which will be free and open to the public. The program will be transmitted both nights to two other campus locations, the Geology Auditorium and Middlebush Auditorium, by closed circuit television.

The MSA Legislative Seminars Committee and the Missouri Student Lobby Committee are sponsoring the event.

A HEROINE DOG is miniature poodle Mimi as she cavorts with Peter Emerito, 6, in Danbury, Conn. She awakened all eight members of the Emerito family while fire was consuming the home. Up to then she had refused to go up or down the steep stairway, but the night of the fire she raced back and forth four times. Mimi is winner of the Ken-L ration gold medal as "America's Dog Hero of 1972."

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Can Ailing Veins Be Removed?

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—I would like some advice on varicose veins. I am in my early 50s and enjoy sports such as tennis and swimming. But while others wear shorts and bathing suits, I have to wear support hose and slacks because of unsightly dark purple veins. I have tried all kinds of cover-ups, but to no avail. Are there any operations besides skin grafts for my ankles and bends of my knees? My ankles and knees are all purple with small veins. I also have large knotty ones in one leg. Please give some advice. Is this type of operation dangerous? I'm tired of bundling up in hot weather.

Dear Reader—Varicose veins are a problem. The large veins can cause accumulation of blood in the legs and ankles causing swelling, skin discoloration and even ulceration of the skin. The very small tiny veins that some women have in the surface of the skin cause no medical problem, and are only a cosmetic consideration.

Before anything is done, a complete physical examination has to be accomplished to determine the state of all of the veins in the legs. There are some superficial veins that some people can see and then there are large deep veins within the large muscles of the leg and thigh that are equally important.

If the large veins in the legs are normal, the little tiny superficial network of veins that some women have can be eradicated by a little electrical needle, much in the same way small dilated veins in the nose can be corrected. This procedure is of little value however, if the large veins in the skin and deeper in the legs are involved. In this case, it is sometimes possible to strip out the varicose veins depending on the finding of the medical examination. Skin grafts are completely useless in these conditions unless the underlying problem of the varicose veins is corrected first and good circulation is established. Then a graft isn't needed.

Dear Dr. Lamb—Recently a reader wrote you about epilepsy. I am also an epileptic and have been examined and found the cause to be irregular brain waves. I have medication for it. Is it possible that being overly excited, overly tired, or worried can bring on an attack or seizure?

Dear Reader—Epilepsy is not actually caused by irregular brain waves. The irregular brain wave is a manifestation of the epilepsy itself. The actual seizure may be thought of as being caused by an electrical short circuit in the brain. When the electrical disorder occurs it causes the irregular brain wave and stimulates the body to respond to cause the convulsion. The medicine acts to decrease the excess electrical activity in the brain and thereby prevents convulsions.

In most instances when sufficient medicine is given, the overactive electrical areas in the brain can be calmed down enough to prevent them from precipitating a convulsion, even in the face of most normal events of ordinary living that you mentioned.

Symington Speaks Out On Secret Laos War

WASHINGTON, D.C. – "The United States has been involved for more than a decade in an undeclared and largely unnoted war in northern Laos. From the beginning and as of today, this war has been characterized by a degree of secrecy never before true of a major American involvement abroad in which many American lives have been lost and billions of American tax dollars spent."

In an article by Missouri Sen. Stuart Symington, published in the August 29 issue of the new World magazine, Symington traces the history of United States secret involvement in Laos back to 1955 and relates the efforts of the Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee he chairs on United States Security Agreements and Commitments Abroad to reveal the facts of these activities to the American people.

Symington maintains that during the past four administrations, policies regarding Laos have been initiated and carried out by members of the executive branch without congressional knowledge or authorization. Since the executive branch did not give Congress all the facts, it was left to the legislative branch to seek the information.

"As a result of these hearings and reports originally secret but subsequently made public after they had been sanitized by the executive branch, the American people now know that the United States, through Defense Department- funded military assistance, is training, arming, and feeding the Royal LAO Army and Air Force; that the United States, through the CIA, is training, advising, paying for, supporting, and organizing a 30,000 man Lao irregular force; and that the United States is also paying for, training, advising, and supporting a force of Thai troops in Laos, at a cost last year in the neighborhood of $100 million."

"These Thai troops are currently being financed by the United States despite an Act of Congress signed into law by the President, prohibiting U. S. funds from being used in Laos for other than the support of Lao government forces or 'local forces' in Laos," Symington said.

Sen. Symington points out that until 1971 not even Congress, let alone the American people, had knowledge of the financing of this secret war, other than economic assistance – some $52 million in fiscal year 1971.

"The Secretary of State finally admitted publicly last year that the United States was spending about $350 million in Laos or about 10 times the Lao national budget. At my suggestion, a ceiling was legislated that limited all security- related American expenditures to $350 million in fiscal year 1972.

The Missouri senator says the American involvement in Laos continues to grow.

"There are preliminary indications that the executive branch will ask for more money for Thai and Lao irregulars and will insist that the $350 million ceiling be raised in fiscal year 1973."

(Since publication of this article, the Administration requested some $430 million for Laos for fiscal year 1973. The Senate- House Conference on military procurement subsequently recommended a $375 million limit on such funding.)

"This war in northern Laos, furtive and secret, will perhaps teach us all a lesson about the dangers of creeping involvements, hidden from the Congress and the public, that make a mockery of our governmental processes. It is a lesson we cannot afford to be taught again."

Missouri Less Active In Social Services Grants

WASHINGTON – Missouri is less active than other states in tapping a virtually unrestricted pipeline of federal funds for social services to welfare families.

The funds have been available to the states since 1962, with Uncle Sam providing three dollars for every one the states are willing to invest. But recently the states have shown a gluttony for the money. Current askings by states shown 529 per cent increase over federal money spent in the program in fiscal year 1971. Mississippi says it intends to use $463.6 million, a 42,118 per cent increase.

By contrast, Missouri's increase is 37 per cent. The figures show only four states less hungry for Uncle Sam's money.

There is no limit under the present law on how much federal social services money the states can get for welfare families. The services which qualify for the matching funds are so poorly defined by law that the states have been able to justify an almost endless variety of programs. And the law covers services not only to present welfare recipients, but to past and potential recipients as well.

To stop this drain of federal money, the Senate Finance Committee has included a provision in its revenue sharing bill which would eliminate such open-ended 75 per cent matching funds for all social services except family planning and child care.

The bill also includes an annual $1 billion in supplemental revenue sharing funds to be distributed to states and localities on the basis of urbanized population".

A finance committee staff member describes the supplemental provision as a kind of "bonus" to the states for giving up unlimited 3-1 matching federal funds for social services.

It's hard to tell precisely what effect the Senate's bill would have on individual states. Present reporting procedures don't show spending of the federal money in the precise categories that would remain open- ended under the bill.

"That's part of the marble cake of federalism," a spokesman for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare said, referring to the department's inability under the current law to show exactly what the money is being used for.

The billion- dollar "bonus" can't be compared to the present social services provision either, since state and local governments would not be required to spend their share on social services.

At any rate, it appears that Missouri would definitely gain money under the Senate bill. The state's projected use of federal social services money for fiscal 1973 is $16.3 million. Missouri's share of the billion- dollar "bonus" would be $21.4 million.

Under the "bonus" provision, Missouri would not be required to put up any money of its own, as is now required under the social services provision enacted in 1962.

First Year of Car's Depreciation Is Costliest

By MARGARET DANA

A recent study by the Highway Statistics Division of the Federal Highway Administration provides some figures on what it costs to operate and maintain an automobile over the approximate 10 years of its life.

Most people would probably say that gasoline is the top expense. Actually, it is only the third highest for a standard- size car, and fourth highest for a compact or subcompact.

But every car owner, driver or rider ought to have on hand the facts as to what the real costs are -- all of them -- and what they amount to in the 10 years or 100,000 miles the Statistics Division figures as the life of a car from start to junkyard. When you look at the costs, and check over some related items for which your automobile money goes, you may well begin to wonder if there is a better solution to our crowded highways than more highways and more cars.

Start with the fact that the highest cost, after the purchase price of your new car, is the first year's depreciation. If your new car costs $4,379, at the end of a year after being driven around 14,500 miles (not an exact figure, of course, in all cases), your depreciation cost would be $1,226, or 8.5 cents a mile, according to the statistics. Over a 10- year period that depreciation lessens so that at the end it averages 4.4 cents a mile. During that period maintenance, parts, tires, etc., will average 2.6 cents a mile, gas and oil come to 2.1 cents a mile, garage and parking tolls, 1.5 cents, insurance 1.4 cents, and state and Federal taxes 1.3 cents.

These figures are for the standard- size car.

What this all means is that the new cars for which American consumers paid more than $20 billion in 1971 will cost them $40 billion more over the next 10 years to operate and maintain. In case you hadn't noticed, that's a lot of money.

The question then for consumers with common sense: Is this the best way to spend that $60 billion? Are there ways to reduce our transportation costs, reduce our traffic jams, reduce our air pollution and still get to work, get to the city and back, get to recreation, to schools, and so on?

For rather a long time worried experts have been giving us the answer, as they see it. Increased use of mass transportation where it is practicable -- by bus, train or subway -- would cut tremendously all those heavy traffic figures. Nobody in his right mind would propose doing away with all our cars, for we need them, want them, and they serve us well. What is in the "sacred" atmosphere surrounding the Highway conservationists do say is: Build mass- transit systems so that one motor, one engine, one track can carry what it takes a hundred cars or more to do now.

Then why doesn't it happen? Why did we spend $20 billion last year for new cars, billions more to operate them, paying heavy taxes along the way, yet no national money is available to help build these systems we so desperately need?

The answer to this mystery is in the Highway Revenue Act of 1956, into which our gasoline and other maintenance taxes have been pouring millions for years. The law simply says nobody can use the Highway Trust Fund, built on these taxes, for anything but to build more highways.

Teasdale Says Bond Violated State Law

MOBERLY –In a meeting with Randolph County Democrats, Joseph P. Teasdale has charged Republican gubernatorial candidate Christopher (Kit) Bond with having violated Missouri law in failing to file Missouri income tax returns for the years 1964, 1965 and 1966.

Teasdale pointed out that Bond testified before the Missouri Supreme Court that he was familiar with the Missouri income tax law (Sec. 143.011, subd,1.RSMo. 1969) which provides as follows with regard to the filing requirements in this state:

"1. Every single individual, a citizen or resident of this state having a gross income in excess of one thousand two hundred dollars, and every married couple, citizens or residents of this state having a gross income in excess of two thousand four hundred dollars, shall file an income tax return or returns and pay a tax upon net income received, from all sources during the preceding year in excess of the exemption herein provided.

"3. Every individual, not a citizen or resident of this state, shall file an income tax return and pay a tax at the rate prescribed in subsection 2 of this section on the net income received from all sources within this state during the preceding year in excess of the exemption."

"Bond admitted to the Supreme Court that he had unearned income in excess of $2,400 from trusts located in Missouri which were administered by Missouri trustees during each of the years 1964, 1965 and 1966, but that he failed to file Missouri income tax returns for each of these years," Teasdale said.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
LBJ Fears Death Is Near, Puts His Estate In Order

10 ¢ PER COPY | OUR 61st YEAR | SIKESTON, SCOTT COUNTY, MISSOURI, | WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 27, 1972 | 26 PAGES | NUMBER 181

SIKESTON HIGH SCHOOL'S new head football coach, Pete Cirrintano, was the center of attention during the American Legion's 28th annual Cotton Carnival Tuesday night when his gridiron club was honored in ceremonies on the midway. After his midway appearance, the 25-year-old coach joined in at the student activities amusement stand and served as a target on the dunking stand ... and it wasn't long before he got his initiation as shown in this series of photos. Conferees Fail To Agree On Money Bill

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Rep. E. J. "Lucky" Cantrell leaned back in his chair and said resignedly, "I wish there were an adjetive to describe the senators' position — that you could print."

That was after a SenateHouse conference committee failed Tuesday night after a three-hour closed meeting to reach agreement on a $10.8 million appropriation bill.

The House had passed a $21.5 million bill before the Senate got hold of it and sliced it in half. The House rejected the Senate version and five members of each house were trying to reach a compromise.

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes requested $23.5 million when he called a special legislative session Sept. 6. So far, the special session has cost the taxpayers about $150,000, by unofficial estimate.

The legislature can meet up to 60 days in special session. After adjournment, the governor could call lawmakers back into session as long as he is governor, which will be until January.

Both houses were to meet this afternoon. No more conference committee meetings were scheduled, but the Senate Appropriations Committee chairman, Donald Manford, D-Kansas City, called a morning news conference to announce what he would recommend to the Senate.

"I'm going to recommend we adjourn sine die," Cantrell said. "We're just wasting our time."

Asked what the senators would agree to restore to the bill, Cantrell said, "nothing."

Instead of listening to suggestions for compromise, Cantrell said, "They just wouldn't cooperate."

There were votes on 24 items, he said.

The vote on each item, it was learned, was 5-5 on nearly each item, with the House members voting one way and senators voting another.

At the end, the vote was 7-3 to not report the $10.8 million bill out without any changes.

All the House members — Cantrell, R. J. "Bus" King, rClayton, William F. Casey, DPotosi, James Russell, R-Florissant, and Charles H. Dickey, R-Mexico — voted against reporting the bill out.

They were joined by Sens. Richard M. Webster, R-Carthage, and Manford, it was learned. Voting to report the bill out without change were Sens. Nelson B. Tinnin, D-Hornersville, Norman L. Merrell, D-Monticello, and Omer H. Avery, D-Troy, House members said.

"The House members were fairly flexible," Cantrell said. "On some items, we're fooling with human lives."

He called the senators' position "unreasonable."

House members were bitter about the Senate's elimination of several items that members of the House Appropriations Committee thought were true emergencies, and the Senate's addition of nearly $1 million in judges' pay increases to come from tax money.

The House had directed that all salary and retirement benefit boosts for judges and clerks come from the court judicial fund, which is being strengthened by increased court costs.

A big hangup was the Senate's deletion of $178,000 for licensed boarding homes caring for the mentally retarded. The senators agreed with the licensing provision, but wanted to eliminate $40,000 for a St. Louis center for the developmentally disabled.

Grievance Board To Meet Monday

The Police Advisory and Grievance Board has scheduled a meeting at 7 p.m. on Monday, Oct. 9, to hear a report on the City Court from Lt. Leonard Campbell.

Campbell refused today to discuss the report. However, police have been complaining of lengthy court dockets, which take up much of the officers' time, and the large number of dismissed cases.

City Court Judge James Sickal said he had no comments on the police complaints. He said he was unaware of them.

Cab Driver Robbed Here At Knifepoint

Thomas Flippo, a driver for Jolly Cab Co., told police Tuesday night that he was robbed by two men who forced him to drive out of the city to the intersection of Brown Spur Road and Compress Road.

Flippo said one of the men held him at knife point; while the other took $29.80 from his changer and pockets.

Flippo told police the two men flagged him down at 9:50 p.m. at the corner of Scott and Front Streets and climbed into the back of the cab. One pulled a knife and held it to his throat, Flippo claimed, and told him to drive to Brown Spur Road, while the other searched for money.

Once at the intersection of Brown Spur and Compress roads, the men climbed out and told Flippo to drive south. They climbed into a waiting car and followed him part of the way south to Highway 60, before turning around, and heading north.

Theft Suspect Is Arrested

HAYWOOD CITY — The Scott County sheriff's department has arrested Albert Ray, 27, for burglary and stealing.

He is charged with the Saturday theft of $200 worth of tools from the Bel-Air Salvage Company near Haywood City. Taken were an electric wrench, a chain hoist and a quarter-inch drill.

111 Enrolled In Foreign Languages

The 111 students enrolled in foreign language courses at Sikeston High School this year represent the success the school has had in rebuilding its language study program.

Foreign language study took a nose dive at the high school when Latin was dropped from the curriculum about 1950. No foreign language was taught again until the program was resumed in the fall of 1959. Spanish and French have been taught in the high school — since then and the enrollment in both languages has been fairly stablized for the past few years.

Nationally, the trend is for students to stay away from foreign languages altogether. Statistics show, however, that students in Sikeston are still drawn to foreign language courses in good numbers.

The chart below shows the number of students in these courses for the past five years.

	Spanish	French
1967-68	114	35
1968-69	98	37
1969-70	104	27
1970-71	100	27
1971-72	56	34
1972-73	73	38

A closer look at the national figures show that 90 per cent of all Spanish students are in either first or second-year courses. Third and fourth-year students make up the other 10 per cent. In French, 75 per cent of the students are in first or second -year courses while only 25 per cent go on to a third or fourth year of study.

Jon Wright, Spanish teacher at the high school, said one reason foreign language study may be declining is because of easing of requirments for entering college.

"Many college-bound students won't take it unless they have to," said Wright.

Paula Hudspeth, French instructor, said more first-year students are staying on and taking two or more years of French than have done so in the past. Mrs. Hudspeth has the same number of students in second-year French this year as she had in first-year French last year. She called it an encouraging sign.

Tony Statler, administrative assistant in the public schools, gave other reasons for the sharp drop in the number of students in foreign language courses.

The board curriculum at the high school provides a large variety of classes, and many students will not use the three or four electives of foreign language study because they are allowed only about seven electives in four years, Statler said.

Also, many students find that courses they wish to take are taught at the same hour. Scheduling prevents them from taking all of the classes they would like to have.

ONE DRIVERLESS AUTOMOBILE backed into another this morning on North New Madrid Street. The car was parked in front of Smith-Alsop Paint Store by Mrs. Emma L. To Take Bayou Bids

NEW MADRID — St. John's Bayou Basin Drainage District will receive bids from contractors for improvements to its main ditch adjacent to New Madrid until 10 a.m. Monday, according to Jesse H. Wilkins, secretary of the district.

Proposed improvements start northeast of Farrenburg where the main ditch is crossed by St. Louis Southwestern Railroad (Cotton Belt), then southerly for approximately five and one- half miles to the fork of the ditches, which is about a mile and a half south of the Charleston bridge or about a mile and one- fourth north of the present flood gates.

This stretch of the ditch is not as wide as that portion north of the railroad and causes a bottleneck.

Improvements include clearing both sides of the ditch, estimated to be about 150 acres of clearing, and widening of the ditch by removal of approximately 611,000 cubic yards of earth.

Interest in the project has been indicated by 13 proposed bidders from Missouri, Illinois, Kentucky, Tennessee and Arkansas who have requested plans and specifications.

Estimated costs have not been made available. However, Wilkins indicated $150,000 may be expected.

Wilkins said no bond issue is anticipated for the proposed improvements.

Members of the board of supervisors are Everett B. Gee, president, John H. Edwards, Tom F. Hunter, Thomas B. Allen and Bill Huffstutler.

The improvement in Sino-Japanese relations is occurring at a much faster rate than American officials believed possible. Japan will move one step closer to establishing formal diplomatic ties with China when Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka visits the mainland at the end of September at the invitation of Premier Chou En-lai. For many years, Japanese leaders resisted pressure from the intellectual community, the left- wing parties, and other groups to normalize relations with China. But President Nixon's failure to consult Tokyo before he announced his visit to Peking was interpreted as a green light for the Japanese to proceed on an independent course of action.

What is behind the recent Chinese - Japanese courtship? Chou is reported to feel that any normalization of relations must come before death of Mao Tse-tung, the leading wartime symbol of anti-Japanese resistance. Furthermore, the Chinese urgently need foreign technology to carry out their new Five -Year Plan.

The main obstacle to improved relations is Taiwan. Peking insists that Tokyo must break diplomatic ties with the Chiang Kai-shek regime, but it no longer demands abrogation of the Japan- Taiwan peace treaty as a precondition for negotiations. Japan appears ready to accept the Chinese position. At a news conference on Aug. 7, Tanaka said that, "No country in the world has been able to retain recognition of Taiwan while recognizing China, and Japan cannot expect to be an exception." In spite of their extensive investments on Taiwan, the Japanese view China as a source of needed raw materials.

It will not be easy for China to forget the past. From the Sino-Japanese War of 1894 through the Second World War, China suffered one humiliating defeat after another at the hands of Japan. George Ball, writing in the New York Times Magazine (June 25, 1972), estimates that between the invasion of Manchuria in 1931 and the end of World War II, Japan was responsible for as many as 15 million Chinese deaths. The Chinese still fear a revival of Japanese militarism, and they believe that Japan will attempt to fill the vacuum left by the reduction of American military forces in Southeast Asia. "The inherent contradictions in the relations of a backward China and an industrially striving Japan," writes Ball, "are almost certain to lead to rivalry for hegemonic primacy in the Far East -- a rivalry that will pit the magnetic pull of China's vast population against Japan's increasing economic leverage over the whole of Asia."

CONGRESS WRESTLES WITH FARM LABOR PROBLEM

While reports vary on the effect Cesar Chavez' lettuce boycott is having on the growers, one thing is certain — the issue is nearing the boiling point.

There is already great pressure on the Congress to settle the heady question of whether the nation does or does not need a national farm labor law. As Chavez makes more noise, and is listened to by more people the pressure on Congress increases.

The Democratic party, in its national platform, pledges support to the United Farm Workers boycott. And several days ago 31 Congressmen added their stamp of approval by signing a letter to the Secretaries of the 11 Federal Departments, asking them to ban "non- United Farm Workers" lettuce from governmental eating spots.

The problem for boycott promoters, however, is that the issue is not over union- picked lettuce versus non- union - picked lettuce, but over Chavez' objection to the fact that lettuce growers now compel their workers to pay money to the Teamsters union instead of compelling them to pay money to the UFW.

What Chavez wants, of course, is complete control of the U.S. farm labor force. He's not content that they simply be union members, as most of the lettuce workers are (Teamsters); he insists that they be members of the United Farm Workers Union and work under Chavez style terms — including the seven-day compulsory union shop (which gives the workers seven days to join the UFW or lose their jobs); the exclusive hiring hall (which gives Chavez henchmen the authority to refer whomever they please for jobs, wherever and whenever they please), and blacklisting privileges (which enable Chavez to kick any worker out of the union who he doesn't like).

More than a dozen national farm labor proposals already have been introduced in the present Congress. While differing in individual features, they are similar in that they are modeled after the basically bad National Labor Relations Act, and would damage farm employees and employers both by placing the authority of the Federal government behind the practice of firing workers who decline to pay money to a labor organization they neither want nor feel they need.

Also along the lines of the NLRA, the proposals all would extend to agriculture the very controversial provision of the NLRA which requires employers to bargain with union officials over the issue of compulsory unionism.

While it is doubtful that the controversy will heat up enough during the present Congress to tighen a legal noose around farm industry employees, there can be little doubt that farm labor legislation will be a major issue by the time the new Congress is seated next January. Chavez will see to that. He will also try to see that any legislative solution is to his liking.

Whether or not a national law is needed is something the Congress will have to wrestle with.

One thing they might keep in mind, and we will do our best to remind them now and again, is that the lettuce boycott (and before that the grape boycott) is feasible only because growers are in a position to force their employees into joining a union.

Where compulsory unionism, including the compulsory hiring hall, is not forbidden, Chavez can use his boycotts to force the growers to do his organizing for him. In other words, he can force the growers to sign contracts that force workers to join the union.

Any legislative solution must consider the employees as well as the UFW and the growers, because it's their rights that are violated by compulsory unionism.

If the workers were legally guaranteed the Right to Work in California, Chavez today would be elsewhere.

AN IMAGINARY INTERVIEW

Mr. Gerry Pratt, a West Coast newspaper columnist, reports an imaginary interview with an imaginary old man of the kind who ran businesses in the days when there was far less government interference with the individual and far more respect for government leaders. The old man reminded columnist Gerry Pratt that, "There was time before you were old enough to lick a stamp when I could mail a letter to New York for 2 - cents and it cost me $10 to telephone there. Today, he said, the postage is eight cents and the telephone call is down to $1 after six p.m. They are both utilities, the post office and the telephone company. One is run by the government and the rate has gone up 400 percent. The other is private and the cost has gone down about 900 per cent." The old man points out, "... the most inflationary cost in this country today is the cost of government."

Mr. Pratt's mythical old man also held strong views on the inconsistency of government: "... government sells the oil industry a billion dollars worth of oil leases in Alaska ... then comes along and stalls for two years before it decides you can build a pipeline to get out the oil they sold you. They put $800 million into an SST then because it was going to make as much noise as a 747 they paid another $300 million not to finish the job." There is no end to examples such as these, and Mr. Pratt touches on only a few. But they explain why respect for government andconfidence in government is disappearing as rapidly as the gold at Fort Knox.

There is little doubt that we are becoming highly specialized in almost every field of human endeavor. It is one of our strengths. Unfortunately, it's also one of our weaknesses.

The man who devotes his entire time and effort to one particular kind of problem develops special skills and knowledge which make him an expert in that particular area. Without exposure to other concerns, however, he may also develop "tunnel vision." Tunnel vision, says the Wall Street Journal, prevents executives from seeing beyond the special problems of their own departments. It results in a "narrow, one-sided inflexible view."

It's a common ailment — even among otherwise competent leaders. Most managers or supervisors get their start, of necessity, in one specialty or another. The tendency — at the bottom of the ladder — is for people to know more and more about less and less. Unfortunately, the more knowledgeable some individuals become in their own work, the more all-important it becomes, in their way of thinking, and less sensitive they are to the viewpoints of people in other departments.

How does a manager widen his own viewpoint and that of the people under him? The best way is by recognizing the dangers of "tunnel vision" and fighting against it from the very start. He uses every possible contact to boarden his point of view and to understand the problems of the other departments and the business as a whole.

He doesn't build a fence around his department. He makes an effort to understand the jobs of other executives and what their departments are trying to accomplish.

He doesn't automatically take issue with everything they say, and act as if their work is in competition with his own. Nor does he respond in kind when the other fellow does something shortsighted.

He also makes a real effort to see where his activity fits in the overall picture. He knows that many problems cut across organization lines — what's best for his section or department may not always be what's best for the company as a whole. He appreciates the difference between a department and company point of view.

You'll seldom find him mistaking his corner of the office for the whole building.

THE HARP LESSON

I listened attentively while the salesman told his story. I liked what he was saying. He knew his products thoroughly. He knew how and why they fit into our marketing plans. His arguments were objective and his timing was good.

Suddenly I knew that he had made a sale ... that he need do no more than ask for the order and my signature.

But he kept on talking.

Couldn't he see, I asked myself, that he had sold me? Didn't my mood, my manner, tell him that I was ready to buy?

Talk, talk, talk ...

I realized then that I was no longer listening. His voice had become a rasping distraction ... noise instead of words. My fingers, I noticed, were drumming the desk. I'd had it. My one aim now was to end this interminable monologue.

I stood up. "I'm sorry," I said. "I' can't give you any more time. I'm not interested, really."

"But I thought," he began. "I ...".

"You thought I was interested," I said. "Perhaps I was, but not now. I've changed my mind.

Before he left, I should have told him, I suppose that he'd talked himself out of an order. I didn't. I simply couldn't be bothered.

It is something of a paradox that talk, the medium of success in salesmanship, can also so easily become the medium of its failure.

Oliver Wendell Holmes put it well:

"Talking is much like playing the harp. There is as much in laying the hands on the strings to stop their vibrations as in twanging them to bring out their music."

Good salesmen know this. They tell their story and listen. They say what they have to say and shut up.

DAMAGE FROMDAY CARE

Although legislation to set up Federal "child development" centers was vetoed last year, many Congressmen are still pushing for these institutions. The "anti-poverty" bill contains a provision for day care centers very similar to the vetoed bill, and Senator Walter Mondale, one of its supporters, has been holding hearings before the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Subcommittee on children and youth.

Those who favor placing young children in these institutions should pay careful heed to the testimony of Dr. Dale Meers, a child psychoanalyst with Children's Hospital in Washington, D. C. Dr. Meers has done extensive research into the effects of institutional day care on young children and his findings are very revealing.

Testifying before Senator Mondale's subcommittee, Dr. Meers said: "Eight years ago I would have been unreservedly supportive of day care for the very young," but because of his research "became increasingly concerned that the use of early day care was fraught with psychiatric dangers that are as severe as those of the latch- key child of the streets."

"I know of few researchers," Dr. Meers continued, "who dispute the probability that mild to severe developmental failures derive from 'institutionalization.' "

While studying day care in Eastern Europe, Dr. Meers "was singularly depressed by what I saw... room after room, center after center, of passive and despondent youngsters... It seemed to me that one could visually discern direct relationship between the passivity and length of time the children had been enrolled." Dr. Meers' testimony should serve as a warning to all those who think children are better off in institutions than in homes. HLH.

NEW YORK (AP) — Did you get a lot done last year?

You did? And feeling pretty complacent about it, too? A lot of people are like that — always patting themselves on the back for the number of things they manage to get done.

You probably wouldn't feel so smug, however, about the list of things you achieved, if you were honest enough to look at the other side of the balance sheet and list the things you didn't do in the previous 12 months.

Without knowing you at all, for example, I'll wager that you — like me — didn't —

Teach Sophia Lorean to eat spaghetti with chopsticks.

Box a compass.

Win an argument with a woman.

Go wadding in a mountain stream with Julie Andrews.

Write a letter to a congressman. h

Send a congratulatory telegram to your mother on your birthday.

Take a teen-ager to lunch during National Brotherhood Week.

Find a new secret parking space for your car.

Write something immortal underwater with a pen.

See your dentist twice.

And those are only a few of the things you didn't do. Man, I'll also bet that you didn't —

Challenge your boss to a game of Indian hand-wrestling and beat him.

Invent a new form of pleasure the government can't put a tax on.

Sharpen a pencil for a pretty secretary.

Sit in the lap of receptionist in your office and cry on her shoulder.

Tell a Polish bartender a new Italian joke.

Do anything for the national ecology except get a summer tan.

Attend three P-TA meetings in a row.

Buy more than one box of Girl Scout cookies.

Learn all the stanzas of the "Star-Spangled Banner."

Read the Bible clear through for the first time in your life.

Inherit a fortune

When you compare all these things you didn'z do with the piddling things you did do, puny man, doesn't it make you feel you kind of wasted your time?

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON —Those who have talked to Lyndon Johnson lately say he is calmly getting his affairs in order for an early demise.

When he's depressed, he sometimes muses aloud about the low life expectancy of the Johnson menfolk. He recalls that his father died of a heart attack in his early sixties. A similar fate, suggests LBJ, now 64, probably awaits him.

As evidence that he believes his own dire speculation, he is quietly setting his estate in order. He sold the family TV interests, subject to government approval, for about $9 million. He is also withdrawing from business interests that require his active supervision and looking for investments that won't create problems for his heirs.

"He looks five moves down the chessboard," an intimate told us. "He doesn't want his wife and children to be left with any hard decisions."

The former President has withdrawn almost completely from the spotlight since he left the White House. He won't talk to the press, won't respond to attacks, won't permit even his friends to draw him into a discussion of national affairs.

This is so uncharacteristic of the Lyndon Johnson who dominated Washington for five years that he has become, in retirement, a mystery man. For an insight into this strange, new Johnston, we spoke to half a dozen of his closest friends who have kept in touch with him. We agreed to withhold their identities in return for their frank answers.

--LBJ'S PAINS --

They generally agree that Johnson went through severe withdrawal pains as the presidential power slowly slipped from his fingers four years ago. He departed Washington feeling he was a maligned and misunderstood man.

The angry antiwar protestors didn't seem to understand, in his view, that he really cared. They were never told how he stayed awake nights to check on American casualties. When soldiers in Vietnam wrote to him, he personally answered their letters. "He would spend as much time on them as he did on a document to the secretary of state," recalls a former aide.

Nor had any previous President sponsored so much social legislation. Dwight Eisenhower left 45 social programs on the books, costing just under $10 billion (B) a year. When Johnson departed, there were 435 programs with a yearly price tag of more than $25 billion(B).

He pushed through John Kennedy's voting rights law, which enfranchised millions of blacks in the South. Johnson began the war on poverty, aimed at ending hunger and ignorance. There was a model cities program to cure urban ills, medicare for the elderly and medicaid for the needy.

He felt his critics overlooked these giant achievements and emphasized instead his Texas mannerisms and his wheeler -dealer politics. He was disappointed when the poor and the downtrodden didn't hail him as their savior.

After he left the White House, recall friends, he alternately brooded and plunged into work on the LBJ library.

The criticism of his war policies, meanwhile, reached new crescendos. Not only did he start reflecting on the low Johnson life expectancy, but he began chain -smoking the cigarettes he had given up after his 1955 heart attack. He also ate his way up to 235 pounds.

-- CALORIES AND CIGARILLOS

Inevitably, he was struck earlier this year with another seizure. Now he must keep an inhalor handy for occasional quick breaths of oxygen. A house servant with an eye on the clock also brings him a pill and a glass of water at regular intervals.

He negotiated with his doctor and finally agreed to give up cigarettes for less frequent cigarillos. And he has brought his weight down to 209 pounds.

His attitude, meanwhile, has become almost serene. He no longer betrays the least concern over criticism nor bitterness over the nation's seeming ingratitude.

One friend describes LBJ's attitude toward his critics as "turning the other cheek."

"He's not mad at anybody," shrugs another.

Agrees still another: Johnson "feels that his record is there, that his deeds will remain after the criticism has faded, that history will vindicate him."

All the intimates who talked to us about Johnson remarked on his amazing new magnanimity. But one suggested that "all the hate —Johnson stories must hurt the old man inside."

Those who visit him down on the Pedernales say, except for his occasional morbid moods, he seems to be enjoying retirement. He stays on the ranch, takes off when he pleases to look at the deer or inspect the grass. "This is the first time in 0 years I am making my own schedule," he says happily.

Friends have been unable to get much out of him on the presidential election, except that he had a good visit with George McGovern and that McGovern treated him "with affection and respect."

His own term in the White House, he has said, was a "sobering experience." He seems quite satisfied, meanwhile, to let history be his judge.

Questions Fly Over Retirement Lease

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The state Board of Public Buildings played a little game of "button, button, who gets the lease" Tuesday.

It wound up in a continuation of a long political feud and with the taxpayers stuck with additional costs.

At stake is the question of where the public school retirement system is going to have its headquarters. Currently they are in a building owned by Thomas T. "Ted" Stewart of Jefferson City. They will stay there at an increased monthly rental until a lease contract is finally approved.

Here's what happened:

Last week Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth, the Republican member of the Board of Public Buildings, refused to sign the proposed lease. He charged political favoritism since Stewart is the Cole County campaign chairman of Edward L. Dowd, the Democratic nominee for governor.

Tuesday Gov. Warren E. Hearnes and Lt. Gov. William S. Morris, the two Democratic members of the board, said Danforth's charges were ridiculous and far-fetched.

Morris said if there were any politics involved, the contract wouldn't go to a friend of Dowd, who beat Morris for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in the primary.

Morris said he's sign the lease.

Hearnes said Dowd had not one iota of anything to do with the lease contract.

But he said he would join Danforth in refusing to sign the lease in order to clear the names of John D. Paulus, state director of public buildings, and of Stewart.

Danforth first asked 24 hours to think things over but he didn't wait that long. Soon after the meeting was over he sent the governor a letter saying he thought the lease was improper on two grounds.

"If a rebidding of the lease causes additional expense to the state," he said, "that is the fault of Mr. Paulus. If Mr. Paulus violated the rule of the Board of Public Builfings. I did not."

Hearnes fired back a quick reply saying the lease would be rebid.

"Because of the cloud caused by your unwarranted statements and accusations," Hearnes said, "I am joining you in refusing to sign the lease. There will be an additional cost to the state, but the responsibility will not be the faule of Mr. Paulus. The blame must and will be shared equally by you and me."

The governor said he would join Morris in signing the lease "if you would lay aside politics and allow savings to the taxpayers to be the sole objective....

"I am deeply sorry that your political instincts have caused you to take such action."

It takes two of three signatures to certify the lease.

Stewart had the low bid of $15,800 or a rate of $3.29 a square foot.

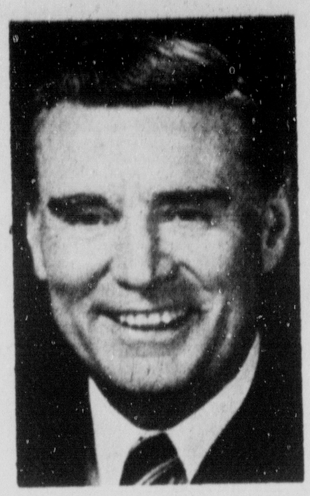
He sat in on Tuesday's board meeting and said his next bid would be considerably higher.

Paulus said earlier that if the next lowest acceptable bidder's property is leased, it would cost the state $6,160 more a year.

The property in question is on U. S. 50 West. Danforth said originally that it was too far out but the retirement system said the location was acceptable.

In his letter to the governor, Danforth said the lease was improper because the retirement system occupied the building Sept. 1 without a formal lease being approved.

The Standard Endorses



EDWARD L. DOWD, Candidate for Governor of Missouri.

This is the first of a series of short endorsements, with pictures, of the candidates for state office on the Democratic ticket.

Basically Ed Dowd is a lawyer. But that title barely scratches the surface of his achievements in the interest of law and order.

After attending St. Louis University, Washington University School of Law and St. Louis University School of Law, Mr. Dowd served as special agent for the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

He was elected Circuit Attorney of St. Louis in 1952. And, in 1964 was appointed president of the St. Louis Board of Police Commissioners.

Meanwhile, he practiced law in his Boatmen's Bank Building offices, lectured at the St. Louis Police Academy and served on the faculty of the St. Louis University School of Law.

Ed Dowd's efforts earned him many honors: Man of the Year Award of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce. Reader's Digest Distinguished Service Award. National Police Hall of Fame Award. St. Louis Argus Distinguished Public Service Award.

Ed and his wife Carol live in St. Louis and have eight children. He is a native Missourian who has spent most of his 54 years living in and working in behalf of the state.

He is honest, mature and capable to serve as our State leader.

Two Nevada Men In New Madrid Jail

NEW MADRID — Two Las Vegas, Nev. men, Travis Lee Webb, 36, and Orbry Eugene Marshall, 21, are serving 30- day county jail sentences after pleading guilty to charges of defrauding an innkeeper before Magistrate Leo Hedgepeth.

Judge Hedgepeth also levied $50 fines against each of the men charged with eating at the Pure Oil Truck Plaza cafe along Interstate 55 and then leaving without paying. The men reportedly told officers they knew they couldn't pay when they entered the cafe.

Roy Marshall was given 30- day suspended jail sentence and fined $50 on peace disturbance charge.

Charged with nonsupport, Roy Evans was ordered to pay $25 court costs and $35 monthly, beginning in October, for child support.

Fined on careless and imprudent driving charges were William Granville Gowan, $16; Martin Anthony Weaver, failure to yield right- of - way, $20; Darrell Glen Schuerenberg, $16; Harold Ray Miller, failure to exercise highest degree of care, $25; and George Levon Salter, also charged with having no operator license, $40.

Six paying fines of $20 each on charges of operating a vehicle without operator licenses were Joseph Vernon Edwards, Robert Louis Parr, Clarence Junior Parks, Eara Oscar Pierce, W. D. Simmon and Jess Robert Watters. Johnny Edwards was fined $16 on similar charge.

Raymond Carl Carpenter paid $35 fine on charge of following too closely while operating a vehicle. Berry D. Murphy was fined $28 on speeding charge.

Richard Dial was assessed $25 fine on charges of failure to have a trailer inspected and operating a vehicle without trailer license. John Douglas Dial paid$20 fine on charge of operating a vehicle with no vehicle license.

For failure to transfer license, Henry Howard Holt was fined $20. Ellis Dunn was fined $16 on a charge of operating vehicle with defective brakes. Amos Michael French was fined $20 for operating a vehicle with improper muffler system.

Judgment of $408.44 was awarded the curators of University of Missouri in a civil suit against William Frank and Tessie Taylor.

Pair Granted Probation

NEW MADRID — Two charged with felonies were granted probation after being sentenced Tuesday in Circuit Court before Judge William L. Ragland.

James McHaney, alias Mahany, of Lilbourn received consecutive sentences of two years for burglary and two years for larceny. He pleaded guilty to breaking into the home of L. B. Milton of New Madrid Route Two on Sept. 2 when a rifle and portable radio valued at $75 were allegedly stolen. He was granted probation without supervision.

Henry Johnson of Baderville, charged with felonious assault July 23 on Charles Johnson with a five-inch hunting knife, was granted probation without supervision after he received a two-year sentence on his guilty plea.

Glenda Jean Abner of East Prairie Star Route was divorced from Charles David Abner and restored to her maiden name of Figley.

Custody of three children, $200 monthly child support and a divorce was granted Alice Elaine Malcolm of Sikeston in her suit against Allen K. Malcolm.

Irene Crumley Penrod of Portageville was divorced from Robert Louis Penrod. She received custody of two children and $25 per week for each child for support.

Custody of seven children and a divorce were awarded Lucille Perkins in her suit against David Robert Perkins.

Blades Motor Sales Inc. was granted $2,065.21 judgment against Edward Schaffer of Lilbourn.

Five Treated

Bloodhounds are so named because they were the first thoroughbred dogs.

State Old Age Assistance To Be Adjusted

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — State old age assistance grants will be adjusted to allow welfare recipients to keep a 20 per cent increase in Social Security benefits, the governor's office and the state Welfare Division announced today.

Federal legislation providing the 20 per cent Social Security increase did not require states to pass on the increase to welfare recipients. Normally, the old age assistance grants — a form of welfare — would have been reduced, but the state obtained permission to increase the over-all level of combined grants by $20 a month.

Regardless of the changes, all Social Security recipients who also are on welfare will get more money, said state Welfare Director Proctor N. Carter.

Persons receiving the maximum in old age assistance of $85 a month mya hve that reduced, depending on their Social Security increase.

But the old age assistance reduction will not be more than $5 a month, Carter said.

Increases in old age assistance will go to persons under the $85 Maximum, depending on the amount of their Social Security increase.

Carter cited this example:

If a person is receiving the old age assistance maximum of $85 a month and his Social Security payment is increased by $22 a month, his old age assistance payment will be reduced to $68 a month.

The minimum federal social security payments are $84.50 A month and the maximum is $267.80.

Of the 93,444 old age assistance recipients in Missouri, about 65,000 also receive Social Security benefits.

About 33,000 of those receiving both grants will get the full 20 per cent increase with no change in their old age assistance payments. Another 19,000 will receive the Social Security increase and also an increase in their old agreassistance grant. About 13,000 will have their old age assistance reduced.

Of the 29,000 old age assistance recipients not receiving Social Security benefits, most will have no change old age payments since they are receiving the maximum.

Frankly Speaking

By Thomas F. Eagleton

Most Americans probably think that earthquakes occur only in the western states of California, Nevada and Alaska, but Southeast Missouri is also a major quake area.

A great deal of research into the nature and causes of earthquakes has been conducted in recent years, but most of it has been concerned with West Coast quakes. Not enough research has been done on the unique characteristics of Missouri earthquakes.

Many Missourians have heard or read about the devastating New Madrid earthquake of 1811 –an upheaval that shook the earth violently, uprooted great trees, blackened the skies for hundreds of miles, and caused the formation of Tennessee's Reelfoot Lake.

Fortunately, a quake of that size has not occurred in Missouri since, and the southeastern part of the state was so sparsely populated in 1811 that loss of life and property damage were minimized.

But since then the area surrounding the Bootheel has often been shaken by minor quakes and tremors, lending a distinct air of uncertainty to the lives of those who reside in Southeast Missouri.

Worldwide research on earthquakes –much of it financed with government money at leading West Coast universities –leads scientists to believe that within the next decade it may be possible to predict earthquakes before they happen and that someday we may be able to prevent them.

Most U.S. earthquake research has been concerned with the geological conditions that exist in the West, and too little attention has been paid to the unique geology of Southeast Missouri.

However, this situation should soon change. My bill to increase funding for earthquake research –just passed by Congress –will provide $8 -10 million for research by the National Science Foundation during the 1973 fiscal year. I have received assurances from NSF officials that at least some of this money will go for studies on Missouri quakes.

While some fine research on Missouri earthquakes is already being done locally –by Missouri educational institutions –it is hoped that a boost from the National Science Foundation will make it possible to mount an expanded program to discover the causes of the quake situation in Southeast Missouri.

As this work progresses, we will draw closer to the time when we can provide greater protection of the safety and well being of many Missouri citizens who now live with the possibility of a terrifying and devastating quake hanging over their heads.

Top Girl Watcher Tells How Its Done

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In a square crowded with beautiful women, deborair Joe Beagin, balding head of the International Society of Girl Watchers, is showing how it's done.

It's all right, he explains learnedly, to turn the head toward the receding figure of a passing woman, but it's a no-no to make a U-turn and start to follow.

To demonstrate, Beagin walks arm in arm with a model as three attractive women stroll past. The Beagin technique is to push his companion ahead of him as he steps back and turns his head to observe with slightly bulging eyes.

This gambit is intended for use by husband or boyfriend in that riskiest of all situations for a girl watcher — diverting his attention from his female companion to another attraction.

The idea is not to get caught, he advises the 17, members of his organization, ranging from a 13-year-old rookie to an 85-year-old seasoned vet. Annaul dues are $6.

This week Beagin, who devotes full time to the organization and its pursuits, is advising the annual "Girl Watchers Week" at Century City, a skyscraper business complex in West Los Angeles containing an estimated 4, short- skirted secretaries.

Sensitive to charges of "male chauvinism," watcher sponsors hired Beagin and recruited a corps of local secretaries and models to establis decorum and hand out tickets to offenders.

"We abhor improper watching," insists Beagin, who has a 24-year-old son. "Being obvious and ungentlemanly about it spoils the pasttime for everyone."

On the other hand, some members of the ticket corps suggest that Beagin's tongue- in - cheek techniques may be too direct.

"I don't think the head should be turned," insists Cricket Goldenbee, whose blonde hair contrasts with purple hotpants.

Adds another blonde ticket -giver, Jerry Gorney, "I can tell when somebody turns around to look at me. You know, it's like you can tell when someone's staring at you."

As for women's lib, they've noticed too. Wrote President Virginia Carter of the Los Angeles chapter of the National Organization for Women:

"We protest Girl Watching Week because it invades the privacy of women who must work or shop in Century City ... forcing them either to remain indoors for a week, or to submit meekly to the unwanted, leering scrutiny of girl watchers."

Scotsman Rules Own Islands; Has South Pacific Kingdom

SYDNEY (AP) — The King of the Cocos walks through his island kingdom in bare feet, a dagger at his waist.

He is John Clunies-Ross, a Scotsman about 45, whose coral domain in the Indian Ocean is about to be shaken by the Australian government. An official report tells of his neofeudal role as overlord of the 483 Malays who work his big copra plantations.

The uncrowned king is a descendant of a Scottish adventurer who in 1827 was the first permanent settler of the Cocos, a cluster of 27 coral islands 1,720 miles northwest of Perth. In 1886 Queen Victoria granted the islands, which have a land area of 5.5 square miles, to the clan in perpetuity.

According to the official report, attitudes have changed little since then. G.M. Kerr, an assistant secretary in Australia's External Territories Department, reported there is no written law, and the only court is made up of Clunie-Ross, his plantation manager, James Dixon, and six headmen. If there is an appeal, Clunies-Ross sits as the sole judge.

The average weekly wage is about $2.40, paid in tokens which can only be redeemed at a Clunie's-Ross store, despite an Australian agreement with Clunies-Ross in 1956 — when Britain handed over administration of the Cocos to Australia — that he would introduce Australian currency.

Australians who have lived on Cocos say the natives are well cared for.

And Clunies-Ross reportedly has brought one facet of modern life to his people. He is said to have achieved zero population growth by distributing birth control pills free.

Under the 1956 agreement, Clunies-Ross sold or leased 364 acres of West Island to the Australian government for use as an air base and communications center.

The remainder is under his direct rule, and the official report said villagers are forbidden to leave without his permission. If they do, they are not permitted to return.

Clunies-Ross also maintains a Howard Hughes-like secrecy by deciding who can and cannot visit his kingdom.

His wife and six children live in England and he is believed to spend six months every other year with them there.

John Peacock, Australia's minister of external territories, told Parliament Wednesday that he plans to visit the islands in the next few weeks to check conditions. He said "a fundamental reappraisal" of relationships between ClunieRoss and the inhabitants is needed.

BIGGEST BALLET SEASON

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) — The New York City Ballet had its biggest audience for a single performance this summer on July 6, at its summer home in the Saratoga Performing Arts Center.

Attendance was ahead of previous years each week and therefore the company had its biggest Saratoga season ever, with an over-all increase of 19.5 per cent over last year, or approximately 13,000 more people. Total for the season was more than 80,000.

The company, which did a "Salute to Stravinsky week at Lincoln Center in early summer, did many of those works at Saratoga, bringing more than 20 new ballets this year, which generated much interest.

Ann Landers

Snippy Niece Should Be Put In Place

Dear Ann Landers: I am a woman in my 50's so this letter is not the complaint of a sensitive young girl. I have a niece who is 30 years of age--and she just oves to latch on to me at family parties, especially when others are within hearing distance, and tell me how her mother (my younger sister) always used me as the example of the "bad girl" in the family during her growing-up years. Her favorite quote is, "Mom would always say to us, 'You don't want to grow up to be like your Aunt Betty, do you?.'"

I have been deeply hurt by these references to the past and cannot for the life of me figure out why her mother would do this to me. I was not the perfect girl, but then I was no tramp and I see no justification for such vilification. I would never permit a child of mine to treat any of my sisters in this manner.

Another family is coming up and I dread it. Can you think of a tactful way to head off my niece's inevitable comments? ---Deeply Hurt

Dear D. H.: There is no tactful way to head off a bubblehead with a mouth that runs on a trolley. Your best approach is to stop her dead on her tracks. The minute she starts to spin the broken record, let her have it. Tell her you are bored with that piece of history and if she can't think of anything else to say to you, silence would be a welcome improvement.

Dear Ann Landers: You said in a column not long ago that it is in poor taste to make reference to gifts on a printed invitation. What is your opinion of an invitation that suggests to guests that they bring their own liquor to a 25th wedding anniversary party? Thank you. ---MGB

Dear MGB: "Bring Your Own Bottle" parties aren't my cup of tea, although they serve a purpose for some people and some occasions. A 25th anniversary with written invitations is a special event, however, and tradition says the host should furnish the refreshments---whatever they are.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 16 years old and tired of people telling me that my generation is the worst ever. Why don't they understand that every generation of parents and grandparents were horrified by "the younger generation" and believed they were going straight to the dogs! Will you please do teen-agers everywhere a favor and print the following paragraph?

"Children of today love luxury. They have bad manners, contempt for authority, and they show disrespect for their elders. They no longer rise when elders enter the room. They contradict their parents, chatter in company, gobble up the dainties on the table, cross their legs and tyrannize their teachers."

Those lines sound as if they were written by someone who had forgotten his youth. Actually they are a paraphrase of what was written by Socrates, somewhere between 469 and 399 B. C. So you see Ann, we are not so different after all. ---Hellcat 1972 Model

Dear Cat: I've said it before and I'll say it again. A generation that is against war, interested in social justice, deplores hypocrisy and racism and is determined to save the environment can't be all bad. I see a great deal to admire in this present generation of young people. Moreover, I predict many of the 1972 Hellcats will be the ultra-conservative pussycats by the time they have children of their own.

MRS. KEN SCHMIDT OF NORFORK, NEB., SAYS:

Rodery-Lancaster

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Rodery

DEXTER ——The wedding of Miss Sheila Lancaster and Kenneth Rodery was solemnized Saturday at South Pleasant Valley General Baptist Church.

The Rev. Marion Gipson, pastor of New Bethel Baptist church, officiated. The program of nuptial music was played by Leann Cryts. Darrell Rodery, a brother of the groom sang, "Whither Thou Goest."

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Lancaster of Dexter. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Rodery of Bernie.

The couple repeated double -ring vows at 7:30 in the evening as they stood before an altar setting of arched candelabras with white tapers. Seven gold -branched candelabras holding white tapers were on each side. The candelabras were strung with boxwood greenery.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor -length gown of white peau de soie with long, tapered sleeves. The bodice featured a shaped neckline and a gathered skirt which formed a train and fell in a fan shape to the floor.

White lace flowers in staggered rows decorated the hem and train of the skirt. These same flowers ringed the shaped neckline.

The bridal veil was a three tiered finger tip veil of illusion, attached to a double net dior bow. The bridal bouquet of white miniture carnations, pom -poms and margarita daisys with blue baby' breath were tied with blue ribbon and love knots.

Mrs. Lancaster, mother of the bride, wore a mint -green, double -knit dress with lowered neckline, black accessories and a corsage of white pompoms with gold ribbon.

Mrs. Rodery, mother of the bridegroom, selected a hunter -green, double -knit dress, enhanced by matching accessories and a corsage of white pom -poms with gold ribbon.

The maid of honor and sister to the bride, Miss Sandy Lancaster, created her dress, a floor -length, blue and white dotted swiss with scopped neckline, gathered skirt and short, puffed sleeves. A white ribbon sash adorned the high -waisted skirt. Her headdress was a double bow of the same material. Her flowers were two blue margarita daisies with greenery and a white ribbon tied in lover's knots.

Bridesmaid was Lisa Lancaster, younger sister of the bride, and her dress was identical to that of the maid of honor. Her dress was designed and made by the bride, who also designed her own wedding dress.

Darrell Rodery, brother of the bridegroom served as best man. Timmy Rodery, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsmen. Ushers were Mitchell Allen and Terry Brasher, cousins of the bride, also served as candelighters.

After the ceremony, a reception was held in Dexter Community Center. The couple entered through large doors into a hall decorated with a best -wishes sign over the guest book which graced a small table covered with a white lace cloth. The guest book was attended by Miss Brenda Rodery, the groom's sister.

The reception room was decorated with accents of blue and white, the bride's chosen colors.

Mrs. Larry Thompson and Mrs. Kenneth Ledbetter were hostesses for the reception. Miss Emma Davis, Mrs. Marvin Ross, Mrs. Larry Richardson, and Miss Sharon Blunt served the guests.

After the reception, the couple was showered with blue and white rice while departing for a honeymoon in the Ozarks.

The bride is a 1972 graduate of Dexter High School and the groom is a 1971 graduate of Bernie High School. He is employed at Dexter Memorial Hospital. The couple will returned to its new home in Bernie Tuesday.

Out -of -town guests were Linda Sullenger and Mrs. Cline Allen of Lilbourn; Mrs. Jerry Brasher and Robin and Tony, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brasher and Mr. and Mrs. A.B. Ward, Gary Ward, of Portageville; Mr. and Mrs. Edsel Edwards and Mrs. Thelbert Coleman of Bloomfield; Mr. and Mrs. Larry Richardson of Jonesboro, Ark.; Mr. and Mrs. J.B. Lancaster, Mr. and Mrs. James Lancaster and Mr. and Mrs. Don Lancaster and daughters of Risco; Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Hicks and Mr. and Mrs. C.N. Triplett of Essex; Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Wheeler of Powe; Lloyd Lancaster of Malden; N.F. Mobley of Poplar Bluff; Randall Fowler of New Madrid; Miss Debra Huffman, Mrs. H.C. Huffman of Malden; Mrs. Fredia Blevins of Bernie; and Carolyn Warren of Clarkton.

Professor's Wife Becomes Cook For McGovern Family

WASHINGTON (AP) — For months, Eleanor McGovern wrestled with a problem that plagues most politicians' wives: how to keep the home fires burning from the campaign trail.

Her answer: Libby Strauss, a good-natured Florida woman who once volunteered to cook breakfast for Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern and his family during the Democratic convention at Miami Beach. Now she's the resident McGovern housemother whose favorite pastime is turning out gourmet specialities while Mrs. McGovern campaigns for her husband.

"I went to the hotel to cook breakfast for them and came out five days later," Mrs. Strauss said in an interview at her new headquarters, the McGovern's Japanese-style house in Washington.

"I suppose you could say I'm Eleanor's assistant," she said, "kind of a surrogate mother. Right now I act as everything: secretary, shopper, cook. They gave me carte blanche."

Mrs. Straus arrived at the McGovern household two weeks ago, bringing along two folders of her own recipes. "Oh heavens, there must be at least 1,500 of them," she said. "I brought everything: hor d'oeuvres, souffles, mousses, everything."

Ever since, she's been turning out dishes like chicken tetrazzini and aubergines farcies (stuffed eggplant) for the McGovern entourage of children, grandchildren, in-laws and friends.

Steven, 20, and Mary 17, live at home; so do Susan, 26, her husband James Rowen and their 8-month-old son, Matthew. Ann McGovern Mead, 27, lives nearby with her two children, Timothy, 2, and Kevin, 3 months. Ann's husband, Wilber Mead, is a student at Augustana College in South Dakota. Another daughter, Terry, 23, lives in Charlottesville, Va. but often comes home on weekends.

"I never know who's going to be here for dinner, and I never say no when they ask if friends can come for dinner," said Mrs. Strauss. "I never say no in my own home."

Home for the 47-year old Mrs. Strauss is a Miami suburb where she has lived for 18 years with her husband, Dr. Harold Strauss, a professor at the University of Miami, and their three children, ages 19, 16 and 8.

Her biggest worry, she said is the family she's left behind, but she added: "When I call home, they just say 'Don't worry, mother.'"

Mrs. Strauss said she shops for the McGoverns "on a limited budget, even for entertaining. I don't buy costly foods, and we eat a lot of chicken and fish." She volunteers her own time and services "because I believe everyone should donate his best efforts to the campaign. By a quirk, I fit in here."

POLLY'S POINTERS

Lemon Aid to Cleaning Stains from Dishwasher

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—I am answering Mrs. L. A. S. who wants to remove fruit stains from the wood top of her dishwasher. The booklet that came with mine says in part not to let water stand on such a top and if it becomes stained or dirty to sand with No. 000 or No. 0000 sandpaper and then wipe area with a cloth soaked with nontoxic mineral oil. Soda water is good for cleaning the top, too.—MRS. J. C.

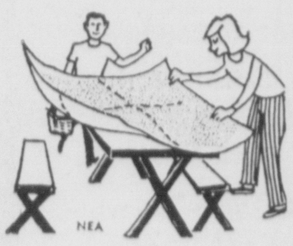
DEAR POLLY—I would like to tell Mrs. L. A. S. that my sister bleaches the wood top of her dishwasher with lemon juice. When stains are removed it is rinsed with clear water and let dry. After a few hours of drying it is wiped with mineral oil but be careful to remove all the excess oil.—MRS. F. M.

DEAR GIRLS—If you do not have sandpaper or mineral oil on hand steel wool (without soap) and vegetable oil work just great, too. Let oil soak in for about one-half hour and then wipe off.—POLLY

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—Can anyone tell me if anything can be done with stainless steel tableware that was cleaned with silver polish that left a cloudy look and stains that I have not been able to remove.—MRS. E. J. W.

DEAR POLLY—My Pet Peeve is with florists who surely could be more original in their funeral arrangement designs. After all these years of arranging they surely could do something more original and artistic than gladiola sprays in a wicker basket. Many of these flowers are later sent to hospitals and it must be depressing to get what is obviously a funeral arrangement put in one's room.—MRS. G. D. C.



DEAR POLLY—Our newlywed budget did not allow for buying a plastic picnic tablecloth. I took four plastic trash can liners, slit them open down one side and across the bottom and sewed them together on the sewing machine. Instant picnic cloth! The size of the cloth wanted will determine the number of bags required.

When traveling put all your cosmetics in your shower cap and save or shorten many a clean-up job.

If it starts to rain and you do not have any plastic to throw over clothes being taken to the laundromat put them in your traveling clothes bag. Hanging items can be carried in the regular way and folded things slip in easily.—MRS. L. L.

Crafts Show Planned At Alley Spring

ALLEY SPRING —The Scenic Riverways Arts and Crafts Association will hold its third show and sale on Oct. 14 and Oct. 15. The two-day event will be at Alley Spring, which is six miles west of Eminence on Highway 106.

The public is invited to this annual event, which last year drew 2,000 visitors from 93 towns, 16 states and two foreign countries. The show and sale is free to the public. Hand-made products from the Ozark Area may be purchased.

For information about exhibiting at the show and sale, call 314-226-5580 or write P.O. Box L, Eminence, Mo. 65466.

RANGE WAS A MILE

DOVER, England (AP) — A 1,700-year-old tower that carried a catapult capable of hurling blocks nearly a mile has been uncovered by archeologists working in the center of this English Channel port.

The tower, probably once 25 feet high, dominated the wall of a Roman shore fort.

Carter To Discuss Changes

POPLAR BLUFF — Proctor N. Carter, Missouri division of Welfare director, will discuss recent federal legislation, changes taking place in the state welfare program and the implications of recent federal requirements Thursday at the annual meeting of Missouri Association for Social Welfare.

The meeting at Aledco's Copper Kettle Restaurant on Highway 67 North will open with a dinner at 6:30 p.m.

Carter has held the position of Division of Welfare director since 1945 and is considered to be one of the most experienced welfare administrators in the nation.

The sponsoring organization, Missouri Association for Social Welfare, draws its membership from both professional and private citizens. Its meetings are open to the public and participants are invited to attend from a 15-county area: Bollinger, Butler, Cape Girardeau, Dunklin, Iron, Madison, Mississippi, New Madrid, Pemiscot, Perry, Scott, Ste. Genevieve, St. Francois, Stoddard and Wayne counties.

Edward Battaglino is chairman of the Southeast Division of Missouri Association for Social Welfare.

Reservations for the dinner may be made through Mrs. Violet Shipton, County Welfare Office, Poplar Bluff 785-6458 or Mrs. Frances Lewis, Regional Diagnostic Clinic, Poplar Bluff 785-0101.

Dandelion greens make a tasty salad when blanched, chilled and served with dressing.

LBJ INTERNS

AUSTIN (AP) — Thirty-one students from the Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs are getting a different perspective on their government studies this summer — they're serving as interns in government offices throughout Texas and across the country.

Summer internships are required between first and second year studies for every student at the LBJ School, a graduate program of the University of Texas at Austin.

The Missouri State Park Board is the first state agency to participate in a new federal work program called "Green Thumb". Projects such as the construction of new nature trails and scenic overlooks are being done by workers in this program all of whom are at least 55 years old.

Judge Sets Trial Dates

BENTON — Trial dates were set for two cases Friday in Circuit Court before Judge Marshall Craig.

On March 24 the Municipal Court of Oran found him guilty and fined him $50 plus $10 court cost. Eftink entered a plea of not guilty and appealed the case to Circuit Court.

Trial also was set for Dec. 11 on a suit brought against State Farm Mutural Insurance Co. by Ray Merrick Jr., who seeks $8,500 for injuries he received Sept. 27, 1971, wher he was struck by a pickup truck driven by Ray A. Illinois Upset Favorite

NEW YORK (AP) — Is Texas Tech for real or is this the real Texas?

The answer will come in Lubbock Saturday night when the Texas Longhorns, unimpressive in their opening game, begin their quest for a fifth consecutive Southwest Conference championship against the Red Raiders of Texas Tech, who were most impressive in whomping Utah 45-3 and New Mexico 41-16.

"We didn't play a poised, polished game," said Darrell Royal after Texas' 23-10 triumph over Miami, Fla. "I was pleased with the effort and I'm delighted with the win, but I'm really concerned about the kind of football team we have."

So is Tech's Jim Carlen.

"Texas," he said, "is a solid club in virtually every area and I think their offensive line is the strongest we've seen since we've been here. But we're a relaxed team and we're looking forward to playing Texas. We know most of their team because we tried to recruit them."

The longshot is tempting, but the Longhorns are the champs until someone proves otherwise. Texas.

Tulane at Michigan—Can Tulane do to Michigan what it did to Georgia? Green Wave turns blue. Michigan.

West Virginia at Stanford—In the immortal words of Satchel Paige, "Don't look back; someone may be gaining on you." Sometimes, it's worse to look ahead, which Stanford might be doing to next week's clash with Southern Cal. Ergo ... West Virginia.

Purdue at Notre Dame—"You can't assess a team on one game," says Northwestern's Alex Agase, a 37-0 loser to Notre Dame, "but Notre Dame is always good and it's a question if they are going to be great." Purdue will be out for blood following last year's fourth-quarter 8-7 loss and two tough losses this season to Bowling Green and Washington. Do Boilermakers have blood? Notre Dame.

Tennessee vs. Auburn at Birmingham—Bill Battle has lost three games in two years at Tennessee, two of them to Auburn. Time for revenge. Tennessee.

Wisconsin at Louisiana State—Wisconsin has won both starts by 31-7 scores and that could be the score of this one, too ... in reverse. Louisiana State.

Florida State at Kansas—Battle of the bomb between David Jaynes of Kansas and Gary Huff of ... Florida State.

Michigan State at Southern California—"Michigan State has as many fast backs as there are in the world," says USC's John McKay. "We'll have to play much better to prevent them from getting outside." Oh! Southern Cal.

Colorado at Oklahoma State— Buffs are thinking national championship. Colorado.

North Carolina at Ohio State—Woody Hayes says last week's layoff will put the Buckeyes at a disadvantage. "At least we didn't lose over the weekend," he said. Nor this weekend, either. Ohio State.

Iowa at Penn State—Hawkeyes are rebuilding and could surprise. Lions' defense, though, is too tough. Pen State.

Oregon at UCLA—UCLA's Wishbone won't score 68, like Oklahoma's did against Oregon, but it'll score enough. UCLA.

North Carolina State at Georgia—Bulldogs bounce back. Georgia.

Illinois at Washington—Illini have just played Michigan State and Southern Cal with Penn State, Ohio State and Michigan just around the Washington corner. Six killer games. This is a Sixkiller game ... and the Upset Special of the Week. Illinois.

Rutgers at Princeton—They started the whole thing back in 1869 and Rutgers won 6-4. This is 1972. Princeton.

The University of Texas has covered more ground by rushing than any other major college football team during the last five seasons. The Longhorns averaged 312.5 yards per game rushing from 1967 through 1971, while second place Oklahoma ran for 297.3. Houston, Arizona State, Ohio State, Notre Dame, Penn State, Michigan, Colorado and Dartmouth rounded out the top 10 teams during the period

Scott Helping Sox Out

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

George Scott helped the Boston Red Sox win a pennant in 1967 and could help them lose one in 1972.

The former Boston slugger, dealt to the Milwaukee Brewers last winter, returned to haunt the Red Sox Tuesday night in the midst of their tension-filled American League East baseball race.

"If I say I'm not fired up playing here, I'd be telling a lie," Scott said after hitting a two-run homer at Fenway Park that led the Brewers to a significant 6-4 triumph over Boston. "After all, I played here for six years and I have a lot of friends here."

The defeat cut Boston's lead in the East to a mere half game over the Detroit Tigers and kept the four-team race in an extremely nervous state.

The Tigers and New York Yankees, both idle Tuesday night, gained ground on the Red Sox. The Yankees moved within 2½ games of Boston and are tied with the Baltimore Orioles, who lost 3-2 to the Cleveland Indians.

In the other American League games, the Kansas City Royals stopped the Chicago White Sox 2-1 and the California Angels nipped the Texas Rangers 2-1. Rain washed out a twi-night doubleheader between the Minnesota Twins and Oakland A's.

National League scores: Pittsburgh 5, Philadelphia 1; Chicago 6, Montreal 0; Atlanta 10, Cincinnati 9; San Francisco 5, Houston 2; New York 3, St. Louis 1 and Los Angeles 7, San Diego 3.

The Red Sox were unable to hold a 4-0 lead built on early two-run homers by Carl Yastrzemski and pitcher Marty Pattin. The Brewers finally caught up in the eighth after getting a run in the fifth on Johnny Briggs' homer and one in the sixth on Ellie Rodriguez' runscoring hit.

Brock Davis touched off Milwaukee's winning rally with a bunt single and eventually came around with the first run on Rodriguez' sacrifice fly. Joe Lahoud then reached base on Yastrzemski's error at first base and Scott promptly put Pattin's pitch into the seats.

Chris Chambliss and Ray Fosse hit consecutive home runs in the fourth inning to lead Cleveland over Baltimore, dealing the Orioles their 32nd onerun defeat of the year.

Chambliss also singled home a Cleveland run in the sixth.

The Orioles scored a run in the fifth on singles by Johnny Oates and Don Buford and a sacrifice fly by Bobby Grich, then scored their second run on Oates' ninth-inning homer.

Steve Busby pitched a fivehitter and Ed Kirkpatrick slammed a home run as Kansas City beat Chicago and dropped the White Sox four games behind the A's. The defeat lowered Oakland's pennant-winning magic number to four in the West.

Rookie Billy Parker hit a home run and Andy Messersmith fired a three-hitter to lead California over Texas. Parker's homer came off Mike Paul in the second inning. The Angels added the eventual winning run in the sixth when Lee Stanton scored on third baseman Jim Mason's throwing error.

Blass Nears 20

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Roberto Clemente would dearly love to get his 3,000th major league hit in Pittsburgh. But the Pirates' Steve Blass isn't too concerned where he gets his 20th victory—or, for that matter, whether he gets it at all.

"Either I do or I don't," Blass said Tuesday night after winning his 19th of the baseball season, scattering eight Philadelphia hits as the Pirates beat the Phillies 5-1.

"I certainly want 20," added Blass, who would become the first Pittsburgh hurler to reach that plateau since Vernon Law did it in 1960, "but I'm not going to worry about it."

Blass will have one more regular-season start, then he'll rest until the start of the National League playoffs against Cincinnati.

It's likely that the 30-year-old right-hander will open the bestof-five playoff Oct. 7 against the Reds' Don Gullett.

But unlike Blass, Gullett had his problems Tuesday night. The Atlanta Braves ripped him for seven runs in six innings and handed him his 10th loss in 18 decisions en route to a 10-9 victory over Cincinnati.

In other National League games, the New York Mets downed St. Louis 3-1, the Chicago Cubs blanked Montreal 60, San Francisco defeated Houston 5-2 and Los Angeles beat San Diego 7-3.

In the American League, Milwaukee topped Boston 6-4, Cleveland edged Baltimore 3-2, California clipped Texas 2-1, and Kansas City nipped the Chicago White Sox 2-1. Minnesota's twinight doubleheader at Oakland was rained out.

Clemente picked up a pair of singles against the Phillies to raise his major league hit total to 2,996, putting him just four short of a lofty mark reached by only eight other players in the history of the game.

Pittsburgh has two more games in Philadelphia before returning home to face New York and Pirates Manager Bill Virdon announced right after that game that, if Clemente reached 2,999, he'd be benched until the start of the series with the Mets.

"We'd like him to get 3,000 at home," Virdon said—and Clemente echoed the sentiment.

"That's what I want," Roberto said. "I play all my life in Pittsburgh. I'd like to get my big hit there."

The Bucs bunched all their runs against the Phils in the sixth inning. Al Oliver doubled in two, Manny Sanguillen singled for two more and Blass singled for the final run.

Ralph Garr, Dusty Baker and Earl Williams drove in two runs apiece for the Braves, who battered Gullett and two relievers for 13 hits. The decisive run, however, came in the top of the ninth inning on Larvell Blanks' sacrifice fly.

Koosman Masters Cardinals , 3-1

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Lefthander Jerry Koosman of the New York Mets had a nohitter on his mind Tuesday night against the St. Louis Cardinals but settled for a 3-1 victory with relief help.

"I had it on my mind after the third inning," said Koosman, who pitched perfectly through five innings and held the Cards hitless through 6 1-3 innings. "Before that I was overjoyed with my control."

Koosman, boosting his record to 10-12 during a struggling season, walked Jorge Roque to start the sixth after the Mets had staked him to a 3-0 lead.

In the seventh he retired Cards rookie Mike Tyson but surrendered a walk to Luis Melendez before Joe Torre, a mean hitter against the Mets, rifled a high, inside fast ball to leftfield to break the speel.

"It was a strike all right," said the 6-foot-2 Koosman, who by then had firm visions of fashioning the first no-hitter in the Mets 11 seasons.

"I might have had bad positioning on the pitch," he said, "because I'd thrown him inside two times before and gotten him out. Maybe I should have gone outside."

Koosman got through the seventh by retiring Ted Simmons and Skip Jutze following the Torre hit and also survived Roque's leadoff triple in the eighth before yielding to a twoout Simmons homer, his 15th in the ninth.

Tug McGraw, recording his 25th save, came on to retire Roque on a strikeout after Jutze followed the Simmons blast with a single, the fourth Cards hit.

"I've had trouble in the strike zone primarily," said Koosman, who also called time spent in the bullpen a bugaboo to his inconsistent season.

"I've had the kind of a season where I'm a start, then I'm in the bullpen, then I'm a starter, then I'm in the bullpen, then I'm in a starter again.

"I haven't had my chance to start every fifth day like I'd like to in order to stay sharp," he added.

Koosman, who struck out 10 and walked three, had one previous brush with a no-hitter, that while pitching a 2-1 victory over the Baltimore Orioles in the second game of the 1969 World Series.

Paul Blair broke that one up, singling leading off the seventh inning after the 28-year-old pitcher had worked six hitless frames.

Home Opener Sunday

ST. LOUIS — The rugged opening - season schedule for the St. Louis Football Cardinals continues Sunday when they take on the improved Pittsburgh Steelers in the Big Red's home-opener at Busch Memorial Stadium.

Kickoff for the inter-conference battle will be at 1:05 p.m.

Both teams will take 1-1 records into the game -- with both losing last week. The Cardinals, opening the season with a 10-3 upset victory over the Baltimore Colts, fell victim to their own mistakes and a rugged Washington defense last week, losing 24-10. The Steelers, after opening with a 34-28 upset win over Oakland, were edged last week by the Cincinnati Bengals, 15-10.

The Big Red is in the middle of a demanding opening - season schedule. Following the Steeler game, the Cardinals will travel to Minnesota to face the Vikings next Sunday and then return for a rematch with the Redskins on Oct. 15 in St. Louis.

The Cardinals and Steelers have not met since 1969, when the Big Red won both games, a 27-14 verdict at Pittsburgh and a 47-10 romp in St. Louis. Over the years, however, the Steelers have built up a 27-20-3 series lead. Since the Cardinals moved to St. Louis in 1960, the series stands 12-6-2 in favor of the Big Red.

"The Steelers will be another tough test for us, "Cardinal head coach Bob Hollway said. "They are picked as a favorite in their division. Their offense is explosive, expecially with the improvement Terry Bradshaw has shown at quarterback, and their defense is very solid."

During the pre-season, the Steelers posted a 4-1-1 record, outscoring their opposition, 160-63. Included was a 56-7 triumph over New Orleans and a 10-10 tie with the Redskins. Pittsburgh's only pre-season loss was to Baltimore, 16-13.

Bradshaw completed the pre-season with 639 passing yards and six touchdowns, and ranked as Pittsburgh's sixth-leading rusher with 66 yards in 10 carries. In the season -opener against the Raiders, he passed for 124 yards and ran for 49 more, second best on the team.

Last week against the Bengals, he scored the only touchdown of the game on a 12-yard run.

Cardinal offensive tackle Ernie McMillan will set a team record for consecutive games Sunday when he plays in the 149th straight, breaking the mark previously held by Bobby Joe Conrad. Third on the consecutive game list is placekicker Jim Bakken, who will be playing in his 137th straight game as a Cardinal. Bakken is the NFL's eight-leading all-time scorer with 852 points.

Tickets for the Pittsburgh and all other Big Red home games are on sale at the Cardinal ticket office, 200 Stadium Plaza, St. Louis, Missouri 63102. Single tickets only remain for the Chicago Bear game on Oct. 29.

Wilt May Switch

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Superstar Wilt Chamberlain is considering leaving the NBA champion Los Angeles Lakers to sign with the new San Diego Conquistadors of the American Basketball Association, a newspaper reported here today.

Leonard Bloom, owner of the Conquistadors, has visited the 7-foot-1 center and discussed the move with him, the San Diego Union said. Neither Bloom nor general manager Alex Groza would deny that negotiations are under way, the paper said.

Chamberlain has not yet signed to play for the Lakers this year and the Union said his attorney "is trying to find a loophole in his contract."

The newspaper quoted a source as saying Chamberlain may sit out the coming season and do radio commentary and public relations for the Conquistadors if he and Bloom can reach agreement.

The Conquistadors are the newest ABA franchise and this will be their first season.

grid quiz

With seconds left in the half, on first down the clock is stopped because the Kansas quarterback immediately after receiving the snap throws the ball forward into the legs of an ineligible lineman.

The official should:

1. Declare an incomplete pass.

2. Penalize Kansas for intentional grounding of a pass.

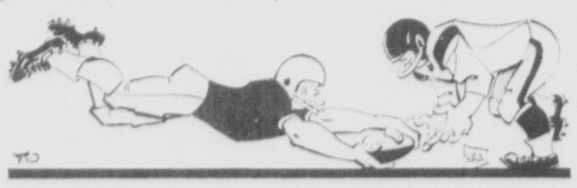
3. Penalize for illegal touching and start the clock on the ready for play signal.

Answer: Number 3. Penalize for illegal touching and start the clock on the ready for play signal.

Rule: (7-3-2-d) A pass is grounded if intentionally thrown to the ground or out of bounds to save loss of yardage or to conserve time.

Rule: (7-3-10) No originally ineligible player while in-bounds shall touch a forward pass until it has touched an opponent.

Interpretations Book, Page 20, Item (d): With seconds remaining in a half, the clock is stopped because "T" quarterback receiving snap immediately throws the ball forward into legs of ineligible lineman Al. Ruling: The incompletion does not qualify as intentional grounding (7-3-2-d). It is illegal touching and could be 5 or 15 yards penalty, according to position of Al (7-3-10). The clock will start on the ready (3-4-3).



Strengthen Running

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Veterans Tom Woodeshick and Jim "Cannonball" Butler were added Tuesday to the St. Louis Cardinals running attack in moves designed to improve the National Football League club's punch.

Coach Bob Hollway said he expected to announce today which player on the squad he will trim from the roster to make room for Woodeshick, who was signed as a free agent.

Butler, the Atlanta Falcons' leading rusher the past four years, was acquired from that club in exchange for nine-season defensive lineman Chuck Walker, who played both end and tackle.

Woodeshick, a 30-year-old veteran of nine NFL seasons, was dropped two weeks ago by the Philadelphia Eagles, for whom he gained 3,563 as the league's fifth-leading active rusher.

A 6-foot-215-pound product of West Virginia, Woodeshick gained 947 yards in 1968 and rushed for 831 yards the next season.

Butler, only 5-foot-9 and 185 pounds, gained 655 and 636 yards for Atlanta in 1968 and '69 and totaled 594 yards last season.

The Cardinals gained only 46 yards on the ground in a season-opening 10-3 victory over the Baltimore Colts and netted only 79 yards in a 24-10 loss to the Washington Redskins a week later.

"We needed to strengthen our running attack," Hollway said.

Sports Briefs

FORREST'S FORTITUDE

Former Green Bay Packer tackle Forrest Gregg holds the National Football League's all-time record for most consecutive games played, 188. His ex-teammate, Jim Ringo, is second at 183. Jim Otto and George Blanda had the best streaks among active players, each having appeared in 168 straight games going into this season.

NATIONAL NABOBS

The National Football Conference held a substantial edge over the American Conference in regular season play entering the current season, the NFC having won 50, lost 27 and tied one.

BUSY FOOT

Bobby Joe Green of the inoffensive Chicago Bears has punted more times than any player in National Football League history. Green's 821 punts over 12 seasons going into 1972 allowed him to break the NFL record previously held by Paul Maguire of San Diego and Buffalo. Green also leads active National Football Conference kickers in punting average, with 42.9 yards per boot.

ALLEN AHEAD

The Washington Redskins' George Allen had the best record among National Football League coaches going into the 1972 season. His teams had compiled a 58-21-5 record for a .734 winning percentage. Bud Grant of the Minnesota Vikings was second on a .687 mark, 46-21-3. Dallas' Tom Landry had the most wins, 88, but his teams had also lost 72 games.

Forest fires destroy beauty.
It takes nearly a century to grow the green beauty of a tree.
And only a careless second with a match to leave only black ugliness.
Only you can prevent forest fires.

Be sure to keep picnic food cool (50 degrees F or below) to avoid ptomaine poisoning, typhoid, etc. Germs in food multiply alarmingly in 50 to 130 degree temperatures, as in a hot auto trunk or in sunshine. Hamburger, potato salad, creamy pastries and ham are most vulnerable.

Firms Believe Stocks On Bullish Trend

By CROCKETT SCOTT

"The Mighty Hopes that Make Us Men." ... Alfred Lord Tenyson

While day to day events in the news can make for erratic thrusts downward and upward in the averages, there are a number of basically bullish undertones for the stock market in the opinion of investment banking firms of the Middle Mississippi Valley.

One of the least publicized is the increase in dividends. Some dividend increases, in fact, are running 18 to 20 per cent, despite a four per cent limit established by the Nixon administration last year.

Another major plus for the market is capital from abroad ... from Europe and Japan.

A St. Louis investment banker suggests that with an expanding European Common Market there will be more opportunity for a stable and prosperous Europe --- and, conceivably, more wealth for investment in American industry.

Kansas City investment people point out that the Japanese are infatuated with investment in American industry, and that the lifting of some restrictions against foreign investing by Japan should bring more money to the American market.

The Japanese like the American stock market because of its diversity and size, and for its liquidity; and the Europeans for the same reason, your correspondent was told.

Favorable for the market, too, is the lessening in the deficit in payments on international trade.

Stock market analysts concede that we have a long way to go in solving our unfavorable payments balance in international trade, but they are encouraged by what they believe to be some progress.

A Little Rock professional reminds that continuing expansion abroad by American industry also contributes to the stability of American equities. Such activity not only opens up new markets for American-made goods, but it helps to circumvent the higher cost of operation(including higher wages) of domestic plants.

Another positive factor for the market which analysts come back to is the relative quietude thus far among the many cyclical laggards still selling near their recession lows.

An indication that the price Commission is not the deterrent to stock prices advancing, despite the furor over refusal thus far to let the automakers advance prices that some investors seem to fear, is the comment of Dr. Albert H. Cox, Jr., head economist for Lionel D. Edie & Co., New York.

"By the second half of next year," commented Dr. Cox, "profits could turn down under present profit restrictions, but we don't think it will get to that."

Reports in the financial pages indicate that one area of more concern for industry and business by the Price Commission is that of categories of production or sales which have been discontinued. They no longer, in many instances, are required for consideration in base period computation.

And on this subject, Dr. Cox observes: "Earlier, the Price Commission was turning these arguments down," he noted, "but lately they have been more lenient, or rational is the word."

First Midwest Investment Corp., 1112 N. Jackson, Milwaukee, Wis. 53202, has a study about Farm House Foods.

Eppler, Guerin & Turner, Inc., First National Bank Bldg., Dallas, Texas, offers a report on Zale Corp.

No Accidents

No area highway accidents were reported Tuesday by the highway patrol, but an accident which occurred at 3:15 a.m. Sept. 10 on Highway 51 in Perry County has resulted in the death of Gary Lee Schrimp, 18, of Perryville.

The accident occurred when Schrimp lost control of his car on a curve, ran into a ditch and overturned.

He died Tuesday in Barnes Hospital in St. Louis.

Two Write Book On Hybrids

CARUTHERSVILLE -- Jim Southern, son of Mr. and Mrs. Baxter Southern of Caruthersville, has been commissioned to write a book on his three- year study and one year of experimentation with 42 hybrids, involving more than 30 different tests on growing sunflowers.

Southern hopes to plant 800 acres next year. More than 30 hybrids are being tested this year, along with standard varieties. More than 20 different production techniques are being used and evaluated, he said.

City Needs $293,000 Budget Per Year

The City of Sikeston will need approximately $293,000 per year, exclusive of capital improvements, for an operating budget under a proposed new development program, City Manager Jim Huff told members of the Exchange Club at a meeting held Thursday.

Fund sources available are a municipal sales tax, an increased utility tax and federal revenue sharing funds, Huff said. The revenue sharing program, which is apparently assured for a five- year period, will furnish an estimated $170,000 annually in revenue and should eliminate the need for development of other revenue sources for the present.

Huff told the club that operating budget items are divided into four categories, public safety, roadways and sanitation, recreation and miscellaneous.

Sikeston Planning and Zoning Commission is currently conducting an intensive review of the Sikeston expenditure- revenue study and will recommend program priorities to the City Council. The City Council will then be in a position to outline revenue sources available to provide funding for essential programs.

In the public safety area which includes the fire and police departments, emphasis will be placed on training, compensation for extra duty, inspection of existing buildings, design review of proposed buildings and subdivisions and the addition of more sophisticated equipment, Huff said.

Under the roadways and sanitation area, the most important and most expensive program under consideration is an annual seal coating to preserve and protect street surfaces throughout the city.

Other street programs include the preparation of a street inventory, improvement of street signing and pavement marking, and intersection safety survey and a sidewalk inspection program.

A storm drain master plan will be developed to guide future improvements and sufficient funding for minor modifications to the storm drain system.

Refuse disposal problems will center around effective trench covers, fire control in the sanitary landfill and study of recycling potential of the Sikeston area. Huff also said that decisions on refuse disposal will be delayed to take advantage of the findings of Bootheel Regional Planning Commission.

The recreation area involves park maintenance, recreation programming and facilities operation. Park maintenance activity will double or triple with the addition of 140 acres of park facilities in the new recreational complex to the existing 70 acres.

Huff said that the recreation program which is now limited to a baseball program could be expanded to include arts, crafts, music, aquatics or other recreational activities.

The miscellaneous area includes the airport, general administration and development. Huff said that effective maintenance of the airport is essential to give visitors a satisfactory first impression of the community.

The primary factor considered in general administration is the need to provide adequate compensation for city employes. The development program anticipates establishing an industrial development specialist to devote full time to the task of attracting industry to Sikeston in cooperation with Sikeston Industrial Development Corporation.

Huff closed his speech by saying that the city needs to know if citizens support or oppose the services proposed.

"Treat other people exactly as you would like to be treated by them--this is the essence of all true religion." (Matthew 7:12, Phillips translation)

Spitz Didn't Hurt Self In TV Contract, Either

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Bob Hope: "Are you a painless dentist?"

Mark Spitz: "I haven't hurt myself yet."

This was part of the dialogue of a television skit that will mark the show business debut of Mark Spitz, winner of seven gold medals at the 1972 Olympic Games.

The 22-year-old swimmer broke into the bigtime Monday night by taping a Bob Hope special for airing Oct. 5.

Spitz came to Hollywood last weekend under the auspices of his new agents, the prestigious William Morris Office. His first appearance was for Hope, who called Spitz at his Carmichael, Calif., home to assure the date.

The fee for the Hope show was estimated at $0,000. All this for working a day and a half.

At rehearsal, Spitz handled the gag lines well, with some coaching from the master, Hope.

"Mark went home and did his homework after the runthrough last night," the comedian remarked between rehearsals. "He knows the lines, but he reads them too fast. He's gotta learn to wait for the laughs."

Hope said Spitz had been offered his choice of three skits from the comedian's gag writing factory: a Western, a movie saga with Hope as an aging Tarzan being replaced by the younger Spitz and a spoof with Spitz as a fledgling dentist.

Spitz, a dental student at Indiana University, chose the last. The skit included three kisses by Julie Bennett, a busty redhead who portrayed his nurse.

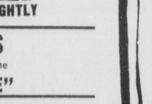
At a news conference earlier, Spitz left no doubt that his swimming career was over.

"I haven't even been in the water since I finished the last race," he said.

Spitz's agents said he had received, but not yet accepted, film offers from MGM, Warner Brothers, director Vittorio de Sica and others.

Hope remarked, "I think he's got a real future in our business. He's a real inspiration to the youth of our nation. And what an athlete! He makes Superman seem like Truman Capote. I call him Fort Knox with fins."

An old-timer can recall when jam sessions were held at county fairs.



A skeptic is a fellow who says he doesn't believe ANY THING he reads, and only half of what he says.

Can't Get Rid Of Chickens

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Swallows leave Capistrano. Geese leave Canada. But they can't persuade the chickens to leave Coral Gables.

Residents along San Marco Avenue said about 18 months ago two chickens were moved into the exclusive neighborhood despite a ban on keeping them.

Some people, thinking the birds were cute, fed them and protected them from dogs and cats.

The two chickens grew to a flock of 20 which holds an a capella chorus about 4:30 each morning to the dismay of people trying to get some sleep.

Asst. City Manager Hank Potterfield at one point filed suit against the man who was believed to have brought the first two chickens to the area.

The court ordered the man to get rid of them.

He showed up with a shotgun bright and early one morning and started blasting away. The chickens flew to safety and have since become much more wary of humankind.

"I've seen the chickens. You can't possibly get near them," Potterfield said. "Those things will fly a half mile to escape."

Violence, Thievery Characterize Return Fall TV Series

NEW YORK (AP) — Two television series that emphasize violence are back with us this fall. Viewers may protest, but the shows also appear to emphasize deceit, aerial thievery and the thrill of the chase.

Both arrived here Sunday afternoon for what the announcers called the start of the 1972 regular season. On NBC, the show was "The Jets vs. the Bills." At CBS, it was "The Giants vs. the Lions." Similar shows were seen elsewhere in the nation.

The CBS show, broadcast live from Detroit, began with a brisk rendition of "The StarSpangled Banner," performed in 57 seconds by a 180-piece marching band. Then it got down to business. The plot went this way:

A man in a blue jersey, flanked by 10 identically dressed men, ran up to a ball that resembled a big leather egg with stitches. He kicked it and this caught the attention of 11 other men in white.

They ran at each other and formed a big pile on something one of the narrators, Ray Scott, called the 31. Then they got up and talked to each other and decided to form a big pile again. A few scenes later, as they took sides, Scott said: "Let's see if the Lions decide to blitz Snead in what looks like a passing situation." He referred to Norm Snead, a star in Sunday's show.

Blitz must mean hurl to the ground and jump upon, because that's what the Lions did to Snead. A few minutes later, the Giants did the same to Greg Landry, a Lion star.

As the drama unfolded, someone in a striped shirt threw down his handkerchief as if in anger and Scott said: "We have our first marker of the game. Holding . . . it's against the Giants."

After this, other men in striped shirts showed no reluctance to hurl down their handkerchiefs, too. Scott explained this was because of things like illegal motion and offensive interference among the players.

The show's strong point wasn't dialogue. Landry and Snead spent most of the day in a couch, muttering "hut-huthut" and silently fleeing for their lives when given the ball.

On the positive side, the action was fast and furious. Viewers who adjourned for a beer during the better parts didn't lose out; CBS replayed the dramatic highpoints 37 times and in slow motion at that.

And at the end, it gave the ratings for each cast. The Lions got a 30 rating and the Giants a 16.

The entire show lasted about three hours — five for those who switched over to the NBC drama in which the New York Jets got a 41 rating to the Buffalo Bills 24.

All things considered, both shows are fun and will do well in neighborhood saloons and household basements this fall.

They won't do well in homes where the average viewer is a bewhiskered bum who, upon assuming the prone position on the sofa, is immediately told by his wife to get up and let her vacuum it before it moults.

With the hunting season coming up, it's prudent to recall the number of people killed by "empty" guns.

What's The Law?

The Case Of The Thwarted Investigation

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

When officer O'Reilly arrived at the scene of a reported donnybrook, the alleged battlefield had been cleared. Sitting in a nearby automobile, however, was Clarence and one of his cohorts. Deciding that Clarence's companion, from his appearance, might have been involved in the melee, officer O'Reilly began questioning him. And while the questions weren't incriminating, Clarence decided that the answers might be and repeatedly advised his buddy not to answer them.

The result? Officer O'Reilly's investigation never got off the ground and he was left up in the air. Totally frustrated, he arrested Clarence for obstructing a police officer in the discharge of his duty.

"Before I could hardly finish a question," officer O'Reilly complained in court, "Clarence was telling his pal that he didn't have to answer it."

"Every question was two-sided with no bottom," was Clarence's answer. "I couldn't just stand there and let a pal get trapped. So, I advised him of his constitutional rights. Certainly, there can't be any law against that."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you convict frustrating Clarence of obstructing a police officer in the discharge of his duty?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that, as a general rule, protesting to an officer in behalf of another, or criticizing or questioning him while he is performing his duty, when done is an orderly manner, does not amount to obstructing him in the performance of his duty. Futhermore, noted the judge, a citizen may advise another of his constitutional rights in a peaceable manner without necessarily interfering in the performance with that office of his duty. (Based upon a 1971 North Carolina Superme Court Decision).

Accuse U.S. Of Spying By Mail

PEKING (AP) — The North Vietnamese have accused the United States of sending espionage equipment in packages mailed to prisoners of war, American antiwar activists reported here today.

The charges were made by the Americans accompanying three American pilots on their way home after being released in Hanoi.

In Washington, the Department of Defense issued a denial of the accusations.

Maj. Gen. Daniel James, a Pentagon spokesman, said:

"The charges are too ridiculous to dignify by trying to address them in detail. I know of no instance of such actions taking place and I think it is just another of the propaganda web that Hanoi is spinning to obscure the real facts concerning her intransigent position in refusing to negotiate meaningfully for all our prisoners of war."

This correspondent, who had accompanied the delegation and the freed pilots throughout the week, was not shown any of the materials. I was not told in advance about the display and was elsewhere in Hanoi when it took place.

The antiwar delegation said that representatives of the North Vietnamese government, in meetings during the past week in Hanoi, charged that sophisticated equipment capable of revealing camp locations and other information was sent to the prisoners from the United States.

They claimed that materials for receiving messages were sent in hollowed-out peanuts, bars of toilet soap, toothpaste tubes, pieces of candy, packages of chewing gum and instant coffee. They also said special paper for sending undetectable messages in letters to families was included.

The Americans said that items the North Vietnamese alleged were in the packages were displayed for them on a table at the Hoa Binh Hotel on Monday afternoon.

I was given photographs which the North Vietnamese told the Americans showed packages and contents sent to prisoners.

Study Supports Income Tax

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — A statewide study supports higher state income and sales taxes and less reliance on property taxes to finance public schools.

Delmar Cobble, cochairman of the study, told the Missouri Association of Secondary Principals conference Monday the property tax may be ruled unconstitutional by the Supreme Court because every child cannot be supported equally by it.

If property taxes were eliminated, the state would have to do7ble income and sales taxes, he said. The study suggests retaining the property tax but reducing the percentage of support it provides schools.

Four committees of Missouri citizens studied four areas— revenue sources, distribution of funds, educational programs and school district structure— Cobble said.

He said the study also recommends reducing the number and upgrading the quality of school districts, with more emphasis on vocational, adult and preschool education.

Asia Drug Traffic Has No Cure, Yet

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA)

The Southeast Asian drug traffic may be impossible to stop.

The gloomy preditcion is made regardless of how thoroughly friendly governments cooperate in Thailand, South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia; No matter how many U.S. agents operate in the area and how much leeway they're given to search baggage and wipe out drug factories; And despite tough new American-inspired regulations in several of these nations and very harsh treatment meted out for some violators.

These thoughts are not my own. They come from information given by one friend who was for years a colonel in the opium detail of one major Southeast Asian country, by another whose political connections spread through two of these nations and by other Asian, French, Chinese and American contacts with some considerable experience in the rural areas of these nations.

There are two basic reasons that control of the drug traffic will almost certainly not succeed now and for a very long time to come.

First—The pay of the rural police, local officials and of the ordinary military is so low that few officials, police and even military unit commanders can make ends meet, even on a bare existence level without being on the take from smugglers and anyone else able to make pay-offs regularly.

In all too many cases, these officials do not get the backup from higher authorities to enable them to crack down on anyone for opium or heroin running.

In several of these countries, local officials do not have any appreciable power of force or of accepted authority to enforce any law against even relatively small groups or individuals.

In wide areas of the countryside of the four nations above and Burma as well the government does not exercise any appreciable power or control.

This holds for non-Communist areas as well as for regions occupied by troops from Hanoi and agents from Peking. Actual control is in the hands of bandits, gangs or secret organizations.

The second basic reason for the continued drug traffic is the people in the opium growing areas are so poor and alternate sources of income so meager they cannot be persuaded to give up this cash crop.

There has been talk for years, investigating commissions, government and international reports, programs and exhortations for the introduction of substitute crops. Nothing has come of this.

Substitute crops haven't worked; No one has discovered practical substitutes. Most alternate crops require water, fertilizer, nearness to markets, roads, suitable climate and customers. One or all of these factors is lacking in most opium areas.

Just as the police power frequently does not extend effectively to the opium growing areas, the agricultural, civic and educational influence of the governments does not effectively extend there either.

What is needed is technical aid to these nations to give them more effective government—if any nations know how to give such assistance.

Haiti Moves To Build Up Low Economy

By HAROLD J. LIDIN
Associated Press Writer

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — This black republic is just across the narrow Windward Passage from Cuba, but Haiti seems to shun the Castro message of economic salvation through socialism.

For years Havana radio has been broadcasting to Haiti's Creole-speaking and 90 per cent illiterate masses. But the U.S. Embassy says the broadcasts have little impact. Haitian government censorship keeps out of print any accounts from Havana of Cuban achievements.

The talk here is not of nationalization but of tax concessions and cheap labor — the legal minimum is $1 a day — and the need for outside capital to develop the country.

In Haiti, as one foreign economic observer phrased it, "people take the view that foreign capital must be their primary engine of development."

Foreign investors' interest had dwindled during the ultranationalistic regime of the late dictator Francois "Papa Doc" Duvalier. His son and successor, 21-year-old Jean Claude Duvalier, along with a group of Cabinet ministers, woo the foreign investor as vital to fulfilling their promise of economic growth.

"My father made the political revolution, I will make the social revolution," the young ruler promises.

Duvalier and his group have banished the Ton-Ton Macoute. This ragtag militia, under "Papa Doc," had been used by the physician-president to offset the political ambitions of the professional military. At times the Ton-Ton Macoute shook down and terrorized civilians.

Most of the new action centers around this steamy capital city — the cash flow has not yet quickened enough in the small towns to lift the estimated annual per capita income for the country as a whole to over $100 a year.

Even in Port au Prince, taxi drivers still cut off the ignition in their cars to save gasoline on the downgrades, and cigarettes can be bought one by one from curbside vendors.

Still financial indicators point to an economic upsruge. Exports increased 19 per cent last year. Plans exist to open three more banks this year; one U.S., one Canadian, and the third institution to be financed by Haitian and Dominican interests.

State Supreme Court Rules On Negligence

(AP) — The Missouri Supreme Court once again has held that political subdivisions in the state cannot be sued for regligence.

In a unanimous decision Monday, the court upheld Circuit Judge Richard K. Koenigsdorf's ruling to dismiss a suit brought by a Jackson County Couple, Ralph E. and Wanetta Payne.

The Paynes sued the county and two drivers for the wrongful death of their son, a passenger in one of two cars that collided at an intersection.

The drivers were dropped as defendants but the county was negligent, the Paynes said, for not having a stop sign at the intersection.

"The Missouri Constitution and statutes are silent on the matter of sovereign immunity but the judicial decision of this court have declared in no uncertain terms that this doctrince is the public policy in this state," wrote special Judge William H. Billings of the circuit court for Dunklin and Stoddard counties.

"We regard the rule in Missouri as one of fixed public policy, and any abandonment of it, either as to political subdivisions or the state itself, should come through the legislative process," he wrote.

The court also overturned a St. Louis Circuit Court decision that gave a $5,000 judgment to a part-owner of a horse which was photographed by the Ralston Purina Co. without the part-owner's consent.

A St. Louis murder conviction was reversed because the jury was not properly instructed on self-defense. But two other murder convictions were affirmed.

Ralston Purina appealed after Agnes Bayer received a $5,000 judgment. Testimony revealed that another part-owner had given his consent for the photography, which was used in advertisements.

The woman's priacy was not invaded because she was not identified with the horse in the advertisements, the court ruled.

A new trial was ordered for Ronald Claude Minnis of St. Louis, who was sentenced to 20 years for second-degree murder in the July 16, 1969, knifing death of Robert Grab.

Minnis testified that Grab followed him into his house and lunged at him.

The burden of proof was placed on the defendant and not on the state because of wording in Circuit Judge J. Casey Walsh's instructions to the jury, the Supreme Court found.

"Instead of leaving it to the jury to determine... whether the defendant's guilt is established beyond a reasonable doubt, it authorizes them to convict unless they find he has proved his innocence beyond a reasonable doubt," the majority opinion by special Judge Charles Shangler of the Kansas City Court of Appeals said.

The court upheld the first-degree murder conviction in Buchanan County of Billy Taylor Strong. He was sentenced to life for the Sept. 23, 1969, shooting of Robert Cordonier during a car theft attempt in St. Joseph.

Strong contended that the 11month lapse between his arrest and trial deprived him of due process. The high court noted that many of the seven continuances were at the request of Strong.

A second-degree murder conviction for Theodore Jackson of St. Louis was upheld.

He was sentenced to 15 years for the shooting death of Annie Dale Oct. 13, 1969. The court denied Jackson's contention that the jury should have been allowed to reduce the charge to manslaughter.

Scouts Get Eagle Award

Stan McMikle, 15, and Gaither Daugherty III, 15, both of Sikeston, were among 11 Boy Scouts from the Southeast Missouri district who passed a Board of Review and received Eagle Scout badges at First United Methodist Church Tuesday night.

The two Sikeston scouts are members of Troop 41, sponsored by Sikeston Kiwanis Club. Jerry Hampton is scoutmaster.

The scouts were guests of board members later for a dinner at El Capri Restaurant. Judge Marshall Craig conducted the review ceremonies.

McMikle is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. McMikle, and Daugherty is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gaither Daugherty, II.

Five File For Post At Pemiscot Hospital

CARUTHERSVILLE — Five persons have filed as candidates for seats on the Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital board of trustees. Three of the five will be elected to serve four- year terms.

Filing for re- election were Oma Lewis, Pinnell Capehart and Robert Whitener. Also filing were Mary Helen Smith and Luther Inman.

Three seats are to be filled this year with the other two terms not expiring until 1974. Board members not seeking re- election are Lennie Watkins Jr. and Julian Boyd.

Election of board members will be held Nov. 7.

Work Toward Water Supply In Stoddard

DEXTER — Work toward formation of a new rural water supply district in Stoddard County is under way, and residents of the area will vote on the proposal Oct. 3.

The proposed area is located east of the St. Francis River and west of Highway 25 and extends northward to a point one mile north of the Powe community, according to John William Ringer, Dexter attorney, who is working with citizens in the area on the project. Waters and Associates of Sikeston is engineering the project.

It is anticipated that there will be approximately 200 hookups in the area, all of which are now without a modern water system.

Specifically excluded from the district is the City of Bernie, which has its own public water system.

Thy Oct. 3 election will ask voters of the area to formally approve establishment of the water district and decide which district would have the power to provide the tax base necessary for the operation of the district.

The new district, known as Public Water Supply District No. 6, Stoddard County, was incorporated by the Circuit Court on Sept. 18, and approval of the voters on Oct. 3 would make such incorporation final.

Drop War Amendment

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 45-42 vote by which the Senate Tuesday adopted a motion by Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., to knock out an end-the-war amendment in a foreign military aid bill included these votes from Kansas and Missouri:

For the motion, Republican Bob Dole, Kan.

Against the Motion: Republican James Pearson, Kan., and Democrats Thomas Eagleton and Stuart Symington, Mo.

On the 46-41 vote by which the Senate passed the $1.82 billion foreign military aid authorization bill the area vote included:

Chicken Lovers Unite!

Chicken lovers unite! Celebrate National Bake-A-Chicken Week, October 1-7.

Chicken, delicious and tender, is always a family favorite. And it's good for everybody. The National Broiler Council reminds us that chicken has the highest complete protein of all popular meats. Luckily, the price isn't high at all. It's a remarkable fact, and a great comfort to meal-palnners, that the cost of chicken today is almost 17c less per pound than it was twenty years ago!

National Bake-A-Chicken Week can actually mean that you take it easy while you're cooking. Chicken lends itself to so many simple methods of preparation that it saves you time and trouble with your meals.

Call on convenience products to make your chicken as easy to cook as it is to vary. Shake 'n Bake Seasoned Coating Mix, for example, not only turns out delicious, crispy chicken to bake without attention from you in thyoven, but it's also convenient for varying the flavor of the chicken with one or two simple, added ingredients. You may add the extra flavor to the seasoned coating mixed itself, or choose a different - flavored dipping ingredient, or use both together.

A tempting chicken dish that carries out these suggestions is Tarragon Chicken. That delectable dried herb, tarragon, is added to the seasoned coating mix, and for further flavor variation, the chicken is dipped in sherry or lemon juice. The combination is superb, and the oven does the work of blending the flavors together within the seasoned coating mix. If you like, serve Tarragon Chicken with linguine and a mixed green salad.

Quick as a wink, you can change from Tarragon Chicken to Neapolitan Chicken, and the way you make it is really clever. To the seasoned coating mix, you add an envelope of tomato soup mix and that glorious Italian herb, oregano. You put a little zip in the dip by adding Worcestershire sauce. Dip, coat, bake, and Neapolitan Chicken is ready to eat!

Don't let this easy experimenting with international chicken dishes end with an Italian version. Try adding seasonings characteristic of other cuisines to the coating mix and see what delicious things happen. National Bake- A -Chicken Week is a perfect opportunity to expand your collection of easy chicken dishes.

TARRAGON CHICKEN

1 envelope seasoned coating mix for chicken -- original, mild, or Italian flavor

1/2 teaspoon crumbled tarragon leaves

2 1/2 pounds chicken pieces

1/4 cup dry sherry wine or lemon juice

Empty seasoned coating mix into the plastic shaker bag, add tarragon. Moisten chicken pieces with wine. Shake off excess liquid. Shake 2 or 3 pieces at a time in the bag until evenly coated. Arrange chicken in single layer in ungreased shallow baking pan. Bake at 400 degrees F. for 40 to 50 minutes or until tender. Makes about 4 servings.

Pair Ribs With Rice

RICE 'N RIBS - THE PERFECT PARTNERS

With a rack of ribs in the oven, crisping to perfection, you're on your way to some mighty good eating. Pair the ribs up with a tasty rice dish, such as Chinese Fried Rice, and you're on your way to a great family meal.

Chinese Fried Rice, made with packaged enriched pre-cooked rice, makes dinner carefree from the cook's viewpoint. Preparation takes but a few minutes. It's also a deliciously interesting dish flavored with egg strips, onions, and soy sauce. To complete the meal, just add a green vegetable or salad.

It's an interesting and fun way to bring an Oriental flair to your dinner table. You may also want to try Chinese Fried Rice with other meat entrees. It's simple to prepare, versatile, and economical.

BARBECUED SPARERIBS

3 to 4 pounds lean spareribs

1 - 3/4 cups (18-oz. bottle) Open Pit Barbecue Sauce, any flavor

Arrange drained spareribs in a shallow baking pan. Cover with barbecue sauce mixture. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes; then turn ribs over and bake another 30 minutes, or until tender. For glazed appearance, put spareribs under broiler for 5 minutes. Make 4 to 5 servings.

Sonny & Cher Set For Mid- South Fair

MEMPHIS —Forget the superlatives, they've all been used for Sonny & Cher.

The celebrated husband -wife comedy -singing team will bring their considerable talents to the Mid -South Fair for two shows on closing Saturday, Sept. 30. Tickets for the 4:30 and 8:30 p.m. performances are on sale at Mid -South Coliseum.

Every branch of the entertainment world has felt the impact of Sonny & Cher. They have made it big in records, concerts, feature films, night clubs and capped them all with a meteoric rise in television with their own network series.

The marriage of Sonny (Salvatore Bono) and Cher (Cherilyn Sarkisian) is in its eighth year and their horizons of accomplishment continue to expand. An astute songwriter, Sonny penned, "I Got You Babe", in 1965 and it catapulted to the top of the charts --selling more than three million copies.

Then Sonny recorded Cher as a single with "All I Really Want To Do", which also hit the top within weeks of its release. Riding the success train, Sonny recorded himself with "Laugh At Me" and soon they had no less than five records in the Top 100, a feat accomplished only in the past by Elvis Presley. In quick succession came a grand entry into the concert field with sellout success.

The biggest jewel in their crown came in the summer of 1971 when they did six television shows for CBS as a summer replacement. The instantaneous acceptance by all segments of the TV public brought them their own series in January 1971 and the Sonny & Cher Comedy Hour is all set for the 1972 season.

Sonny & Cher have moved into the fair circuit and sellouts are automatic wherever they go, including Illinois State Fair at Springfield, DuQuoin (Ill.) State Fair, Minnesota State Fair, Indiana State Fair, the Canadian National Exposition in Toronto and the Iowa State Fair.

Spain Calls Charge By Danforth Laughable

UNION —James Spain, Democratic candidate for attorney general, has responded to a statement by Republican Attorney General John Danforth.

Spain spoke to a gathering of Franklin County Democrats. His statement follows:

"Atty. Gen. John Danforth has officially entered the gutter campaign of unfounded charges and smear tactics against Democratic gubernatorial candidate Edward L. Dowd. The accusations by Danforth that political favoritism influenced the awarding of a $16,542 annual lease for state office space to Thomas T. Stewart of Jefferson City is so patently absurd as to be laughable.

John D. Paulus Jr., state director of planning and construction, has correctly pointed out that the lease in question was awarded to the low bid in June of this year, some two months before the primary election.

It would seem apparent to anyone with an ounce of sense that if, indeed, it is assumed that favoritism was involved in the awarding of this lease in June 1972, such favoritism would have been directed toward the candidate who enjoyed the support of the governor in the primary, not to Ed Dowd or his supporters.

It is obvious that no political favoritism of any kind was involved in the awarding of this lease but only such appropriate factors as price, building location and size. Danforth is well aware of the specifications presented to the bidders and knows full well that his charges are blatant, unredeemable political smears directed at Dowd.

It would appear that Danforth is being used by Christopher Bond as a political hatchet man —a role that does not become this state's chief law enforcement officer. Danforth would better spend his time prosecuting violators of our Missouri income tax laws, like Christopher Bond, than in refusing to approve state leases that are properly awarded on a fair bid system."

Our wife says she wishes she could change her favorite phrase from "Why ain't it?" to "whodunit?"

Blame Crash On Mechanical Failure

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The owners of the F86 jet which crashed into a crowded ice cream parlor Sunday, killing 22 persons, attribute the crash to "apparent mechanical failure."

"The F86 aircraft was fully licensed and had been restored and tested to rigorous FAA standards and its apparent mechnical failure is now under investigation," Harold A. Lipska, president of Spectrum Air, Inc., of Novato, said in a statement.

The pilot, Richard Bingham, 36, of Novato, was in seclusion at Sacramento Medical Center, in satisfactory condition with a broken arm and other injuries. Hospital Administrator Thomas P. Engel said Bingham had asked to have no visitors.

"He has given a police statement," Engel added.

Police officials could not be reached for information about the statement. A police department spokesman said Bingham was under no police hold and was not charged with anything.

Bingham was quoted by rescuers as crying, "I'm sorry! I'm sorry!" as he was pulled from the wreckage of the Korean War - vintage craft.

Twelve of the dead were children, some of them who had gone to Farrell's Ice Cream Parlor for birthday parties.

The accident claimed more lives on the ground than any other in U.S. aviation history.

Nine members of one family were killed - three children of Anthony Martin, their parents, two of their grandparents and two cousins.

The craft faltered on an attempted takeoff at the conclusion of an air show. It plowed through an old levee, bust into flames, then hurtled into several parked autos and through the big front window of Farrell's.

A team from the National Transportation Safety Board and the Federal Aviation Administration is conducting the official investigation.

Coffee Corner by Cherie

I don't want to write this coffee corner tonight. I want to go away by myself where there are no children to put grey hairs in your heads, where there are no dogs to take to the doctor, and where there are no dishes to be cleaned up after feeding fat husbands! Brother, have I ever had a rough day today — I deserve the bed even if it is only seven thirty in the evening and I still have a column to write plus two fellas to be browbeaten into getting their homework, taking their baths and finally (thank heavens) climbing into bed. I guess I need vitamins or something — a vacation by myself would be real nice for starters. I think what finally topped my day off and sank me into the depths and gloom of frustration was dragging my oldest into every store in town to try and find him a pair of school shoes that would meet his approval as well as mine. Now I realize this is hard to do as Lee and I haven't seen eye to eye on anything in the clothing line in many a year, but still one does go on hoping year after year after year after ... All these creepy kids want to wear to school (who am I kidding, all they want to wear anywhere), are these nasty looking bluejeans, which if that's all they had to wear they'd die of shame just before appearing in them in public. Still, we're dressing a bunch of affluent nuts so they think looking like trash is great — and they think we're dumb. Anyway, all the boys new shoes have higher heels than the womens, plus looking like they belong on a bunch of homosexuals instead of on the feet of young American boys. Oh dear, whatever happened to the red blooded male animal — now we just seem to be raising a bunch of pink pantalooned freaks and what a low blow this is to a mother who thinks boys should be boys, and not only act like them, but just as important look like them. Well, now that I've taken my frustrations out on you, I think I'll take an aspirin and go to bed even if it is too early — by the way, we got a pair of suede saddle oxfords - chalk one up for mom, and now you know why my head hurts so badly!!!

Young GOP To Bumper Brand This Weekend

Active participation in a presidential campaign is something many citizens feel they have little time for, though they strongly support a candidate. Young Voters for the President in Scott County will be asking those who support Richard M. Nixon to do something this weekend that is important in the campaign and yet will take little time -and no money.

"These young people will be working in various parts of the county to carry out a 'bumper -branding' project," David Ziegenhorn, project chairman, said today.

They will simple seek permission to vehicle owners to put a Nixon bumper sticker on their car or truck as a sign of support for the President. The strips are made of vinyl and will come off in one piece without leaving a mess on the bumper after the campaign ends.

"Bumper strips are rolling billboard advertising, an impressive means of promoting voter interest," the county chairman explained, "and it is not a great deal to ask of a citizen truly interested in seeing President Nixon re -elected."

A strict rule in this project is that no bumper strip be placed on a vehicle without the expressed permission of the vehicle owner. This out of respect to the rights of the property owner. In the same respect, the young people will put the strips o- the vehicles at the spot on the car where the owner wants it.

Dowd Favors State Educational Leadership

UNION —"The state must assume a greater financial role in education," Edward L. Dowd, Democratic candidate for governor, said here in an address to the Moose Lodge. "The state must also provide imaginative leadership in administrative and instructional areas.

"Educational opportunities must be equalized throughout Missouri, "Dowd continued, calling for "attaining the goal of state financing of 50 per cent of the educational costs and an active effort to increase federal support to at least 20 per cent from the present seven per cent national average."

Dowd stated he would consider a variety of alternatives to the local property tax. In the interim, Dowd said, "I believe the state should develop an increased foundation program which will assure a sufficient minimum guarantee for each student without requiring a local tax levy increase."

Dowd noted the success of the junior college system, and stated, "I favor expansion of the junior college program."

BRUCE BIOSSAT

Blue-Collars Are Target of Agnew

By BRUCE BIOSSAT

WASHINGTON (NEA)

Vice President Spiro Agnew has a specific major assignment in this campaign: to keep disenchanted blue-collar workers, mostly Catholics of ethnic background, from drifting back to their old home in the Democratic party.

Most polls show these voters have been leaning strongly to President Nixon. But he and his advisers are not complacent about them, and are well aware that Sen. George McGovern's managers have made recapturing the blue-collar people a main target project.

In light of the importance attached to this vote, it is interesting that both parties are asking their vice-presidential nominees to make the appeals. Sargent Shriver is, of course, carrying that burden for McGovern.

Whatever McGovern's reasons, Mr. Nixon's are simple. He isn't going to do all that much campaigning until fairly late in the game, if his plan holds. And Agnew is both popular and effective with labor audiences. As the impeccably attired Shriver seems earthier than McGovern, so the natty Agnew is better than Mr. Nixon at getting down to the gut level.

So the prospect now is that Agnew will be visiting a lot of places where top Republican nominees don't ordinarily go—blue-collar areas in the big cities that used to be largely conceded to the Democrats.

In these forays, Agnew will in effect be telling the workers that they have no present Democratic home to go to, charging that McGovern is some kind of radical sport who has unsound ideas about welfare and taxes, favors amnesty for draft evaders, would go begging to Hanoi, and can't be trusted to stick with the programs he offers.

The vice president really will be drumming home reminders, since all polls suggest these issues already are paramount in the minds of the disaffected blue-collar people. And head-count polls presently show an almost unbelievable movement in these voting areas away from McGovern.

The Nixon forces, still pretty new at approaching labor, are endeavoring to fashion their campaign with some sophistication. For instance, they are not treating the ethnic bloc as monolithic, but as a thing of many parts.

In this regard, they are convinced that Mr. Nixon might make something like a sweep of the Italian Catholic vote if he can just establish a big bridgehead for a starter. Republican polls in Rhode Island, Connecticut and parts of the New York City area encourage this hope.

The President's advisers insist that if these Italian enclaves hold for him, it means he will get a good vote wherever Italo-Americans cluster in sizable numbers. It is felt they vote as an "ethnic community."

Agnew will be touching these spots, but also plunging into Polish and other Slavic bastions in such cities as Chicago, Milwaukee, Detroit, Cleveland.

His 1972 campaign role clearly is a far cry from 1968. Then he was put under tight wraps and kept to an absurdly limited schedule. Ironically, this happened to him after he committed several gaffes, the worst of which involved alleged racial or nationalistic slurs.

Time, however, changes many things. This year, Spiro Agnew is being sent forth to be a big man on the ethnic front.

State Nominees To Appear At MU

COLUMBIA — For the first time in the hectic 1972 campaign, all opposing nominees for state office in Missouri are going to be at the same place and at the same time.

The place will be the University of Missouri-Columbia and the time will actually be over a two- day period, Oct. 9 and 10, in a program called "Men and Ideas – '72," sponsored by the Missouri Students Association.

The political hopefuls will meet each evening at 7:30 p.m. in Jesse Auditorium on the UMC campus. Each candidate will give brief opening remarks, followed by an open question-answer session with the audience.

On Oct. 11, after the two-day forum, MSA will conduct a straw vote among UMC students, using voting machines to be provided by the county clerk's office. This vote is expected to be the first formal indication of how the student vote will go in Missouri.

Meeting almost exactly one month before the election, gubernatorial candidates Kit Bond and Ed Dowd will appear at the Oct. 9 session. Also speaking that evening will be James Spainhower and George Parker, nominees for state treasurer.

The Oct. 10 forum will feature Jack Schramm and Bill Phelps, nominees for lieutenant governor; nominees for state attorney general, James Spain and John Danforth; and James Kirkpatrick and Harold Kuehle, nominees for secretary of state.

Students will be given first priority on seating in Jesse Auditorium for the sessions, which will be free and open to the public. The program will be transmitted both nights to two other campus locations, the Geology Auditorium and Middlebush Auditorium, by closed circuit television.

The MSA Legislative Seminars Committee and the Missouri Student Lobby Committee are sponsoring the event.

A HEROINE DOG is miniature poodle Mimi as she cavorts with Peter Emerito, 6, in Danbury, Conn. She awakened all eight members of the Emerito family while fire was consuming the home. Up to then she had refused to go up or down the steep stairway, but the night of the fire she raced back and forth four times. Mimi is winner of the Ken-L ration gold medal as "America's Dog Hero of 1972."

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—I would like some advice on varicose veins. I am in my early 50s and enjoy sports such as tennis and swimming. But while others wear shorts and bathing suits, I have to wear support hose and slacks because of unsightly dark purple veins. I have tried all kinds of cover-ups, but to no avail. Are there any operations besides skin grafts for my ankles and bends of my knees? My ankles and knees are all purple with small veins. I also have large knotty ones in one leg. Please give some advice. Is this type of operation dangerous? I'm tired of bundling up in hot weather.

Dear Reader—Varicose veins are a problem. The large veins can cause accumulation of blood in the legs and ankles causing swelling, skin discoloration and even ulceration of the skin. The very small tiny veins that some women have in the surface of the skin cause no medical problem, and are only a cosmetic consideration.

Before anything is done, a complete physical examination has to be accomplished to determine the state of all of the veins in the legs. There are some superficial veins that some people can see and then there are large deep veins within the large muscles of the leg and thigh that are equally important.

If the large veins in the legs are normal, the little tiny superficial network of veins that some women have can be eradicated by a little electrical needle, much in the same way small dilated veins in the nose can be corrected. This procedure is of little value however, if the large veins in the skin and deeper in the legs are involved. In this case, it is sometimes possible to strip out the varicose veins depending on the finding of the medical examination. Skin grafts are completely useless in these conditions unless the underlying problem of the varicose veins is corrected first and good circulation is established. Then a graft isn't needed.

Dear Dr. Lamb—Recently a reader wrote you about epilepsy. I am also an epileptic and have been examined and found the cause to be irregular brain waves. I have medication for it. Is it possible that being overly excited, overly tired, or worried can bring on an attack or seizure?

Dear Reader—Epilepsy is not actually caused by irregular brain waves. The irregular brain wave is a manifestation of the epilepsy itself. The actual seizure may be thought of as being caused by an electrical short circuit in the brain. When the electrical disorder occurs it causes the irregular brain wave and stimulates the body to respond to cause the convulsion. The medicine acts to decrease the excess electrical activity in the brain and thereby prevents convulsions.

In most instances when sufficient medicine is given, the overactive electrical areas in the brain can be calmed down enough to prevent them from precipitating a convulsion, even in the face of most normal events of ordinary living that you mentioned.

Symington Speaks Out On Secret Laos War

WASHINGTON, D.C. – "The United States has been involved for more than a decade in an undeclared and largely unnoted war in northern Laos. From the beginning and as of today, this war has been characterized by a degree of secrecy never before true of a major American involvement abroad in which many American lives have been lost and billions of American tax dollars spent."

In an article by Missouri Sen. Stuart Symington, published in the August 29 issue of the new World magazine, Symington traces the history of United States secret involvement in Laos back to 1955 and relates the efforts of the Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee he chairs on United States Security Agreements and Commitments Abroad to reveal the facts of these activities to the American people.

Symington maintains that during the past four administrations, policies regarding Laos have been initiated and carried out by members of the executive branch without congressional knowledge or authorization. Since the executive branch did not give Congress all the facts, it was left to the legislative branch to seek the information.

"As a result of these hearings and reports originally secret but subsequently made public after they had been sanitized by the executive branch, the American people now know that the United States, through Defense Department- funded military assistance, is training, arming, and feeding the Royal LAO Army and Air Force; that the United States, through the CIA, is training, advising, paying for, supporting, and organizing a 30,000 man Lao irregular force; and that the United States is also paying for, training, advising, and supporting a force of Thai troops in Laos, at a cost last year in the neighborhood of $100 million."

"These Thai troops are currently being financed by the United States despite an Act of Congress signed into law by the President, prohibiting U. S. funds from being used in Laos for other than the support of Lao government forces or 'local forces' in Laos," Symington said.

Sen. Symington points out that until 1971 not even Congress, let alone the American people, had knowledge of the financing of this secret war, other than economic assistance – some $52 million in fiscal year 1971.

"The Secretary of State finally admitted publicly last year that the United States was spending about $350 million in Laos or about 10 times the Lao national budget. At my suggestion, a ceiling was legislated that limited all security- related American expenditures to $350 million in fiscal year 1972.

The Missouri senator says the American involvement in Laos continues to grow.

"There are preliminary indications that the executive branch will ask for more money for Thai and Lao irregulars and will insist that the $350 million ceiling be raised in fiscal year 1973."

(Since publication of this article, the Administration requested some $430 million for Laos for fiscal year 1973. The Senate- House Conference on military procurement subsequently recommended a $375 million limit on such funding.)

"This war in northern Laos, furtive and secret, will perhaps teach us all a lesson about the dangers of creeping involvements, hidden from the Congress and the public, that make a mockery of our governmental processes. It is a lesson we cannot afford to be taught again."

Missouri Less Active In Social Services Grants

WASHINGTON — Missouri is less active than other states in tapping a virtually unrestricted pipeline of federal funds for social services to welfare families.

The funds have been available to the states since 1962, with Uncle Sam providing three dollars for every one the states are willing to invest. But recently the states have shown a gluttony for the money. Current askings by states shown 529 per cent increase over federal money spent in the program in fiscal year 1971. Mississippi says it intends to use $463.6 million, a 42,118 per cent increase.

By contrast, Missouri's increase is 37 per cent. The figures show only four states less hungry for Uncle Sam's money.

There is no limit under the present law on how much federal social services money the states can get for welfare families. The services which qualify for the matching funds are so poorly defined by law that the states have been able to justify an almost endless variety of programs. And the law covers services not only to present welfare recipients, but to past and potential recipients as well.

To stop this drain on federal money, the Senate Finance Committee has included a provision in its revenue sharing bill which would eliminate such open-ended 75 per cent matching funds for all social services except family planning and child care.

The bill also includes an annual $1 billion in the supplemental revenue sharing funds to be distributed to states and localities on the basis of urbanized population".

The finance committee staff member describes the supplemental provision as a kind of "bonus" to the states for giving up unlimited 3-1 matching federal funds for social services.

It's hard to tell precisely what effect the Senate's bill would have on individual states. Present reporting procedures don't show in the precise categories that would remain open- ended under the bill.

"That's part of the marble cake of federalism," a spokesman for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare said, referring to the department's inability under the current law to show exactly what the money is being used for.

The billion- dollar "bonus" can't be compared to the present social services provision either, since state and local governments would not be required to spend their share on social services.

At any rate, it appears that Missouri would definitely gain money under the Senate bill. The state's projected use of federal social services money for fiscal 1973 in $16.3 million. Missouri's share of the billion- dollar "bonus" would be $21.4 million.

Under the "bonus" provision, Missouri would not be required to put up any money of its own, as is now required under the social services provision enacted in 1962.

First Year of Car's Depreciation Is Costliest

By MARGARET DANA

A recent study by the Highway Statistics Division of the Federal Highway Administration provides some figures on what it costs to operate and maintain an automobile over the approximate 10 years of its life. Most people would probably say that gasoline is the top expense. Actually, it is only the third highest for a standard- size car, and fourth highest for a compact or subcompact.

But every car owner, driver or rider ought to have on hand the facts as to what the real costs are -- all of them -- and what they amount to in the 10 years or 100,000 miles the Statistics Division figures as the life of a car from start to junkyard. When you look at the costs, and check over some related items for which your automobile money goes, you may well begin to wonder if there is a better solution to our crowded highways than more highways and more cars.

Start with the fact that the highest cost, after the purchase price of your new car, is the first year's depreciation. If your new car costs $4,379, at the end of a year after being driven around 14,500 miles (not an exact figure, of course, in all cases), your depreciation cost would be $1,226, or 8.5 cents a mile, according to the statistics. Over a 10- year period that depreciation lessens so that at the end it averages 4.4 cents a mile. During that period maintenance, parts, tires, etc., will average 2.6 cents a mile, gas and oil come to 2.1 cents a mile, garage and parking tolls, 1.8 cents, insurance 1.4 cents, and state and Federal taxes 1.3 cents.

These figures are for the standard- size car.

What this all means is that the new cars for which American consumers paid more than $20 billion in 1971 will cost them $40 billion more over the next 10 years to operate and maintain. In case you hadn't noticed, that's a lot of money.

The question then for consumers with common sense: Is this the best way to spend that $60 billion? Are there ways to reduce our transportation costs, reduce our traffic jams, reduce our air pollution and still get to work, get to the city and back, get to recreation, to schools, and so on?

For rather a long time worried experts have been giving us the answer, as they see it. Increased use of mass transportation where it is practicable – by bus, train or subway – would cut tremendously all these heavy traffic figures. Nobody in his right mind would propose doing away with all our cars, for we need them, want them, and they serve us well. What is in the "sacred" atmosphere surrounding the Highway conservationists do say is: Build mass- transit systems so that one motor, one engine, one track can carry what it takes a hundred cars or more to do now.

Then why doesn't it happen? Why did we spend $20 billion last year for new cars, billions more to operate them, paying heavy taxes along the way, yet no national money is available to help build these systems we so urgently need?

The answer to this mystery is in the "sacred" atmosphere surrounding the Highway Revenue Act of 1956, into which our gasoline and other maintenance taxes have been pouring millions for years. The law simply says nobody can use the Highway Trust Fund, built on these taxes, for anything but to build more highways.

Teasdale Says Bond Violated State Law

MOBERLY –In a meeting with Randolph County Democrats, Joseph P. Teasdale has charged Republican gubernatorial candidate Christopher (Kit) Bond with having violated Missouri law in failing to file Missouri income tax returns for the years 1964, 1965 and 1966.

Teasdale pointed out that Bond testified before the Missouri Supreme Court that he was familiar with the Missouri income tax law (Sec. 143.011, subd.1,RSMo. 1969) which provides as follows with regard to the filing requirements in this state:

"1. Every single individual, a citizen or resident of this state having a gross income in excess of one thousand two hundred dollars, and every married couple, citizens or residents of this state having a gross income in excess of two thousand four hundred dollars, shall file an income tax return or returns and pay a tax upon net income received, from all sources during the preceding year in excess of the exemption herein provided.

"3. Every individual, not a citizen or resident of this state, shall file an income tax return and pay a tax at the rate prescribed in subsection 2 of this section on the net income received from all sources within this state during the preceding year in excess of the exemption."

"Bond admitted to the Supreme Court that he had unearned income in excess of $2,400 from trusts located in Missouri which were administered by Missouri trustees during each of the years 1964, 1965 and 1966, but that he failed to file Missouri income tax returns for each of these years," Teasdale said.
